THE FIRST CAT.

The Ark on the dark, multitudinous waters
Was tossing the rain in a cataract poured;
But Noah, his family, their sons and their sons'wives
And all the wild live stock were safely aboard.

They weren't much seasick, in spite of the weather
And rather [illegible] they'd food to suffer;
And all things were lovely, when, squeaking together,
[illegible] from the galley a rabbit [illegible]!

They multiplied—yes, like a warren of rabbits!
They plundered the pantry, devoured the grain;
And such were their simply unspeakable habits
That poor Mrs. Noah was well-nigh insane!

She said so in language untrammeled and forceful!
And what might have happened, the Lord only knows,
When Noah, the kindly and ever resourceful,
Went up to the Lion and tickled his nose.

[illegible] feature
His [illegible] in a trice
A silky-haired, dagger-clawed brisk little creature—
And woe to the ravaging legions of mice!

In twenties, in thirties, in fifties she slew them
Before Mrs. Noah had time to say "Scat!"
"Aha!" laughed the Skipper who watched her pursue them:
"I don't know its name, dear, let's call it 'cat!'"

So born of a sneeze in the Rain of All Ages,
That deluged the mountain, the valley, and plain,
The Cat of your heart hence to this day presages
By sneezing herself that it's going to rain!

—Arthur Gulterman, in N. Y. Times.

A SPIRITED HOAX

THE old colonel was sitting with his legs spread out in front of the fire, and with carpet slippers on his feet was the picture of solid comfort.

"Howdy, son," he said. "I was just thinking of the time in the latter '60s when I was a member of a club that had been organized here shortly before and known as 'The Knockers.' No matter what came up we always knocked it. Every man had a little hammer.

"We had a great deal of fun out of our club and had many peculiar experiences. An old fellow named Brown worked here at a saddler's shop then and he believed that spirits could be prevailed on to come back to earth, and cited experiences of his in Cincinnati, New York, St. Louis and other cities to show that there was something in it. He came to some of us one day and with an air of great secrecy asked if we believed in materialism. We immediately assured him that we did. Then, one by one, he drew off and proposed that we form a small 'circle,' as he called it, and there converse with the inhabitants of the spirit world that he claimed to be able to conjure up. We entered into the spirit of the thing with a whole heap of zest and assured the old gentleman that we were ready to begin at once.

THE PICTURE OF A SOLID COMFORT.

"We rented a room at the hotel, and that night we held our first meeting. The old fellow called us to order and had us sing a little, and then ranged us around the table with the little fingers of each hand barely touching. Then the room was darkened and the fun was ready to begin. For a long half hour we sat there and nothing—THANK YOU, KIND SPIRIT.—was doing. Then one of the boys lifted up his voice and asked Mr Brown by what signs would the spirit manifest itself if by chance one did happen to come in to get a look at us. The old man answered that the spirit would give a loud rap on the table to signify that it was with us. Then if we desired to ask questions it would answer yes or no by means of raps—one rap signified no and two raps, yes. The old man [illegible] away and long till a rap was heard. Mr Brown [illegible] Thank you, kind spirit! and [illegible] conversation took place. Old man Brown asked many questions as to who the spirit was, and these were immediately answered by raps. Every time we heard a rap we exclaimed, 'Thank you, kind spirit.'

SKELETON OF A DEAR FRIEND.

"We kept this up for some time and when at last we got ready to go we were admonished by Brown to say nothing of the occurrence, which we all solemnly agreed to. You see it is very easy matter to rap on the table if you fix your fingers in the right position.

"We continued these meetings for several months and [illegible] we found have surprising [illegible] manifestations as gale, and we had the time of our lives. Finally Kennedy, one of the fellows, said he was going to have a picture of that ghost, or bust. We attempted to dissuade him, but old Brown just laughed and said to let him go on.

"One of the boys had a gutta percha skeleton that he had secured somewhere, and one day he took the skeleton up to the circle room, tied it in an upright position, and took a photo of it. That night, when the circle met, Kennedy toted his camera up to the room, and when the raps began coming in he leveled his picture machine at the darkness under the table and let 'er go. Next day Kennedy developed a really good likeness of the old skeleton. The whole gang of us then went running down to see Mr. Brown and show him the picture. [illegible] us the skeleton as that of a very dear friend of his who had mysteriously disappeared some years before. Then somebody suggested that we hold another circle immediately to see if the spirit would tell us something of himself. That night we met. But we previously bored a hole through the wall and put a piece of garden hose through. At each end of the hose we placed a funnel, and at the end of it in another room we stationed one of our men. [illegible] a little [illegible] against the newspaper correspondent of the town and told him that we were having an interesting time at our séances and invited him to join that night. He grabbed at the chance and was badly excited when we got to the room. That day one of the boys had borrowed a skeleton from a doctor and carried it to an old straw stack about a mile from town and buried it in an old pine box.

"We held the circle and soon got the spirit on the line. All of us asked questions in a rather loud voice, and which were easily overheard by our man in the next room. He immediately answered through the garden hose telephone and his voice sounded so unearthly that it made little chills run up and down our backs. The spirit told us he had been murdered years before, and his body buried in the old straw stack. It said it recognized old man Brown as a former very dear friend, but knew none of the others. Well, sir, old Brown was just hopping. He wanted to hike out right away for the old straw stack, and the newspaper correspondent was just as bad. We got a lot of lanterns and started. We took the whole town we could find, and by the time we got there all were [illegible]. Then we told that we had left town without a spade to dig with. The correspondent walked that long muddy mile back to town for the spade, and he certainly made record time. When he at last reappeared we voted to let him do the digging. He dug over the whole territory before he at last located the skeleton. Dragging it out, he looked at the innocent old thing and says: 'Boys, I've got a beat.' Don't say a word.' We shouldered that old skeleton and waded back to town. It was placed in the window of an undertaker's shop, and people came from all over the country to see the remains of the victim of a horrible murder. The papers from one end of the country to the other were full of it.

"We let it run along about a week, and then let up. I was sending out a little stuff to newspapers once in awhile myself, and I wrote up the hoax. And all the papers printed that. None of the papers reached here then except what I received, and I kept them hidden so old man Brown would not see them. We were wondering how to put him on when one of the boys saw him coming up the street. Grasping that little gutta percha skeleton, he walked down the street swinging it between his fingers. The old man saw it and turned white. He came up to where we were and I handed him a paper with the whole thing in it. He read the article through and then turned around and looked at each of us individually and [illegible] away and never spoke to one of us again.

"Where is he now? Down in the [illegible] where he might be interesting conversation took place. Old man Brown asked many questions as to"—City Star.

THANK YOU, KIND SPIRIT.

SOUTHERN INDIANA FARMERS HAVE BULLETIN SERVICE.

Device in Connection with Rural Mail Delivery — Other Labor-Saving Conveniences in Use in That Section.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The southern Indiana farmer, who too often is unfavorably contrasted with the northern farmer, has the latter distanced in many practical and simple conveniences.

The southern Hoosier has been particularly active in applying his inventive genius to the rural mail service and has put into practical use many little labor-saving devices that his northern brother farmer could copy with profit. He has reasoned it out that the post supporting his rural mail box can serve for other purposes and has grafted on to it a bulletin board. These bulletin boards are small blackboards with a weather strip across the top and along the sides. On this board the farmer or his wife is able to give orders or information to the rural mail carrier or receive information from him.

In some places the farmers and their rural mail carrier have adopted a sort of [illegible] weather [illegible]. The carrier gets the [illegible] before he starts out and with a piece of chalk he indicates fair, stormy, changeable, colder or warmer weather by a sort of hieroglyphics that are understood by the farmer. These boards, standing out prominently before the houses, are also used in posting notices to all passersby on the road or are used much as a doctor's office slate is used in leaving notice that the family is away and will be back in a certain time. People who have come also can leave their "cards" by using the chalk that is kept stowed away under the top of the weather strip. This useful contrivance costs only [illegible] rather than detracts from the rural mail box.

Another contrivance of the farmers of the hills is a hill-climbing rural mail box. The ordinary rural mail box post is placed at the roadside and a wire cable is then stretched from it up the hill to the farm house and is drawn taut. The rural box is equipped with an overhead pulley wheel hitting upon the wire. By use of [illegible] wire the box is drawn up whenever the mail man comes. It is then permitted to run down the wire again to the post, where it is secured by springs. The farmers of the hill land whose farms are some distance from the rural mail box also have adopted such contrivances and to get grade for their mail they stretch it from an upstairs window. These contrivances, especially are convenient during rainy weather and in winter and have proved to be entirely satisfactory.

Another interesting device has been developed by the southern Indiana rural telephone patrons. They have bought extra receivers and insulated wire connections. These extra phones are attached to the "binding plugs" or screws, on top of the telephone box. The farmers have found that these screws always give an open circuit and that, with their own telephone closed they are able to sit and hear all that is being said over the party line. An Indianapolis News man recently was talking over one of these lines and thought he was having a confidential conversation, as there was no interference, all phones being closed. When the conversation was nearing an end a third voice came in on the wire and said that the person speaking desired some information. This brought in another voice and soon a half dozen were talking. It revealed the fact that all along the line people were spending the Sunday afternoon listening to what was going over the telephone wire. [illegible] were interested they wanted more information. Consequently they took down the regular receiver, thus opening their telephones so that they might talk. At first the scheme was a great convenience, but some farmers now find that they cannot have confidential talks over the phone [illegible] of which [illegible] listening in.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism are caused by uric acid in the blood, due to kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart action, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble. Gravel, dropsy, bloating in morning, thick, high-colored urine, frequent urination, [illegible] are other proofs of kidney trouble.

It used to be considered that these troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the Home of Swamp-Root, free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble, by mail. In writing, mention this paper and address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MEYER TO LEAVE ROME.

Present Ambassador to Italy Slated to Succeed McCormick at St. Petersburg.

Washington.—Several diplomatic transfers at European capitals in the near future, among them being the transfer of Ambassador George von Lengerke Meyer from Rome to St. Petersburg. Although will represent a distinct change for Mr. Meyer, the transfer is regarded as a promotion, for while paying a considerable larger salary, it is regarded as a more responsible post. Mr. Meyer has served satisfactorily at Rome for several years and will be succeeded by Henry White.

GEORGE VON L. MEYER.

who practically has been secretary of the legation at London since 1899. Mr. Meyer was born in Boston 47 years ago. He is a Harvard man and a very wealthy merchant and financier, [illegible] as one of the leading business men of Massachusetts, and was importuned for the Rome mission by his state's delegation in congress. He and Mrs. Meyer, who was Miss Alice Wendell, are society leaders of the Back Bay and Hamilton sets, besides owning a cottage at Newport. He took his first degree at Harvard and was a prominent athlete at the university. He is one of the few society men in Boston politics. He has been a member of the common council and board of aldermen of the city and has been speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives. He is a member of the swell north shore hunting, fishing, yachts and golf clubs of New England. He is not a society man of the pronounced brand. When he arrives at St. Petersburg he will succeed Ambassador Robert S. McCormick, who will be transferred to Paris to succeed Ambassador Horace Porter, who is expected to resign diplomatic life and return to private life in this country.

Recalling it afterward he wondered if the occult prompting which had dragged him out of his chair on the Brentwood porch saw to it that he walked upon the strip of matting in the tile-paved corridor and so made his approach noiseless. Also, if the silent monitor bade him stop short of the governor's office at the door, namely, of the public anteroom, which stood ajar?

[illegible] beyond, and for a moment he paused irresolute. Then he boldly went within, crossing the anteroom and standing fairly in the broad beam of light pouring through the open door of communication with the private office.

Four men sat in low-toned conference around the governor's writing-table, and if any one of them had broken up the silent witness would have been discovered. Kent made them down one by one: the governor, Hendricks, the secretary of state, Rumford, the oil man; and [illegible] he stood looking on, almost within arm's reach of the four, hearing distinctly what was said; seeing the papers which changed hands across the table. Then he turned and went away, noiselessly as he had come, the thick-piled carpet of the anteroom muffling his footfalls.

[illegible] himself full length upon the bed, sodden with weariness. For two hours he had tramped the deserted streets, striving in sharp travail of soul to fit the invincible, chance-given weapon to his hand. When he came in the thing was done, and he slept the sleep of an outworn laborer.

CHAPTER XVIII.

DOWN, BRUNO!

For six days after the night of revelations Kent dived deep, personally and by paid proxy, in a sea of secrecy which, for the five pregnant minutes in the doorway of the governor's office, might easily have proved fathomless.

On the seventh day the conflagration broke out. The editor of the Belmont Refiner was the first to smell the smoke and to raise the cry of "Fire!" but by midnight the wires were humming with the news and the entire state was ablaze.

The story as it appeared under the scare headlines the next morning was crisply told. An oil company had been formed with Senator Duvall at its head. After its incorporation it was ascertained that it not only held options on all the most valuable wells in the Belmont region, but that its charter gave it immunity from the laws requiring all corporations to have their organizations, officers, and operating headquarters in the state. By the time the new company was three days old it had quietly taken up its options and was the single big fish in the pool by virtue of its having swallowed all the little ones.

Then came the [illegible] that Senator Duvall had transferred his controlling interest to Rumford—otherwise to the Universal Oil company—that he had served only as a figurehead in the transaction, using his standing, social and political, to secure the charter which had been denied Rumford and his associates.

It had been managed very skillfully; the capping of the wells by the Universal's agent, the practical sealing up of the entire district, being the first public intimation of the result of Duvall's treachery and the complete triumph of a foreign monopoly.

The storm that swept the state when the facts came out were cyclonic, and it was reported, as it needed to be, that Senator Duvall had disappeared. Never in the history of the state had public feeling risen so high; and there were not lacking those who said that if Duvall showed himself his life would not be safe in the streets of the capital.

It was after the Argus had gone to press on the night of [illegible] room and dropping into a chair. "Did I or did I not understand that I was to have my pick of the business when there was anything fit to print?"

Kent gave the night editor a cigar and was otherwise unsparingly particular.

Kent [illegible] clothes on and [illegible] a map of discovery until you have all the elements in the case.

[illegible] the thing had been pulled off. In fact, I've been so busy with other things I've paid much attention to the Belmont end of it."

The desk [illegible] sputtered Hildreth, relieved enough on the gift score. "I'd like to know what business you had to make up in other things in the interests of my news column. You were the one man who knew all about it, or at least you did a week ago."

"Other things more important, I think, have since arisen. I have been detained, as I say."

"[illegible] on the capital case, anyhow; that is one comfort. Anything else, or rather nothing when compared with what we could get out of Kent's apparently fading. They put it on the full day's work."

"I do," said Kent.

"[illegible] Miss Brentwood [illegible] Duval [illegible] the Tribune [illegible] with an inspired article [illegible] the entire capital [illegible] how Rumford's application for the charter was [illegible] the governor's table [illegible] Kent looked up rather helplessly.

"Really [illegible] anything worth repeating at your dinner-table," he protested.

But this [illegible] of his caution.

"You needn't be afraid. I pledged everybody to secrecy before you came. It is understood that we are in executive session. And if you don't know much, you may tell us what you know now more than you knew before you knew so little as you know now."

"Hold on," said Kent; "will you please [illegible] slowly?"

"Never mind," laughed Ormsby. "Miss Portia has a copyright on that. But before you begin, I'd like to know if the newspapers have it straight as far as they have gone into it?"

"They have, all but one small detail. They are saying that Senator Duvall has left the city and the state."

"Hasn't he?" Loring asked.

"He hadn't yesterday."

"My-oh!" said Portia. "They will mob him if he shows himself."

Kent nodded assent.

"[illegible] But I found him."

"Where?" from the three women in chorus.

"In his own house, out in Pentland place. The family has been away since April, and the place has been shut up. I took him the first meal he'd had in 36 hours."

Portia clapped her hands. The butler was made to understand that he was dismissed for good and bade him shut the doors.

"Now sit at the very tip end of the mahogany," she commanded.

Kent had a sharp little tussle with his inborn prudence, thrust it to the wall and told a plain tale.

"It begins in a piece of reckless folly. Shortly after I left Miss Brentwood's last Thursday evening I had a curious experience. [illegible] down-town is diagonally through the capitol grounds, but some undefinable impulse led me to go around on the avenue side. As I was passing the right wing of the building I saw lights in the governor's room, and in a sudden fit of desperation resolved to go up and have it out with Bucks. It was abnormally foolish, I'll confess, I had nothing definite to go on; but I—well, I was keyed up to just about the right pitch, and I thought I might bluff him."

"Mercy me! You do need a guardian angel worse than anybody I know!" Portia cut in. "Do go on."

Kent nodded.

"I had one that night; angel or demon, which ever you please. I was fairly dragged into doing what I did. When I reached the upper corridor the door of the public anteroom was ajar, and I heard voices. The outer door was not latched, but the door between the anteroom and the governor's office was open. I went in and stood in that open doorway for as much as five minutes, I think, and none of the four men sitting around the governor's writing-table saw me."

He had his small audience well in hand by this time, and Ormsby's interruption was almost mechanical.

"Who were the four?"

"After the newspaper rapid-fire of this morning you might guess them all. They were his excellency, Grafton Hendricks, Rumford, and Senator Duvall. They were in the act of closing the deal as I became an onlooker. Rumford had withdrawn his application for a charter, and another straw company had been formed with Duvall at its head. I saw at once what I fancy Duvall never suspected; that he was being [illegible] for the time. They all [illegible] to stand by him—and you see how that promise has been kept."

"Good heavens!" ejaculated Loring. "What a despicable lot of scoundrels! But the bribe; did you learn anything about that?"

"I saw it," said Kent, impassively. "It was a slip of paper passed across the table by Rumford to Bucks, face down. Bucks glanced at it before he thrust it into his pocket, and I had my glimpse, too. It was a draft on a Chicago bank, but I could not read the figures and I doubt if either of the other conspirators knew the amount. Then the governor tossed a folded paper over to the oil man saying: 'There is your deed to the choicest piece of property in all Gaston, and you've got it pretty cheap.' I came away at that."

Elinor's eyes and Penelope's were dancing. Miss Van Brooke's eyes were dancing.

"Go on, Kent," she commanded.

"That is only the beginning."

Kent's smile was of remarkable [illegible]

[illegible] nicott and two others in Gaston, and he took an early train to keep it. The ex-local attorney met him at the station with a two-seated rig; and on the way to the western suburbs they picked up Frazee, the county assessor, and Orton, the appraiser of the Apache Building and Loan association.

"Hunnicott has told you what I am [illegible] party was made up. We all know the property well enough, but to have it all fair and above board, we'll drive out and look it over so that our knowledge may be said to be fully up to date."

Twenty minutes afterwards the quartet was locating the corner of a square in Gaston's remotest suburb; an "addition" whose only improvements were the weathered and rotting street and lot stakings on the bare, brown plain.

"Lots 1 to 56 in block 10, Guilford & Hawk's addition," said Kent, reading from a memorandum in his notebook. "It lies beautifully, doesn't it?"

"Yes; for a chicken farm," chuckled the assessor.

"Well, give me your candid opinion, you two; what is the property worth?"

"The Building and Loan man scratched his chin.

"Say $50 for the plot—if you'll fence it."

"No; put it up. You are having a [illegible]

The two referees drew apart and laid their heads together.

"As property is going here just now $50 for the inside lots, and $100 apiece for the corners, say three thousand for the plot. And that is just about three times what anybody but a land crazy idiot would give for it." It was Frazee who announced the decision.

"Thank you both until you are better paid. Now we'll go back to town and you can write me a joint letter stating the facts. If you think it will get you disliked here at home, make the figure higher, make it high enough so that all Gaston will be dead sure to approve."

"You are going to print it?" asked the Building and Loan appraiser.

"I may want to. You may shape it so that end."

"I'll stand by my figures," said Frazee. "It will give me my little chance to get back at the governor. I had it assessed as nearly second-class property as I could, but he made a fool of me before the board of equalization."

"[illegible] Kent, and they came to the Building and Loan office, where the joint letter of appraisal was written and signed.

Kent caught his train with something to spare, and was back at the capital in good time to keep a dinner engagement at Miss Van Brooke's. He had understood that Ormsby would be the only other guest. But Portia had a little surprise in store for him. From Kent she ascertained that Mrs. Brentwood's asthma was prohibitive of late dinners, had instructed formally as to bring Elinor and Penelope.

Kent had been saying the results of his deep-sea diving in the oil-field investigation to spread them out before Miss Van Brooke and Ormsby in the committee, but he got a setback in his hope when he saw the others.

Portia gave him Elinor to take out, and he would have rejoiced heartily if the talk, from the beginning to the end, had not been persistently general, turning most naturally upon the Universal Oil company's successful coup in the Belmont field. Kent felt [illegible] as much as he could stand [illegible] Elinor for his partner, and he felt [illegible] he was [illegible] the [illegible] upon him.

"You are going to be already to make [illegible] Miss Brentwood [illegible] the talk [illegible] the Tribune [illegible] part of this Brentwood company [illegible] and you are to tell us all about it."

Kent looked up rather helplessly.

FOUR MEN SAT IN LOW-TONED CONFERENCE AROUND THE GOVERNOR'S TABLE

"[illegible] details. One of my men followed Bucks' messenger to Ch[illegible] we couldn't trace the banker here or there, and we know now [illegible] know it is [illegible] on all to with the proper affidavit that the draft was for $[illegible] payable to the order of Bucks & B[illegible]. The [illegible] Chicago [illegible] he transfer from Bucks to Rumford of a piece of property in the outskirts of Gaston. I had this [illegible] and this [illegible] it at a possible but highly improbable $[illegible]."

"Oh, how [illegible]," said Portia in one breath, "does he expect to imagine for a moment that any one would be [illegible] such a possible piece of [illegible] and [illegible] had anything to say about the fatal mistake of the shrewdest criminals [illegible]."

"It was not [illegible]," said Kent, "it should [illegible] be charged that he took money from Rumford [illegible] a clean business transaction to account for it. The deed is recorded; [illegible] nothing to say of the enormous price paid. The phrase is a common form used when [illegible] to the transfer do not wish to [illegible] the price paid. For [illegible] to me it [illegible] and [illegible] valuable consideration. Luckily, we are able to establish conclusively what the other valuable consideration [illegible] was."

"It seems to me that these documents are one equal to anything you want to do," said Loring, polishing his eyeglasses after his ingrained habit.

Kent shook his head.

Brutalizing Influence of the Whipping Post

By MRS. ANNIE G. MURRAY.

Secretary of Board of Guardians of Children's Institutions Department, Boston.

For that strange type of human degradation known as the wife-beater there can [illegible] word of sympathy or [illegible]ation. It is a perfectly natural impulse in any generous nature to express the utmost loathing [illegible] of wife-beating and [illegible] to suggest extravagant penalties for this most contemptible offense.

It seems to me, however, that to adopt the whipping-post as an instrument of punishment for even so low a type of criminal, would be to surrender in some degree to the influence of brutality which the wife-beater himself represents.

Men actuated by the most generous impulses may often do that which is only an imitation of the wickedness that aroused their rage, and how much fury has been perpetuated in the human heart by the attempt to redress the balances of human conduct? Undoubtedly the men who hanged witches were thinking primarily of dealing a blow at the power of Satan, and of freeing human souls from diabolical control. We need [illegible] mistaken.

I think that all progress has been away from the kind of penalty for wrong-doing that the whipping-post represents, and it seems to me that if wife-beating is brutal and degrading, the whipping-post would be hardly less so in its general influence in any community. Both are to be abominated, and many persons might argue that a community [illegible] purpose, and [illegible] brutal a form of punishment as this relic of an era that we have left so far behind us would be worthier of condemnation than the poor, ignorant, nearly always drunken wife-beater.

The whipping post is essentially a barbarous instrument of punishment. It could not fail to have a barbarous influence. Wife beating, certainly, is barbarous also; but wife beating happily is confined to isolated individual cases of moral degeneracy.

NEW POSTMASTER GENERAL

George B. Cortelyou Reenters President's Cabinet After a Short Absence.

Washington.—The only change made by President Roosevelt in his cabinet after his inauguration was in the postal department, where George B. Cortelyou, you has succeeded Robert J. Wynne as postmaster-general. Mr. Wynne has been appointed consul-general at London.

Cortelyou's rapid rise from a stenographer in the executive offices to a seat in the president's cabinet has been entirely through his own efforts. He was born in the city of New York July 26, 1862. He was given a common school education, and afterward graduated by the Hempstead, L. I., institute and the State Normal school, Westfield, Mass. Still later he was graduated from the law schools of Columbian and Georgetown universities, Washington. He entered the public service in 1889, and has been private secretary to various officials. In November, 1895, he was appointed stenographer to President Cleveland and from that date his rapid rise began. He became successively executive clerk, assistant secretary to President McKinley, and finally secretary to the president, serving in that capacity until the death of the last president, when he was reappointed to the place by President Roosevelt, serving him until his selection as the first secretary of the department of commerce and labor. He left that office to become chairman of the republican national committee, and managed the campaign with great ability, bringing it to a close with the largest popular majority ever [illegible]

(Who Succeeds Robert J. Wynne as Postmaster General.)

RAGE FOR EMBROIDERY.

The Old-Style Eyelet Sort Is Now Known as "Anglaise" and Sells for a Very Pretty Penny.

The new spring dresses, waists and hats are so [illegible] that one can hardly await the time when they will be in order.

The charming and useful shirt waist suit will be so much in evidence all day and everywhere, and in so many materials, that hats suitable for these, and also for the severer woollex and [illegible] are among the first important offerings.

These hats show many features, as the [illegible] are [illegible] the hats have acquired more elaboration in shape and treatment; still, they are simple, retaining the character which has made them popular.

Among the many novelties is a new "lingerie" or "tub" hat, which is intended to wear with "tub" suits to match. This is of English eyelet embroidered linen, chambray or batiste, a [illegible] with [illegible] piece, and the underbrim of narrow ruffles of valenciennes lace run on a fitted piece of muslin or washing net or chiffon run on cords, which hold the piece in shape.

Such hats are easily taken apart, laundered and put together again. Of course, they can be worn with different suits, the all white specially, as [illegible] for different suits.

[illegible] Season—that is sure—not only for hat trimmings, but for stocks and girdles to match, shirred, tucked and draped over natty feather-boned foundations.

A very pretty "mushroom" shape is most attractive. It is shown in "lingerie" make-up, with crown of embroidered lawn or linen and brim of lace ruffles, with detachable ribbon trimmings.

Those "mushroom" hats are also seen in the lovely new straws and wood silk braids, with fluffy underbrims that show up charmingly by reason of the uplifting bandeau.

Large transparent hats of Neapolitan, in white, black and colors, are born into the most wonderful arrangements—colonial, Napoleon, Corday, cavalier and Victorian—[illegible] are seen, and many another charming shape, without reference to any particular period, only that it shall enhance the loveliness of the wearer.

Small hats are for the moment more popular, the picture-like shapes are [illegible] and raised until their size is so [illegible] are mostly in [illegible] colors, the materials are soft silk and ribbons in shadings of one color, shaded and [illegible] faces and nets and flowers.

GENERAL SUGGESTIONS.

Mildewed linen should be soaked for several hours in buttermilk and then washed in the usual way.

Never wear new stockings till you have had them washed, for the washing somewhat shrinks and toughens the fiber of the wool and they will [illegible] if worn directly they were bought.

Ordinary washing with soap and water will not generally remove the stains on egg spoons. Take a piece of flannel, damp it and dip it in table salt. Then rub the stains with this and they will vanish [illegible]

If you want [illegible] any vessel you can [illegible] with an infusion [illegible] as much [illegible] as the water will absorb in a little hot water and place it on the sill of the window. When dry you will have a very fair imitation of sand glass.

Egg in a Nest.

Break an egg and separate the yolk from the white. Add a few grains of salt to the white and beat until stiff. Place on a slice of toasted bread, which has first been dipped in boiling salted water. Drop the yolk in the center and bake in a moderate oven until delicately browned.

Class Telephone Receiver.

[illegible] of carbon [illegible] used in telephones [illegible] danger of germ infections will be avoided.

"I am well now and [illegible] than ever before in my whole life."

That is the statement of a woman who had never been well until she was made well by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There are a great many other women in like case. They have never known the joys of perfect health.

For all such women Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a [illegible] and permanent health-giver. It [illegible] the cure of the [illegible] diseases which weaken a woman. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

[illegible] the little moment [illegible] on the side of less meritorious medicines. He may gain your loss therefore accept no substitute for the bowels.

Silent Signals

A slight chill; a little hoarseness; a feeling of constriction about the lungs; a feverish flush of the face—these are Silent Signals. They mean you have taken cold and here

[illegible]

Be warned by these signs. They are the forerunners of Consumption. If you are wise you will see the necessity for the immediate use of

Hale's Honey OF Horehound and Tar

This is not a preparation of doubtful virtue. It has been endorsed by the experience of ears and its value as a remedial agent for lung troubles, and a cure for coughs, [illegible] and throat affections, is well-known.

McCLURE'S for April tempts extravagant praise. Articles of world-wide scope, sound, pertinent, going deeply into great affairs fairly teem in its pages, crowding close with a goodly list of bright, diverting fiction. They go into many fields of human activities, and there is equal diversity among the stories. It is a number that carries breathless interest.

"A ROYAL SLAVE."—Gordon & Bennett's sumptuous production, "A Royal Slave," paid its second annual visit to Corning Opera House, Saturday afternoon and evening, and pleased two good sized audiences. The cast is fully up to the high standard set by the management last year and the show was cordially received. Phil Jean Barnard as Humboldt Agassiz Jones easily carried off the honors by his fine comedy and won fresh praise by doing an exceptionally clever vaudeville turn.—Corning Leader, March 29, 1905.

The posts had been removed from underneath a porch under which Mr. English was working when the roof collapsed and fell, striking Mr. English across the hips, injuring him quite badly. Fortunately some timber broke the force of the blow of the structure or the injury would have proved more serious.

—Charles G. Moore, of Chicago, manager of the Hotel Windermere in that city, spent a few days in town last week with his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Moore. Mr. Moore is a former Wellsboro boy and during his residence in the western metropolis he has been very successful in the hotel business. He is one of the principal stockholders in the company which conducts the Hotel Windermere. The many friends of Mr. Moore were pleased to see him and also glad to know that he is prosperous and happy. He was accompanied here by his brother, Enos D. Moore, who is now employed as floorwalker in the store of S. F. Lizard Co., of Elmira.

Important Banking Change.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Tioga County Savings & Trust Co., held last Friday, the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. was declared. The resignation of Geo. M. Spalding from the directorate of the Company was received and accepted. Mr. Spalding desired to give more time and attention to his personal affairs, and also wished to take an active part in the management of the Tioga Lumber Company, of which he is Secretary and which has extensive lumber interests in Michigan.

George W. Williams, of this borough, was elected a Director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Spalding and was also elected a Vice-President of the Company. By his election the Trust Company has obtained a very valuable aid in the upbuilding of its business, as Mr. Williams possesses a wide acquaintance with the business men and business interests throughout the entire county.

Cost $16 For Shooting a Robin.

Last Saturday an Italian named Stirpa was brought here from Ansonia by Constable John Fisher, of Shippen, charged with shooting a robin. He was given a hearing before Justice O. H. Davis, who fined him $10 and costs, about $8.

Stirpa is one of the gang of laborers employed on the railroad near Ansonia, and it is said that there have been at least 500 robins killed by the Italians for food this spring. It is proposed by the authorities to put a stop to the wholesale slaughter of the birds and stringent measures will be adopted if necessary to make the foreigners comply with the law, which provides a fine of $10 for each bird killed. The man arrested was caught with the dead bird in his possession.

DEATH OF JOHN BACHE

Wellsboro's Oldest Resident and Nestor of the Tioga County Bar.

SKETCH OF HIS ACTIVE LIFE

Oldest Native White Born Citizen of Wellsboro—Successful Business Career—Large Owner of Timber and Real Estate—Simple Obsequies.

Wellsboro has lost its oldest native born citizen, a man who was remarkable for his length of years, business acumen and the active possession on all of his faculties up to almost the time of his death.

When John N. Bache, Esq., passed away at his home on Charles street last Monday evening at 7:25 he had passed his 85th milestone. He was a lifelong resident of Wellsboro and his was a life of unusual length, characterized by that success which invariably attends thrift, economy and integrity in all affairs. He had not been really sick; it was only a breaking down of the vigorous constitution and he died as quietly as he had lived. While the announcement of his death was not unexpected it caused genuine sorrow and regret to many of his old friends and acquaintances.

John N. Bache was born in Wellsboro, March 8, 1820, and celebrated his 85th birthday last month by a dinner to a number of his old friends, which was greatly enjoyed. After completing his education in the public schools of this place he commenced the study of law with his brother-in law, Robert G. White, in 1841, and completed the usual legal course at Yale Law School, in New Haven, Connecticut. In the fall of 1843 he was admitted to the bar of Tioga county and at the time of his death was the oldest member. He personally knew and had a very clear recollection of many of the old-time lawyers who practiced at this bar.

Mr. Bache devoted his attention chiefly to land titles and collections, as jury trials were generally distasteful to him. He served as Deputy Attorney General for about one year. In 1848 he was elected Register and Recorder, served one term, and was afterward chosen as a Justice of the Peace, but he soon resigned the office.

Many years ago Mr. Bache, in connection with his brother William, turned his attention to timber and coal lands and geological explorations. They first called the attention of the Fall Brook Coal Company to the lands now known as the Antrim field, the development of which has added so much wealth and prosperity to the county. He was best known as one of the largest individual land owners in the county.

Mr. Bache was married at Seneca Falls, N. Y., September 1, 1847, to Sarah Stowell, a daughter of Hezekiah Stowell, one of the pioneer lumbermen of Tioga county. She was born in Bainbridge, N. Y., June 30, 1823, and came with her parents to Wellsboro in childhood. Six children were born of this marriage, three of whom grew to maturity, viz.: Jessie S., wife of A. A. Truman; Louisa M., wife of the late L. F. Truman, and Nellie, wife of F. W. Graves, all of whom are residents of Wellsboro. Mrs. Bache died at her home in this borough December 31, 1896, after a residence here of nearly half a century.

In politics Mr. Bache was originally a Whig, but had been a Republican since the organization of that party.

The personal history of the deceased would prove most interesting, as his reminiscences cover incidents in this locality which seem far removed from this generation. During his lifelong residence here his business ventures proved financially successfully. All he accomplished was through his own resources, but it was the practical energy of a never give up spirit that made him one of the town's wealthiest residents. He was honest in all his dealings and without hypocrisy or sham in morals, business, politics or friendship.

Funeral services were held at the house on Tuesday afternoon at [illegible] Rev. William Hakes officiating.

A Pleasant Reception.

The reception [illegible] L. Bailey on Pearl street last Friday evening for Revs. N. L. and F. W. Reynolds, the retiring and the new pastor of the First Baptist church, was very largely attended and was a very enjoyable affair. About 200 persons took advantage of the occasion to express their good wishes to the new pastor and God-speed to the retiring pastor.

The reception committee were Mrs. L. L. Bailey, Mrs. W. D. Furman, Mrs. G. C. Brooks, Mrs. William MacNutty, Mrs. J. A. Beach, Mrs. Ames and Mrs. L. A. Lyon. The receiving party consisted of Rev. N. L. Reynolds, Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Reynolds, Dr. Myra Reynolds and Miss E. Langley.

Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was neatly decorated with red and white carnations and smilax. The service was under the direction of the following ladies, who were attired in white: Mrs. N. B. Leslie, Mrs. F. E. Emberger, Mrs. E. A. Wilcox, Misses Clara Hilbert and Mary Karr. During the evening a purse of $25 was presented to Rev. N. L. Reynolds.

Purchased Coal Company Stock.

Louis P. Miller, a large coal dealer of Elmira and one of the officers of the Morris Run Coal Company, has purchased a large portion of the stock of that company. The Advertiser says: "Mr. Miller has been prominently connected with several coal companies and his connection with the Morris Run Company will probably be the means of regulating the distorted conditions of the regulations between the men and the management."

APRIL FLITTINGS.

Partial List of Those Who Changed Their Place of Residence in Wellsboro.

The past week has been moving week and a very busy one, there being the usual number of spring flitters. Among them were the following:

Herbert Bloom, from the Preeble house on Bacon street to the Murdick house on opposite side of same street.

Charles March, from the Mathers house on East avenue to the Bache house on Grant street.

Horato Reed, from Delmar to the Benjamin house on Conway street.

Thomas [illegible] on Charles street to the Nickerson house on East avenue.

Samuel Gee, from Fischler street into a portion of the Copp house on East avenue.

Leon Bacon, from Conway street to the Hosgland house on Walnut street.

E. A. Nichols, from his farm in Charlestown to the Davis house on Queen street.

Fred Beach, from the Navle house on Queen street to the Hammond house on Purple street.

L. P. Smart, from the Rogers house on Bache street to Matson's new house on Cone street.

Mrs. J. H. Buckley, from her farm in Delmar to her new home, corner of Pearl and Crafton streets.

Jasper Slingerland, from rooms in Harden block to Carey house, corner of Crafton and Walnut streets.

Joseph Gmeiner, from the Copp house on East avenue to the Kress house on Cone street.

N. B. Leslie, from the Kress house on Cone street to the Robinson house on the same street.

Young Burglars at Arnot.

Last Saturday afternoon Gust Anderson and Peter Friske, two young men of Arnot, were brought here by Constable Thomas Mason and Deputy Constable T. J. Johnson and lodged in jail. They are charged with burglary, being caught in the act by Mr. Johnson, who is the company night watchman at that place.

Last Friday night the young burglars entered the general store of H. H. Roberts at Arnot by breaking a window and took goods valued at about $250. The plunder consisted of several watches, a quantity of jewelry, some dry goods, tobacco and pipes. When arrested they admitted their guilt and showed the officers where they had secreted the booty.

More About Calf Buying

An interesting article from E. W. Davis, of Middlebury Center, concerning the calf buying business, together with several letters from our correspondents, are unavoidably crowded out of this issue. The communication from Mr. Davis, in reply to an article which recently appeared in the Philadelphia Herald and republished in the GAZETTE, will be printed next week.

MINERS IN UGLY MOOD

Company Officials and Their Men Given a Warm Reception at Blossburg.

ASSAULTED BY STRIKERS

Stones, Brickbats and Other Missiles Hurled at the Non-Union Men, Two Being Severely Injured—A Cowardly and Unprovoked Attack.

A Blossburg dispatch says that last Saturday evening on their arrival in Wellsboro the union miners who had been before Judge Cameron to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be issued against them, were welcomed at the station by 3000 persons, men, women and children, accompanied by a band. W. S. Nearing, Superintendent of the Morris Run Coal Mining Company, and his assistant, were on the train, as well as the other non-union witnesses. No demonstration was made against these men."

District Attorney Frank S. Hughes, of Blossburg, who has been attending court this week, gives an entirely different version of the above affair, which was termed by one of the city papers as a "[illegible]." Mr. Hughes was a passenger on the train and was also an eyewitness of the "reception" which followed, and which he declares threatened at one time to result in a very serious riot.

The crowd assembled was one of the largest in the history of the town and was composed of the strikers and their wives, many with infants in their arms, all of whom were in an ugly mood owing to the recent wholesale evictions from their homes at Morris Run.

As soon as the company officials and the non-union men stepped from the train they were greeted with derisive shouts and yells. They hurried to the conveyances awaiting them and the [illegible] about the rigs hooting and crying, "Kill the dam scabs" and calling other vile names and epithets. As the drivers whipped up their horses the occupants were showered with stones, bricks and other missiles.

Mr. Nearing and Mr. McDougal were both struck by large stones and one of the rocks made a good-sized hole in the wagon box. The miners in the other wagons were also hit by the flying stones and brickbats while their horses were being driven up Main street at breakneck speed.

Two of the non-union miners who were left behind fared badly, and if District Attorney Hughes and others had not interceded in their behalf they would probably have been seriously if not fatally injured by the mob of enraged strikers.

One of the men, named Louie Katleski, received a deep gash on the head from a stone and the other was knocked about and kicked in a promiscuous manner, sustaining severe injuries. One of the injured men was obliged to take refuge in the office of the District Attorney and the other in a store, where they were compelled to remain several hours before it was deemed safe to let them go out.

During the disturbance District Attorney Hughes directed the band to cease its music and endeavored in every possible manner to preserve order, but his efforts proved of no avail.

Taken as a whole the cowardly attack was an outrage and cannot help but reflect on the heretofore peaceful and orderly conduct and bearing which the miners had maintained throughout the prolonged strike and which had gained them the sympathy of the people in general in this section of the State.

APPOMATTOX DAY.

Union Veteran Legion Will Celebrate 40th Anniversary of Lee's Surrender.

Next Sunday, April 9th, has great meaning to our old soldiers, for this day is the anniversary of General Robert E. Lee's surrender to Grant at Appomattox forty years ago, which practically ended the war. Many of our brave veterans were with Grant in that never-to-be-forgotten campaign.

Encampment No. 105, Union Veteran Legion, will fittingly observe the occasion next Monday. A reunion will be held in Post rooms in the afternoon and a camp-fire will be lighted at the court house, where the following programme will be observed:

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1905.

FRANK CONEVERY, - - Editor and Proprietor

THE operations of the "get-rich quick" trust, whose center is Philadelphia, are [illegible] to South America, with 15,000 dupes and losses of $7,000,000.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT left Washington on Monday for a six weeks' trip, which is to include attendance at the reunion of Rough Riders at San Antonio to-morrow and a hunting trip in Colorado of several weeks duration.

THE St. Louis Globe-Democrat remarks that "It seems a little bit extravagant to be offering $100,000 for a suitable man to superintend and direct the work on the Panama canal, when it is recalled that Columbus discovered America on a salary of $300 a year."

ACCORDING to the memorandum kept by the secretary of Andrew Carnegie, the iron king, his unfilled promises in the matter of endowments for colleges and libraries amounts to $17,000,000. At present Mr. Carnegie is giving at the rate of $30,000 a day to libraries, and is looking for another outlet for his benevolence.

AMONG the bills signed by Governor Pennypacker last week were the following: Extending for one year the period in which tax collectors may have to collect taxes for the payment of which they have become liable. Providing that townships having a population of 250 to the square mile shall be townships of the first class.

AN announcement from the War Office at St. Petersburg gives the exact number of men, guns, horses and tons of supplies which have been sent to the scene of war during the thirteen months since hostilities were begun as follows: Men, 761,477; officers, 13,087; horses, 146,408; guns, 1521; munitions and supplies, 316,321 tons. Taking the officers and men at the round aggregate of 775,000, this means that it would have been necessary for the Trans-Siberian railroad to have landed nearly 2000 men in Manchuria every day of the period under consideration.

HOW LONG, O LORD, HOW LONG.

(From the Philadelphia Press.)

This country is at peace with all the world, but its war expenditures are so heavy that it is now proposed to put a tax on tea and coffee in order to find adequate revenue for gunpowder purposes.

The State of Pennsylvania collects from the people year after year excessive revenues, but in order to keep a large balance on deposit in favored banks and to afford greater opportunity for graft it is proposed to put a tax on coal and oil, putting the producers of coal and oil at a disadvantage in competition with coal and oil producers in other States.

Drunk with power, in State and nation, the Republican party bends itself to the will of a domineering and profligate leadership. How long will the taxpayers, who pay the score and suffer the consequences of governmental corruption and extravagance, slavishly submit themselves to be fleeced?

WOMAN COMMITS SUCIDE.

"I May Be Next to Go," She Said at Funeral the Day Previous.

Mrs. J. E. White, wife of a farmer living at North Fork, Potter county, near Westfield, committed suicide last week Monday. For a week she had been in a melancholy mood and had talked so strangely that it is now [illegible] was demented. On Sunday she attended the funeral of a friend at Roxville and while returning said that she only wished she could exchange places with the one in the casket and then added that perhaps she would be the next one to go.

Monday morning she arose and got breakfast the same as usual and after her husband had departed she told the children to go out doors and play and to take the youngest, a baby of a year old, [illegible] they decided they wanted to go back in the house, but could not find their mother, but heard a noise in the bedroom which was locked.

One of the children then ran to tell the father who was working some distance away. He hurried to the house, burst open the door and found her past all help. She had taken carbolic acid. The deceased was about 29 years of age and was the mother of four young children.

Contract Let for Good Road.

The contract has been let for a stretch of good road over a mile long under the provisions of the Sproul-Roberts bill, in Charleston, beginning at the Wellsboro line on what is known as the State road. Booth & Flinn, of Pittsburg, have been awarded the contract for $11,439.

The people of this part of the State will soon have an opportunity to see what can be done with State aid to secure good roads. When this piece of road is completed it is expected that the demand for good roads from other sections will come with ever-increasing urgency that the appropriation for this county is exhausted. In a few years it is hoped we shall have good roads all [illegible]

CHATHAM GRANGERS FEAST.

An Enjoyable Occasion at Little Marsh—Cute Trick of Smart Alecks.

LITTLE MARSH, April 5.—Tioga County Grange continues to prosper and increase in membership. Saturday evening several members took the fourth degree and one was reinstated. About 100 persons [illegible] which followed the ceremonies. Commissioner H. H. Cooper generously donated the supply of oysters for the occasion. The Academy Corners or Valley Grange, Sabinsville and the Losey Creek Granges were represented, together with members from several of the nearby Granges.

The exercises consisted of brief addresses by Alexander Lattimer, Mrs. E. E. [illegible] George [illegible] by Mrs. D. [illegible] interspersed with vocal and instrumental [illegible] by Mr. and Mrs. E. Sprague and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Curtis. All who took part did themselves great credit and added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

A few evenings since a young man came here and took his girl to a lecture in the church, putting his horse and buggy in the church shed. When ready to return home he discovered that the wheels had been removed from his buggy and the burrs were also missing. Suspicion rests on a couple of smart alecks and "Peeping Toms." If they are caught in perpetrating some of these low-lived tricks we predict they will fare pretty bad.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Rice were the victims of a pleasant April fool trick, a little baby daughter being left at their home [illegible]

Mrs. T. E. Roberts is occupying the house of Sarah Rice, recently [illegible] Mr. Wembly.

Ira Doane, our barber, has moved for the first time in ten years and now occupies a shop separate and apart from his house.

D. E. Cooper, our general merchant and postmaster, has connected his second floor by a stairway and will use it for a show room for a large stock of carpets and readymade clothing.

Mrs. Fred Lewis is visiting at the home of her parents at Galeton.

Mrs. Myra Davis is spending some time in Galeton with Mrs. Clara Hill, who recently fell and cut her hand severly on a broken bottle.

Charles Hawley, of Middlebury, who recently spent a few days here with relatives, expects soon to leave for Earle, Arkansas, where his uncle, H. C. Hawley, is located.

Charles V. Carpenter has moved to the Beach farm, which he has rented.

George Ransome is working the J. H. Ferris farm.

A few days ago a number of notes, leases, etc., belonging to the late L. O. Beach, were sold at auction. One note for $150 was bid off for $48 and presented to the maker of the note. Another for $50, against a well-to-do business man, was struck off for 50 cents by himself.

COAL STRIKE AVERTED.

Central Pennsylvania Operators Agree to Sign the Old Wage Scale.

The people of this section of the State are highly gratified to know that the threatened strike of the soft coal miners of the Central Pennsylvania region has been averted. Representatives of the principal coal mining companies of the district have reached an agreement which precludes the possibility of a strike. The old wage scale is to be maintained. This is based on the payment of 62 cents a ton for pick mining, and is entirely satisfactory to the men.

The representatives of the operators met in Philadelphia last Saturday and after a short session announced that they would sanction the renewal of the general scale for another year. Committees representing the operators and the miners met in Altoona some days ago, but adjourned without reaching an agreement.

If the mines had been closed 45,000 men would have been thrown out of employment and the users of bituminous coal would have been put to great inconvenience. In view of the threat [illegible] New York Central had work held up several hundred cars of coal in the yard at Jersey Shore.

Cunning Sheep Killing Dogs.

Tioga county paid $[illegible] to owners of sheep for ravages done by dogs during 1904, which included fifteen and just one law, and this county is not especially noted as a sheep raising section. The cunning that a dog, incited by a sheep killing disposition will show while engaged in his bloody work, is almost beyond belief. Old time sheep men declare that no dog, after his first experience in killing sheep, will return home with the least outward signs on his body of the way of wool or blood. That where a running stream is not available, the dog pack will take turns in licking clean the coats of their fellow canines of wool and blood, and where it is possible to find a pool of water or running stream of water, the dogs will plunge into this, and as carefully remove the evidences of their crime as a human being who had been engaged in murder.

Candy Eggs Adulterated.

Thousands of boys and girls throughout the State will be deprived of their customary candy Easter eggs if the crusade that has been started in different parts of Pennsylvania by the pure food agent are successful. Chocolate Easter eggs especially come under the ban. It is said that several samples of the coloring matter used in the manufacture of chocolate eggs had been tested and it is alleged that they were found to contain large quantities of paraffine wax and powdered marble. This is unfit to put in the stomach of a child, the inspectors say, and there will be wholesale prosecutions [illegible]

INJUNCTION ARGUMENT

Resume of the Evidence Given Before Judge Cameron Last Week.

DECISION OF THE COURT

Awaited With Great Interest by the Parties Directly Concerned and the Public Generally—Evidence as Shown by the Company is Very Weak.

Last Thursday morning argument was resumed on the motion to dissolve the temporary injunction issued by Judge [illegible] restraining miners at Morris Run. The Court reserved his decision [illegible] and asked the parties proceed to the evidence.

There are twenty four defendants "and their associates" named in the plaintiff's bill and they are charged, substantially, with having "men followed and surrounded, on public highways and elsewhere, certain employes and workmen of the [illegible] who desired to remain in its employment, and by threats of personal harm and injury, and angry words and violent and abusive conduct and gestures, and by assaults, attempted to prevent, intimidate and debar and have succeeded in intimidating and thereby preventing and deterring certain employes from remaining in the employment of the said plaintiff Company."

The defendants by their answer filed deny every material allegation contained in the plaintiff's bill.

The first witness sworn [illegible] was [illegible] Superintendent of the Morris Run Coal Company. Mr. Nearing could not swear, from personal knowledge, to having heard any threats directed against the strike breakers by the miners at Morris Run, neither could he testify to having personal knowledge of any assaults or intimidation directed against these men he had brought in. He said he had heard of intimidations, etc., but of course this could not be taken as evidence. He did testify, however, that on the 23d of March, on the public highway in Blossburg, he was surrounded by a number of the strikers, one of whom said to him, "You are against the union, d[illegible] you, I'll kill you." He also testified that a few days after this as he was coming down the street in Morris Run some of the strikers called him a "scab." This was substantially all the Superintendent had to offer in the premises.

Malcom McDougal, the Assistant Superintendent for the Coal Company, was the next witness called for the plaintiff. He corroborated Mr. Nearing's testimony as to the trouble at Blossburg when one of the strikers threatened to kill the latter. He also testified to having gone to Bernice, Pa., and made contracts with sixty men there to come to Morris Run to take the place of the strikers. These sixty men, with their families in many instances, were the ones who arrived in Morris Run on the morning of the 17th of March. He testified to having seen the strikers stop some of the new men on the street, attempting to bribe them not to enter the employ of the Company and offering to pay their expenses back home. He could not testify, however, to having personal knowledge of any threats, intimidations or assaults directed against the strike breakers.

W. H. O'Donnell, bookkeeper for the Company, corroborated to a great extent the testimony of the last two witnesses, and testified further that he was at the station at Morris Run when the train bearing the crowd from Bernice came in, and that the strikers then made a demonstration, crying "scabs," surrounding the men and blocking their way to the street.

Ralph Taber, an employe of the Company, called by the plaintiff, testified to having been assaulted by strikers as he was on his way home from work on Saturday night in August last. He said there were about twenty-five strikers in the crowd and that six of them had drawn recolvers and by threats of personal violence made Taber and his companions promise not to go to work again for the Company. [illegible] corroborated by the companions mentioned, Chas. Hawthorne and David Colgrove.

Mrs. Rupjock, the wife of one of the men brought in from Bernice, said she was offered $[illegible] if she and her husband would leave Morris Run, and that if they did not leave they would be killed. Mrs. Rupjock was corroborated in this by Sophia Blycock, who is also the wife of one of the strike breakers.

Harry Vermilyea, Shodeus Spencer and Alfred Spencer [illegible] had been assaulted by the strikers on the evening of the 14th of March, as they (Vermilyea and the Spencers) were returning to Covington after seeking employment at Morris Run.

Martin Wallace, one of the Bernice men, testified to having been approached by three of the strikers who offered him $75 if he would try and influence the strike breakers not to go to work, and threatened to kill him if he did not comply with their wishes.

John McDevitt, a strike-breaker from Philadelphia, and Abel Whittoken, night watchman at Morris Run, testified to having been threatened and assaulted by the strikers.

This was about all the evidence offered on the part of the complainant except that of several witnesses who swore that they were present at the arrival of the train on the morning of March 17th, and that there was some noise and confusion caused by the strikers.

On Friday morning at 11:30 the plaintiff rested.

The evidence offered by the witnesses [illegible] the material allegations contained in the injunction bill.

Hugh Boyle swore offered her $100 to induce his husband to leave Morris Run, and also she avers threatened to kill them if they did not leave, was the first witness called for the defendants by his counsel for the defendants. He testified that he was at Mrs. Ripjock's house on the day that he went there for the purpose of buying a cow which he had heard she wished to sell. He denied that he [illegible] against the wishes of her husband, and that he did not offer her any money to leave Morris Run. The witness admitted that the cow was purchased with money supplied him by the union.

Harry Willock, one of the strikers, was the next witness called. He testified to being about the hall in the evening of the day the strike breakers came; that there was a sort of union meeting held there that evening and many of the men were present. He denied [illegible] or making any threats, nor did he know of any picketing or intimidating having taken place.

Thomas Smith was at the station the morning the non-union men came into Morris Run. He testified that there were probably 150 men gathered about the station and on the road leading to town. He denied hearing or making any threats and said that the crowd was quiet and orderly in every way; that there was no interference with the strike-breakers on their march to the hall, where they went first from the station, and during the entire period from the time the non-union men came there up to the present he had not known of a single instance where a threat or even vile language had been directed against the men.

David Estep, of Blossburg, president of sub-district No. 9, U. M. W. A., swore that he had [illegible] not to intimidate or [illegible] Company. He also appointed peace committees, whose business it was to keep watch of the strikers and see that there was no disturbance; to mingle with the men brought in by the company and protect them. This peace committee was also to go to the mines in the morning to see that there was no demonstration on the part of the union men.

Mr. Estep is the man whom Martin Wallace swore offered him $75 to use his influence to keep the men from going to work and threatened to kill him if he did not. Mr. Estep admitted offering Wallace money but denied making any threats.

James Purcell, district organizer U. M. W. A., corroborated Mr. Estep as to the orderliness of the strikers and denied ever hearing one of the non-union men threatened or intimidated in any way. He was at the head of a peace committee and was at the mines the morning the strike-breakers went to work. He testified that there were no vile names called; that the nature of the crowd was quiet and friendly.

Robert Lundie sworn, denied having uttered or heard any threats or intimidations directed against the new men during the entire period since the strike breakers came to Morris Run. This evidence was substantiated by about a dozen witnesses.

Sheriff Dorsett, sworn for the defense, testified that he did not know of a single instance of violence or threats being directed against the new men. He said he had mingled with the union men and had attended one of their meetings. He had no knowledge of any picketing or intimidating. The Sheriff went into Morris Run on the morning of March 17th with the strike breakers and was there for two days at that time. When the train bearing the new men stopped at the station the strikers gathered there, stood back and allowed the men to walk unmolested to the hall.

The Sheriff has been in Morris Run most of the time since the 14th of March, and he testified that he had never seen any disorder, never heard any threats of violence, no vile language, nor had he personal knowledge of any assaults being made. In several cases when the Company notified the Sheriff that the injunction had been violated he made an investigation but failed to find that there had been any violation of the provisions of the injunction.

The foregoing is, in substance, the testimony brought out by counsel for the Company, and is, it will be noted, largely negative in its nature and in direct opposition to the testimony offered by many of the witnesses for the plaintiff Company.

The taking of evidence was concluded Saturday morning, and all witnesses in the case were excused from further attendance.

Saturday afternoon F. S. Hughes, Esq., opened the argument for the Company. He was followed by Maj. Merrick, J. A. Gleason, Esq., and M. W. Fulman, Esq., counsel for the strikers.

H. F. Marsh, Esq., then presented the argument for the complainants, and at 5:30 o'clock court adjourned until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The argument in the case proceedings occupied the attention of the Court all Monday afternoon, and for that reason the injunction issue was not taken up again until 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning, at which time Maj. Geo. W. Merrick presented the conclusions of law for the defense, being followed by his associate, Hon. R. K. Young.

In the afternoon, owing to the funeral of the late John N. Backus, the court did not convene until 3 o'clock, when [illegible] Esq., made the final argument for the plaintiff [illegible]

There were a large number of authorities on the several questions raised and, should the Court examine them all, it is probable that an opinion will not be handed down [illegible] days.

Burned Out.

The farm house and barn of Lewis E. Thornton on the Marsh creek road, about two miles from Stokesdale Junction, were destroyed by fire together with most of their contents last Saturday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock. The entire family was away from home at the time, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton being in Wellsboro.

The fire originated from burning brush in a neighboring field. The fire communicated to the dry grass and the blaze crept to the Thornton farm [illegible] the buildings. The flames had gained such headway [illegible] it was [illegible] loss is estimated at $1,500, with no insurance.

The family of Mr. Thornton has been provided with accommodations at the home of his brother, Silas Thornton.

Death of A. J. Corwin.

A. J. Corwin, a prominent and well-known resident of Millerton, died last Saturday of acute indigestion, aged 61 years. Mr. Corwin had resided in Millerton all of his life. He was an auctioneer and cattle buyer. "Jack" Corwin was a good natured, big hearted fellow and had a host of friends who sincerely regret his death. He was known in Wellsboro and other parts of the county, having filled the office of Constable in Jackson township for ten years.

Mr. Corwin was taken ill at a vendue at which he was acting as auctioneer last Friday afternoon and was taken home, where he died the next day. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. D. H. Everts, of Big Flats, N. Y., and Misses Harriet and Marguerite Corwin, living at home. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Engineer Asleep at His Post.

A light engine north bound ran into the caboose of a freight train which was standing on the main track at Blackwells at 6 o'clock on Monday morning. The pedestal was knocked off the cabouse and two freight cars damaged.

The accident occurred in broad daylight when the track was visible for many feet ahead. The engineer of the north bound locomotive is said to have admitted that he was asleep at his post.

WOMEN NOT TRUTHFUL

This Statement Has Been Unjustly Made, Because Modest Women Evade Questions Asked By Male Physicians.

Mrs. J. H. Farmer — Mrs. Ella Lee

[illegible] "Women are [illegible] to their physicians [illegible] should be [illegible] but [illegible] gard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked, even by her family physician. This is especially the case with unmarried women.

Is it any wonder, then, that women continue to suffer and that doctors fail to cure female diseases when they cannot get the proper information to work on?

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham. To her they tell every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients than the most [illegible] who never think of asking questions them.

If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will advise you free of charge.

The fact that this great boon, which is extended freely to women by Mrs. Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters received by her prove. Many such grateful letters as the following are constantly pouring in.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands A Woman's Ills.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. [illegible] 98 pounds to 122 pounds."

Mrs. J. H. Farmer of 2809 Elliott Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot thank you enough for what your advice and medicines have done for me. They have done me more good than all the doctors I ever had.

"For the last eight years I have suffered with female troubles; was very weak; had nervous prostration, and could not do my work; but I am happy to say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made a [illegible] of me. I am in perfect [illegible] health."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record for actual cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

SEEDING IN PROGRESS IN WESTERN CANADA.

Mild Weather Is Bringing Thousands of Settlers.

The splendid yields of wheat, oats and barley produced by the farmers of Western Canada and the excellent prices received for the same, have been the means of giving an increased interest throughout the United States. As a result the inquiries made of the Agents of the Canadian Government have nearly doubled over those of the same period last year. Railroad companies are putting on increased carrying capacity to meet the demand made upon them for carrying passengers and freight. Everything points to a most prosperous year. There is room for hundreds of thousands [illegible] opened up for settlement this year.

It is quite interesting to look through the letters received from the Americans who have settled in Western Canada during the past few years. [illegible] is surprising how few there are who have not succeeded. An extract from a letter written by Mr. Geo. M. Griswold, of Red Deer, Alta., formerly of Grever, Montana, written on the 2d of January, is as follows:

"I am located one and one-half miles from a beautiful lake ten miles long, where there is church, school, three stores, creamery and two post offices. The fine stock, both cattle (cows and steers), horses, hogs and sheep are rolling fat, grazing in pasture to-day, just a little snow, hardly enough for good sleighing, as we just had a Chinook which has melted the roads and laid bare the fields and pasture. There are 100 wheat, oats, barley and flax raised here, also winter wheat. [illegible] timothy hay for export to British Columbia. This is a mixed farming-and-dairy country. This is the right time [illegible] West, as it was one years ago in the United States. We are free from wind [illegible] and alkali here and have fine clear, soft well and spring water at a depth of from 5 to 25 feet, and lots of open ever flowing springs."

Telegraphic advices from Medicine Hat say that seeding has commenced at Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and other points. At the former place the temperature moderated gradually until on the 19th the maximum was 45 and the minimum 26. Thermometer readings since then have been as follows: 20th, 47 and 28; 21st, 54 and 24; 22d, 56 and 39; 23d, 48 and 40; 24th, 48 and 26.

During the last few days in February considerable plowing was done near Lethbridge. P. A. Pulley, a recent arrival from Montana, plowed and harrowed 15 acres and E. Lallberty about the same amount. Rev. Coulter White has also been harrowing his farm. All report the ground frost free and in excellent condition. Bricklaying has also begun in town. At Hartney, further east, on the 25th of February the sun was warm and bright, wheeled carriages were in use and the plowed fields look as if they are ready for the press drills. There is every appearance that spring has arrived, but farmers do not wish to be deceived by appearances and consequently have not commenced to use their bluestone and seed wheat.

PAIN SUFFERED BY MR. MARSTON AS GREAT AS MORTAL CAN STAND.

For Six Months He Could Not Turn in Bed—He Tells of a Remedy Which Has Given Perfect Relief.

The case of Mr. Marston shows that sciatica can be cured, and none afflicted by it should allow himself to be disheartened. He was first stricken about a year ago, and for six months he suffered pain which he thinks the most intense that any man could possibly stand.

[illegible] Mr. Marston also the following [illegible] was attacked by a numbness or dull feeling just back of my [illegible] hip. [illegible] was, but thought it was simply a [illegible] that would wear away in a short time. It didn't, however, and soon the pain became so very bad that every step was torture for me. When I [illegible] succeeded in getting home, it was [illegible] as much as I could do to reach my [illegible] and get to bed.

[illegible] when he had examined me he said I had sciatica. He prescribed for me, and advised me not to try to leave my bed. The advice was unnecessary for I couldn't get out of bed if I wanted to. It was impossible for me to turn from one side to the other. The moment I attempted to move any part of my body, the pain became so excruciating that I would have to lie perfectly motionless.

"I suffered this tortured life six months without getting any relief. Then I discharged the doctor, and on the advice of a friend I bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began to take them, three at a dose, three times a day. I was determined to give them a thorough trial.

"Two months after I began to use them I was able to leave my bed and walk about the house, and a month later I was entirely cured and able to go about my work as usual. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine I ever used, and I heartily recommend them to anyone who suffers from sciatica."

HOME-MADE POST DRIVER.

Machine Which Will Prove a Boon to the Farmer When Building Fences.

A special post driver is very useful where one has a large number of posts to drive. The figure shows a machine which may be made by the ordinary farm carpenter. [illegible] Farm and Home. It is designed to be placed upon the running gears of any common farm wagon. The frame consists of two sills, a, 6x6 inches by 12 feet long, which are framed together by cross-pieces at b and c, so that they lie two feet apart. At [illegible] these are [illegible] guides d [illegible] 6 inches [illegible] long [illegible] e, 20 inches apart. The guides are held upright by braces, f.

A pulley is attached to the cross bar at the top of uprights, through which passes the rope that is then passed over a hand crank windless, h, on the sills. The maul is a solid block of tough oak 2 feet wide by 1½ feet thick and 2 feet long. It has a groove on each side 2 inches deep and 4 inches wide, which works over the guides. At the top is spiked an iron ring into which works the trip, i, which drops into the ring and releases when the arm, j, comes in contact with the latch, k. The follower, s, supports the trip and is attached firmly to the end of hoisting rope.

The whole machine must be securely fastened to the bolsters of the wagon by placing piece, x, at the sides of the sill. The forward end must be secured to the axle by a chain around the sills. The operation of this apparatus is quite easy—for two men. Drive over the place where the post is to be set until the maul is directly over the spot. Place the sharpened post in position, raise the maul with the windlass, and repeat until the post is firmly driven.

HANDY BUSHEL BOXES.

Crates Should Be Prepared for Use in the Orchard and Garden Next Summer and Fall.

The handiest thing on the farm for handling vegetables and apples as bushel slated boxes, like those shown in the cut. Made with oak posts and elm slats well nailed, they will last for many years if kept under cover when not in use, says the Farm and Home. The boxes are 16 inches long, 12½ inches wide and 12 inches deep, inside measure. When made up one box can be nested inside of two others, so that they can be handled in bunches of three. The inch stuff is heavy enough for slats except top and bottom, which should be 7-8 in.

Novel Smoke House.

My neighbor has a smokehouse that I must tell you about, writes a correspondent of the Farm Journal. He has [illegible] stakes in an orthodox way, the stakes being turned a barrel [illegible] had hole sawed in the top for a whip to hang the hams and bacon. Then he simply puts in a few shovelfuls of hickory ashes and his smoking material is on, and that is about all there is to it. The fire is easily attended to from the front of the stove, and the meat is smoked with the least possible amount of trouble.

Feeding the Horse.

There is a certain amount which may vary under different circumstances which a horse can eat and which will sustain him and keep him in a good healthy condition. Anything more than this is just as injurious as any more less. This amount can only be ascertained by experiment as no two horses require exactly the same quantity of food.

An Ex-Sheriff Talks.

Scott City, Kan., March 20th.—(Special.)—Almost every man you meet tells of some of the most deadly of kidney diseases by Doan's Kidney Pills. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism and Bladder troubles in fact any disease that is of the kidneys or caused by disordered kidneys is readily cured by this great kidney remedy.

But it is in curing the earlier stages of kidney complaint that Doan's Kidney Pills are doing their greatest work. They are preventing thousands of cases of Bright's disease and other deadly ailments by curing Kidney Disease when it first shows its presence in the body.

Speaking of this work Ex-Sheriff James Scott of Scott County, says:

"I have used eight boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and must say that they are just [illegible] Kidney Disease. We have tried many kidney medicines but Doan's [illegible]"

LITTLE MILL WORKERS

TRUE TALES TOLD BY CHILD SLAVES UNDER OATH TO THE ANTHRACITE STRIKE COMMISSION.

These Little Girls Stood All Night In the Midst of Dangerous, Whirling Machinery For a Mere Pittance, and [illegible] ence Has Proved Inefficient.

Conditions surrounding child labor in Pennsylvania have been such that the State has become a gathering place for factories that rely upon cheap labor, no matter how obtained for great profit.

Particularly true is this of the silk and woolen factories that have [illegible] the schools of the anthracite and bituminous coal regions of thousands of children. For these little ones the bill which has been framed and modi- [illegible] sylvania Child Labor Committee [illegible] safeguard against future imposition.

The character [illegible] that has been received from these children of the [illegible] is best told in the official notes of testimony given before the Anthracite Strike Commission in Scranton, Dec. 15 1902. Following are excerpts from that evidence.

Theresa McDermott called to the stand.

How old are you? Eleven past.

Are you working anywhere? Yes sir in the silk mill.

Here in Scranton? No sir up in Dunmore.

How long have you worked there? About four months.

Days or nights? Days.

What time do you go to work? We start at seven o'clock in the morning.

What time do you stop at night? Six o'clock.

What do you do there? I learned reeling.

Stand up or sit down? Stand up.

What do you get a week? About $2.

Have you been to school? Yes sir.

How far did you get in the readers? Third reader.

Anna Denko called.

How old are you? Thirteen.

What do you work? In the silk mill.

Do you work days or nights? Nights.

What time do you go to work? I start to work at half past six.

How long do you work? Twelve hours.

You are about thirteen hours altogether going and coming to the mill and working? Yes sir.

You go home at half-past six in the morning? Yes sir.

What time and summer? Winter and summer.

How long have you worked there? I am now [illegible] here over a year.

Do you stand up or sit down? Stand up all night.

What do you do? I twist.

Do you stop in the middle of the night to eat? We have half an hour.

How much do you get? I get five cents and a half an hour.

For twelve hours or ten? We work [illegible] hours.

[illegible] is the law in this state about working in textile factories do you know Mr. Torrey? Mr. Torrey—[illegible]

The Chairman—Any law about working at night?

Mr. McCarthy—No no law about working at night.

By the Chairman.

Would you rather go to school? We can't. I have to go to work.

Would you rather work in the mill than to live out at service? I would rather live out at service than go to the mill.

Commissioner Parker—Would you rather go to school than go to the mill? Yes sir.

The Chairman—I think the father ought to be seen. Mr. Torrey and the employers too. There is no use in disguising the fact that it may be a necessity but there must be many cases in which the fathers and mothers give their own consent to sin of the flesh and blood of their own for the money to help their [illegible] when there is no absolute necessity for it. It is an outrage.

Helen Siegel called.

[illegible]

past.

[illegible]

Mr. D.—Are there any mills besides silk mills?

Mr. B.—Yes, button factories and various other things.

The Chairman—Is there any law in this state gentlemen, about night labor for children?

No answer.

CHILDREN FED TO MOLOCH.

Dr. Felix Adler Thus Characterizes the Labor of Children.

Humanitarians as well as materialists have raised their voices in protest against the traffic in children's strength at the expense not merely of the child but of the community.

Collier's Weekly voices this protest and makes incidental comment upon conditions in Pennsylvania in the following editorial:

Child labor in England began when [illegible] as Dr. Felix Adler has [illegible] somebody had the idea of shoveling all the unowned and unloved children into factories. Children were fed to machines as literally as in ancient idolatry they were fed to Moloch. They worked fourteen hours a day and rotted by the thousand. A parliamentary inquiry showed the case of a seven-year-old boy whose father used to wake him before daybreak, carry him to the mill and leave him there to tend a machine for sixteen hours a day. Women crawled through two-foot galleries on their hands and knees, dragging by a long chain attached to a leather belt a cart holding three hundred or four hundred pounds of coal. How is it, asked the strong Jewish thinker, that human beings are subjected to such brutality? Why is it that in England an Anglo-Saxon country where woman is supposed to be a kind of goddess the womanhood was crushed out of little girls and grown women groveled and dragged carts? Two years ago there were [illegible] children under twelve years of age at work in mines in Pennsylvania [illegible] under state laws. Elizabeth Barrett Browning [illegible] poet of England. How long, oh, christian nation, will you trample on a child's heart? This says Dr. Adler is not Russia. What do you think of our own czars of industry?

It has been said that the Child Labor question is all gone for a sentimental issue. While sentiment has its influence, the sentiment of overwhelming majority there is also a matter-of-fact view that of the value in body and mind in mature skill, work and intelligence in proportion as it is known that the state of Pennsylvania is losing through the harsh laws that now affect child labor. Private city jail and reformatory [illegible] insane asylum every slum and [illegible] an argument that cries out against neglect of right of children.

[illegible] until bone, muscle and brain sufficient to the task shall have matured. He knows that a worthless horse would be the result of premature work. Parents, employers, legislators, citizens of Pennsylvania, generally are less regardful of the mental and physical welfare of the children of this state.

[illegible]

Because there is an inherited tendency to consumption it does not follow that the heir to this sad legacy must die. [illegible] are marked—a cough being the first and most prominent. [illegible] indication of peril with Hales Honey of Horehound and Tar and in three days it will have vanished and with it all cause of apprehension. No matter how delicate the lungs may be, or how strong the predisposition to consumption a speedy cure is absolutely certain. Pikes Toothache Drops—cure in one minute.

[illegible]

How long have you worked there? One year.

Do you work days or nights? Nights.

How many hours? What time do you go home and what time do you get back? I go at half past six and leave the mill at half past six in the morning.

How far do you live from the mill? About a mile from home. It takes me an hour to get to the mill.

What do you do? Carry bobbins.

Carry them from one place to another? No, one place. [illegible] and I take the empty [illegible] off the frame and clean the [illegible] and put it on a board.

Do you stand up or sit down? I have to walk around to get the bobbins and stand up and clean them.

How long have you worked nights? One year.

Always worked nights? Yes.

How much do you get? Three cents an hour.

Have you a certificate of your age as required by law? No, they don't require certificates. Does they would permit us in the mills unless you have a certificate.

What does the certificate show? That I was 13.

How do they get thirteen on the certificate when you are not twelve? Father swore I was thirteen, of course.

Mr. Darrow—Mr. Burns, would you just as soon tell the commission how many silk mills there are and how many other mills employ girls?

Mr. Burns—They are scattered all around.

Mr. A.—Do the mills employ such girls?

Mr. B.—[illegible]

Mr. D.—[illegible]

Mr. B.—No.

Your doctor will tell you that thin, pale, weak, nervous children become strong and well by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Small doses, for a few days.

Sarsaparilla

The change is very prompt and very marked. Ask your doctor why this. He has our formula and will explain.

TAKE SOUTHERN ROUTE

Largest Battleships of Russian Fleet Detached.

President In the Wilds—More Rockefeller Gifts—Dodd Defends Standard—Good Condition of Winter Wheat—Deaths From Collapse of Municipal Reservoir at Madrid.

Russia's information of Rojestvensky's fleet, its location, its destination and intentions, is based solely on foreign dispatches which are all too meagre to prevent a quick-ripening crop of rumors, according to one of which the adverse fleets have already joined battle.

Some of these despatches are attributed to Baltic ports, the operations division of the staff, and Admiralty headquarters, but these do not appear to impart any light or clarify the situation.

Some naval officers conjecture the four battleships are detached in order to effect a junction with Vice Admiral Nebogatoff's division, but general credence is given to the report that the battleships are taking a southern route through the Sunda straits, the selection of the singular route being regarded as in the nature of a feint and to minimize the danger of a torpedo boat attack on the mainstays of the fleet.

Meanwhile events in Manchuria have come to a pause and at home the main attention is being paid to the work of the Bouligan commission, which is charged with formulating the plan for the representative assembly promised by the imperial rescript of March 3.

The summary closure of the lawyers' congress in St. Petersburg on Monday in the midst of the opening session of what promised to be a repetition of the Moscow conference of doctors, manifests the firm hand with which Governor General Trepoff is managing the difficult situation.

Base of Japanese Fleet.

The Pescadores, a group of islands off Formosa, is the base of the Japanese fleets under Admiral Togo according to advices received at Vivtoria, B. C., by the steamship Athenian. The Japanese fleets with a base at the Pescadores have recently been reinforced by a squadron composed of vessels withdrawn from the blockade squadron which watched the northern approaches to Vladivostock until mid-March.

There are four Russian cruisers, 12 torpedo craft and eight submarines ready to place in the battle line at Vladivostok, according to the blockade runners. Repairs on the Gromoboi have been completed. The garrison is a strong one. There is a good supply of provisions in store, but the coal supply is short.

Prospect of Naval Battle.

There is reason to believe Admiral Rojestvensky's entrance into the China sea has been followed by orders for the cruisers Gromoboi, Rossia and Bogatyr, which have been ready for some time at Vladivostok, to put to sea.

Some naval officers express the opinion that Rojestvensky, having now safely navigated the straits, instead of sailing north to meet the Japanese can afford to calmly await Vice Admiral Nebogatoff with his division of the squadron, who could arrive there in about three weeks.

Japanese Advancing in a Crescent.

The correspondent at St. Petersburg of the London Daily Times telegraphs: The latest official information leads to the belief that the Japanese are advancing in cresent formation, Oku on the left, Nodzu on the center and Kuroki and Kawamura on the right, and with a total strength of 475,000. It is feared that Linevitch will be compelled to withdraw.

Complete Seat of Government.

In a suite of rooms on the second floor of the Hotel Worth at Fort Worth, Texas, the executive seat of the United States government has been temporarily established. All mail intended for the eyes of President Roosevelt is directed to this apartment and, in the absence of President Roosevelt, who is hunting coyotes and jack rabbits over the Kiowa and Comanche reservation in Oklahoma, such mail is given attention by Secretary Loeb.

The president is accompanied on his expedition by General S. B. M. Young, Colonel Cecil Lyon, Captain Burke Burnett, an ex-Confederate, and Sloan Simpson, a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders regiment. Lieutenant G. R. Fornoff, Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York, J. R. Abernathy, a wolf catcher, Captain Patrick Dooling and Capt. William McDonald, guides.

No Guns Used in Wolf Hunt.

President Roosevelt's wolf hunt began early Monday morning at Camp Roosevelt, 18 miles southeast of Frederick, Oklahoma. A pack of 40 dogs under the direction of John Abernathy, a wolf killer, chased the game. Three wolves were killed before dinner, the president being always at the head of the procession of riders. The hunt was resumed at 1 p. m. with the party of riders reduced to 10 men. No guns are used.

Governor Thomas B. Ferguson will arrive on Wednesday to greet the president.

$200,000 Rockefeller Gift.

A gift of $200,000 from J. D. Rockefeller to the American Baptist Missionary union was announced by Treasurer C. W. Perkins, at a meeting of the executive committee. One-half of the amount was received last Friday. Treasurer Perkins stated that an additional $100,000 from the same source was at the committee's disposal, to be used for the construction of mission buildings in foreign lands. Both gifts, the treasurer stated, were solicited by officers of the union. Mr. Perkins said after the meeting: "No action is even taken in regard to the acceptance of gifts and the usual course has been adopted in this instance. No one suggested that the gift ought not to be accepted. Every one seems grateful for such generous contributions."

Dodd Defends Standard.

Mr. F. T. C. Dodd of New York, chief solicitor of the Standard Oil company, gave out a statement with reference to the recent discussion as to the acceptance of a gift of $100,000 offered by John D. Rockefeller for missionary work. Mr. Dodd declares that the statement that Mr. Rockefeller made his money dishonestly "is false, is vile and [illegible] slander, [illegible] in the pretended interest of [illegible] any [illegible]."

Mr. Dodd then says that the Standard Oil company does not own a share of stock of any railroad company, does not control any railroad company and that since the enactment of the interstate commerce law has not received lower rates than other shippers by rebates, arrangements, devices or plans of any character.

President Smith Sustained.

At Salt Lake City Joseph F. Smith was sustained as prophet, seer and revelator of the Mormon church by unanimous vote of the members in the opening session of the 75th annual conference. When a vote was taken to sustain the 12 apostles, two hands were raised in dissent.

One of the dissenters rose to explain his vote, but was not permitted to speak, President Smith merely saying that he could present his objection to the proper authorities. The vote was cleared [illegible]. The members who dissented afterwards said that they desired to protest against sustaining such officers of the church as live in polygamy.

Snow Slide Passed Over Him.

A Leadville dispatch says A. L. Foster of Twin Lakes had occasion to go to his claims in Lost Canon last Monday, and as he was ascending the hill a mass of snow several acres in extent began to move. Escape was impossible. Foster kicked off his snow shoes, and when the [illegible] him he was carried down the hillside for about 50 feet.

Knowing that if he was carried to the bottom of the gulch he would be killed he dug his hand down into the snow and grabbed the limb of a tree which broke. He grasped another one, to which he was able to hold on until the mass of snow passed over him.

Good Condition of Winter Wheat.

The monthly report of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture will show the average condition of winter wheat on April 1 to have been 91.6 against 76.5 on April 1, 1904; 97.3 at the corresponding date in 1903, and 83.3, the mean of the April averages of the last 10 years.

The average condition of winter rye on April 1 was 92.1, against 82.3 on April 1, 1904; 97.9 at the corresponding date in 1903 and 87.9 the mean of the April averages of the last 10 years.

Death of a Veteran Editor.

Dr. Julien Taintor Williams, editor of the Dunkirk Observer, died Monday, aged 77 years. He was the oldest native born citizen of Dunkirk and served the city as councilman, president and city clerk. He represented Chautauqua county four terms in the assembly. He was a graduate of Castleton Medical college in Vermont (1853) and practiced medicine until he entered the newspaper business 30 years ago.

Carnegie Medal For Woman.

A Carnegie medal for heroism has been awarded to Miss Hattie Steele, recently appointed assistant state librarian at Des Moines, Ia. Miss Steele rescued George Hill, a [illegible] who had fallen through the ice and would have drowned had not Miss Steele, after a desperate struggle, in which her own life was in peril, dragged him to safety.

Bloody Riot Over Woman's Arrest.

Three men were shot, one fatally, and one woman was injured in a riot at Schoenville, near McKees Rocks, Sunday. The riot was the result of a clash between 15 detectives and about 1,000 foreign residents of Schoenville, Pa., caused by the arrest of a woman for taking coal from the Lake Erie railroad.

Five Men Drowned in Hudson.

James Mellon, a well-known fisherman of Barrytown, started across Hudson river in a row boat at that place with six Polanders, and before reaching the other shore the boat capsized and Mellon and four of the Polanders were drowned.

New Reservoir Collapsed.

An exact estimate of the casualties caused by collapse of a reservoir at Madrid is still impossible. It is stated that there were 220 men in the lower part of the reservoir, all of whom were killed.

Russian Losses at Mukden.

Complete returns received at headquarters at Harbin give the total Russian losses in killed, wounded and prisoners at the battle of Mukden as 107,000.

REFUSES TO ARBITRATE

Castro's Defiant Answer to [illegible]

Asphalt Case Will Not Be Taken From Venezuelan Court — Expectation In Venezuela That the United States Will Forcibly Intervene. Dutch and French Claims.

Caracas, April 2.—(Correspondence)—"President Castro will not withdraw the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company case from the Venezuelan court and will not re-submit the Olcott case to arbitration, if the whole American army and navy come to Venezuela."

This statement of General Alejandro Ybarra, the Venezuelan secretary of foreign affairs, [illegible] the spirit of [illegible] which President Castro [illegible] The recent proposal of the American state department for the arbitration of the Bermudez and Olcott cases.

It was generally rumored throughout Venezuela that the demand of the United States was little less than an ultimatum to General Castro and the reply of the Venezuelan president was awaited with interest.

Predictions of intervention following the refusal of Castro to yield were freely made and there was much uneasiness when it was announced that the Venezuelan government had not [illegible] refused the demand to arbitrate the case, but had supplemented its refusal with a request that the United States declare whether it has any respect for the sovereignty and the courts of Venezuela.

It is denied in the reply of President Castro that there are any claims pending between the United States and Venezuela. He again reiterates that the New York and Bermudez Asphalt case now in the Venezuelan courts is a national and not an international one. President Castro and the members of his cabinet take the ground that while the government [illegible] for the general principle of arbitration it will not have a case wrested from its courts to be carried before a board of arbitration.

DIPLOMATS INTERESTED.

Insult to American Minister Will Not Pass Unnoticed.

Washington, April 12.—Throughout the diplomatic corps keen interest exists regarding the sensational answer which President Castro is said to have made to Minister Bowen's latest request for the arbitration of the pending questions between the United States and Venezuela.

Although Venezuelan legation officials say the text of the dispatch was not included in the mail reaching the legation [illegible] Caracas after the answer was [illegible] Mr. Bowen, it has become noised around diplomats that the answer was undiplomatic and almost threatening in wording. There is reason to believe that several foreign governments already have been advised of the text.

While diplomats who have inquired at the state department have been informed that practically no action will be taken regarding Venezuela until President Roosevelt returns from his Western trip, they also have received [illegible] of Castro's answer comprises an insult to the American minister it will not pass unnoticed.

Castro's Army Under Constant Drill.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, April 2.—The presence in Caracas of J. De Reus, the Netherlands charge at Caracas, has revived rumors of probable Dutch interference in Venezuela to force President Castro to release Dutch sailors who are said to be imprisoned unjustly at Puerto Cabello and Maracaibo. Mr. De Reus has conferred [illegible] of the Dutch warship Kortenaer [illegible] here, and it is reported that additional Dutch warships shortly will reach [illegible].

Repeated demands have been made by Holland for the release of sailors, and corrective action was recommended by the charge some weeks ago. At that time it was said that the Dutch government was prevented from taking any action because of the possible interference of the United States in Venezuela.

The announcement that France had placed two warships at the disposal of its minister in Caracas to reinforce his demands for the discontinuance of the suits against the French cable company is also said to have delayed action.

Advices from Caracas indicate that the Venezuelan capital is in an excited state since the final demand of the United States upon President Castro for arbitration of pending claims. Foreigners anticipate that the United States before long will take more forcible means of reaching a settlement of the controversy with Venezuela.

The Venezuelan army is under constant drill and it is reported that there has been much recruiting since the delivery of the Hay note. Troops are being moved about in all parts of the republic, and the number of soldiers in Caracas is now said to be about 2,000.

Crushed by Freight Elevator.

Watertown, N. Y., April 12.—Joseph Tourangeau, aged 61, was instantly killed by being crushed by the freight elevator at the Harmon Machine company's plant in this city.

STRAITS OF FORMOSA.

Will Be Location of Naval Battle, In Russian Opinion.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—Whether Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's battleships [illegible] straits of Sunda or the straits of Malaccaat is practically certain now that he is moving to effect a juncture with the division which passed Singapore April 8.

It is possible that this may not take place until the two divisions reach Cam Ranh Bay, Padaran on the east coast of Cochin China. The dispatches from Singapore having the ships which passed there Saturday are erroneous in several particulars, notably in the case of the Furst Bismarck, recruiting ship, which is still at Libau. According to the admiralty's information the Japanese have had an observation squadron in the waters of Labuan, British Borneo, where they took the same advantage of British neutrality as Rojestvensky did of French neutrality at Madagascar, and this squadron is believed to have been summoned by Japanese scouts to remain in touch with the Russians until they go north to the straits of Formosa, where it is believed here a battle will occur.

Considering the vital nature of the issue the admiralty is inclined to think that Admiral Togo will not dare to send ships to Vladivistok or leave vessels behind him to cope with the Russian vessels at that port and that the Japanese coasts and the transport fleet will practically have to shift for themselves until the naval battle is fought.

The principal coast cities of Japan are [illegible] fortifications and the Russian cruisers at Vladivostok, not being heavily armed, could not attack them, but havoc could be created among the Japanese transports and commercial ships.

The admiralty is greatly gratified at the speed developed by the squadron while steaming across the Indian ocean, which is [illegible] nine instead of eight knots, as the ships made a detour northward in the direction of Jibutil in order to create the initial impression that they intended to join Admiral Nebogatoff's division. Naval men here consider that the speed attained with such a heterogeneous squadron is a remarkable feat and a shining testimonial to Rojestvensky's capacity.

The admiralty is not harboring any delusions on the score of the opinions of foreign experts based upon the theory that Togo's ships are armed with guns which were worn out at Port Arthur, as the officials here know that there have been heavy shipments of guns from England during the past two months.

ATTACHMENT OF WAGES.

Excess Over $12 a Week Can now Be Levied On.

Albany, April 12.—The wages or total income from all sources of any [illegible] in excess of $12 a week, may be levied upon hereafter for bills for groceries or other necessaries, or for the wages of a domestic servant. Hitherto the minimum limit has been $20, but Governor Higgins has signed the so-called "garnishee bill" of Assemblyman Monroe of Tompkins county reducing it to $12.

The bill has been before the legislature for several years and has always been urgently opposed by the representatives of organized labor and as [illegible] supported by the retail [illegible].

The effect of the new law is to establish a lien and a continuing levy upon the wages, earnings, debts, salary, income from trust funds or profits due or to become due to said judgment debtor to the amount specified in the execution which shall not exceed 10 per centum thereof, and said levy shall be a continuing levy until said execution and the expenses thereof are fully satisfied."

The new bill adds municipal corporations to those persons or corporations required to honor such attachments [illegible] the salaries or wages of employes.

Appleyard Habeas Corpus Case.

Boston, April 12.—It was decided that the habeas corpus proceedings brought in the interests of Arthur E. Appleyard of Brookline to prevent his extradition to New York state for trial upon an indictment charging him with grand larceny from the German bank of Buffalo, is to be heard by the full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court on questions of law raised by Appleyard's counsel. A special session of court probably will be held to expedite the case.

Plea Signed by 3,513 Thumbs.

Minneapolis, April 12.—Taking his cue from the exploits of Pudd'nhead Wilson, Major McLaughlin now is on his way to Washington with a unique memorial to the government bearing in lieu of signatures the imprint of the thumbs of 3,514 Sioux Indians. The petition asks the division of 500,000 acres of land at the Standing Rock agency, and in order that the wily red man may not trick his trusting white father the unique signatures were insisted upon by Major McLaughlin, who is inspector of agencies.

New Manila Trolley Line.

Manila, April 12.—The Railway and Lighting company, which was incorporated in Hartford, Conn., in June, 1903, for operating electric railway and lighting plants in the Philippines, began operations yesterday. Commissioner Cameron Forbes started the first car on the first railroad built by the company.

COUNTY AFFAIRS.

Summary of Local Events and Happenings of the Week.

The graduating class of the Westfield High School numbers eleven.

—A few days ago a large white swan was seen on Pine creek near Jersey Shore.

—The Farmers' Mutual Telephone line is to be extended from Mitchell Creek to Tioga

—The curfew whistle at Blossburg is connected with the electric light plant [illegible]

—Richard Carson, of Delmar, has moved to Jersey Shore, where he has leased a farm.

—Thomas Owlett, of Mansfield, has moved to Addison, N. Y., where he will [illegible]

—Rev. [illegible] Resh, pastor of the Meth[illegible] church, has received a call from Mill Hall, Clinton county.

—The weather during the last few days of March were unprecedented as far as their high temperature is concerned.

—The Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad has installed eight new freight trains to be run between Galeton and DuBois.

[illegible] has returned from the Philippines to his home at Troy, having completed three years service with the U. S. troops.

—James Purcell, of Arnot, District Organizer of the United Mine Workers, has bought of Edward McEntee a farm of 80 acres in Charleston.

—An effort is being made to start a brick and tile factory at Galeton. Some valuable clay mines are located on the top of one of the hills in that place.

—Hon. A. G. Olmsted, of Coudersport, has let the contract for a new hose house to be erected for the firemen of that place at an expense of at least $4,500.

[illegible] hotel on the Nine Mile in Potter county for the accommodation of fishermen and campers.

—Mrs. J. S. Bush, Tioga's oldest resident, died at her home in that place last Saturday morning, in the 81st year of her age. She was the widow of the late John S. Bush, who died two years ago.

—The potato crop of the United States was 26,300,000 bushels greater in 1904 than in 1903. It is said that there are nearly three times as many bushels for sale this spring as a year ago at this time.

—Rev. L. L. Grover, pastor of the Baptist church at Stony Fork for the past three years, has gone to Harrison Valley. Rev. W. A. Grover, of Elmira, has accepted a call to become pastor of the church.

—The Smethport Democrat says that the county Republican primaries in that vicinity "were marked by a carnival of drunkenness that ought to bring a blush of shame to the cheek of every decent Republican who was an eye witness to the scene."

—Landlord John F. Keefe, who has conducted the Eagle Hotel at Blossburg [illegible] House at that place. M. S. Murray, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, [illegible] the Seymour House.

—In his plea before a jury at a recent term of court in Coudersport, L. B. Seibert became somewhat original and is reported as having said: "God Almighty can damage man all he has a mind to, but any man who will assist [illegible]"

—A correspondent says that one of the rooms in the primary grade in the Arnot school, taught by Miss Nora Coleman, has been closed on account of the lack of funds, and the children distributed among the other [illegible] the teachers having upwards of 80 pupils.

—The year 1905 will have 53 Sundays; one more than ordinary. A 53 Sunday year will not come again for 100 years. The extra Sunday is caused by the year beginning on Sunday and ending on Sunday. There are no less than five months in which five Sundays occur in this.

—One day last week Charles Turner, aged 20, from Potter county, and a convict in the penitentiary at Pittsburg, was [illegible] Kruger, a fellow convict. The men got into a dispute while at work. Kruger stabbed Turner with a knife, death ensuing in twenty minutes.

—The other day while some Westfield boys were playing burglar a ten-year-old lad lighted some powder "to blow open a safe" but he was not quick enough to get away and he received a part of the effects of the explosion in his face. His left eye was badly burned and his face somewhat injured.

—Fire early last Sunday morning damaged the Weed building at Williamsport to the extent of $30,000. The flames communicated to the Gazette and Bulletin building, which suffered a loss [illegible]. The press room was completely gutted and the paper has since been printed from the Sun office.

—Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his annual report urges that the public schools devote a day to the study of the history of our beloved Commonwealth. [illegible] is very fittingly called "Pennsylvania Day." This will be observed in many schools throughout the State.

—The Erie railroad, with 2,200 miles of trackage, states that the coal stolen from them amounts to a good many thousand dollars and recently commenced a systematic prosecution against the thieves, and as a result over 200 persons have been arrested inside of a couple of weeks. The company hopes to break up the practice.

—The quarry of the Liberty Valley Tramway Company begins operations for the season next Monday. At the recent election of officers the following were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Louis Krise; Secretary and Manager, R. A. DeCoursey; Treasurer, D. O. Hartsock; Directors, Daniel Boger, John H. Mast, D. C. Hartsock, Ellis Stessel.

—Somerset township, Washington county, has a road law [illegible] more than fifty years ago under which the roads are divided into half mile sections and auctioned off to the lowest bidder who will keep a section in repair for three years. There are 100 miles of road in the township and the 200 sections are again about to be auctioned off for a three-year term.

—A contemporary publishes the following good advice: Don't think the country newspaper publishers are simply trying to get rid of a surplus stock of postage stamps when you get a back subscription statement. If you want to meet your friends in the other world and enjoy yourself, pay up. Remember the [illegible] will be up in the [illegible] on the other side of the dark river.

About 10,000,000 feet of gas is sent to market daily by the Potter Gas Co. through their lines without any artificial propelling power. A pumping station will be provided for the purpose of propelling the gas through the line, which it is expected will increase the capacity of the line to 15,000,000 feet per day. It is the intention of the company to extend the line from Elmira to Waverly and Sayre.

—Fred Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herrington, who live on the Matson farm in Delmar, died last Saturday, aged 19 years. He had been in poor health the past two months as a result of hemorrages from the nose, but had been able to be about the house most of the time. He was a very quiet and retired young man and had many friends. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Reynolds officiating.

—The annual story that "many trout have been killed during the past winter" is going the rounds. The theory of expert fisherman is that the cold weather coming when the water in the streams was very low caused it to freeze [illegible] to the bottom, and it is said a [illegible] examination of some of the trout substantiates this theory. Of course the real extent of the damage will not be known until after the opening of the fish season.

—Julius C. Wetmore, an old and well-known resident of Charleston, died at his home at Dartt Settlement last Friday, aged 72 years. Mr. Wetmore conducted a grocery and was postmaster at Charleston for many years, retiring from that office about a year ago. He spent a good portion of his life in farming but had been in feeble health the past two or three years. The deceased is survived by his second wife and one son, Charles Wetmore. The funeral was held at the Settlement church.

Balky Horse Delayed Wedding.

A wedding was nearly frustrated at Millerton a few days ago by a balky horse. The Advocate of that place says: Fay Beers, formerly of Elmira, and Miss May Belle Wright, formerly of Mansfield, decided to get married last Thursday [illegible] the happy groom engaged a horse at Mosherville and got his intended bride and drove out for Pine City. But lo! when beautiful [illegible] her home at Mosherville, she refused to go farther until after about every other [illegible] nial "Walt" Wilson, an attache of the Mosherville house, took her in hand and got the anxious couple to Pine City in short order, where the Rev. Mr. Brainard at the Baptist parsonage, "tied the knot that binds." The happy bride is a Mansfield graduate and is engaged in teaching at the Wells graded schools.

COMMISSIONER GARFIELD'S WORK

Preliminary Inquiry Into Production and Marketing of Oil.

Washington, April 5.—Commissioner James R. Garfield of the bureau of corporations returned from a fishing trip on the Gulf of Mexico. In his absence the preliminary work of the inquiry into the production and marketing of oil which he instituted before he left Washington has progressed to such a stage that he now is enabled to begin his personal work on it.

He will leave today for Kansas, going directly to Topeka. He will begin his [illegible] into the methods of the oil trust [illegible] that [illegible]

Commissioner Garfield said that it was not possible for him to say, even approximately, how much time the inquiry would consume. He proposes to make it as [illegible] as possible.

Commissioner Garfield has not completed yet his report on the beef inquiry although the work of the investigation is well in hand. At least four chapters of the report, dealing respectively with transportation problems, railroads, refrigerator cars, of commission and the Yards, remain yet to be completed. They will contain some of the most important information developed by the inquiry.

All chapters of the report will not be made public until after the special grand jury investigating in Chicago shall have concluded its inquiry into the operations and methods of the big packing concerns.

It is an open secret that much of the information gathered by Commissioner Garfield has been placed in the hands of officials of the department of [illegible] quiry now making by the Chicago grand jury. No intimation is given by either Commissioner Garfield or other officials cognizant with the facts of the nature of the information they possess, but at least it is deemed wise not at this time to submit it for publication.

[illegible]

Altoona, Pa., April 5.—After a [illegible] conference of the [illegible] committee representing the operators [illegible] vania bituminous coal fields [illegible] last year's scale [illegible] The scale is based upon 62 cents a ton for pick mining. [illegible] that conditions in the competitive coal fields do not justify the payment of the old scale. The miners, however, refused to recede from their demands for last year's scale and the operators state that rather than assume the responsibility of bringing on a strike they submitted to the miners' demands. Work which was suspended on March 31 was resumed in the mines today.

A Longer Bayonet Recommended.

Washington, April 5.—Secretary Taft approved a recommendation by General Chaffee based on the report of an army board which made a special inquiry into the subject of the army bayonet in all its phases as a weapon and as an equipment of the soldier, providing for a new bayonet. This inquiry was made at the suggestion of President Roosevelt as a result of the experiences of the armies in Manchuria. General Chaffee recommends a bayonet of the style at present issued to the army [illegible] with the Krag rifle differing only in that its length is increased by six inches.

Engineer Dead at Throttle.

St. Johns, Que., April 5.—A freight train on the Quebec Southern railway ran off an open switch at Iberville. The engine upset, burying the engineer beneath it. The fireman believes the engineer was dead before the accident occurred. Just before reaching the open switch the fireman called out to the engineer that the signal was against them. The engineer sat motionless with his hand on the throttle a deathlike look on his face. Before the fireman could step to his side the engine careened down the [illegible] ment and the fireman jumped [illegible] to save his life. The [illegible] had complained of feeling ill.

Plot to Kill Trepoff.

St. Petersburg, April 5.—The police arrested yesterday in the Nevsky Prospect a man disguised as a carriage driver, presumably belonging to the same organization as the 12 persons who were arrested last week for supposed connection with terrorist schemes. There is little doubt that there was a plot directed against the [illegible] the latest arrest indicates that the terrorists are acting on a concerted plan [illegible] actual perpetrator of the assassination [illegible]

The Great Statesman Early Appreciated the Scenery of the "Pirturesque Erie."

WHEN Daniel Webster, in company with President Fillmore, first rode over the "Picturesque Erie," in 1851, it is recorded that the great statesman insisted on riding on an open platform car, seated in a large, easy rocking chair, in order that he might better view the magnificent scenery.

ON LIFE IN CHICAGO

OFTEN IMPERILED BY EVASION OF BUILDING ORDINANCE.

A VISITOR OF DISTINCTION

Office Structures to Be Rigidly Inspected—New Woman's Clubhouse —Juvenile Offenders to Be Handled with Gentleness.

CHICAGO.—The city person walking along the streets of his town not infrequently reflects on the risk taken every day by occupants of the great office buildings. In each of the largest of the sky scrapers are housed enough people to make a fair-sized village. I have been told that in the Monadnock in Chicago something like 4,000 humans are hived during the working hours of the day. It seems needless to emphasize the urgent need of protection against fire. But the protection is wanting in many a building that presents a front of dignity and an appearance that inspires confidence.

A recent fire that got quite a start in the Stock Exchange building brought to light conditions that have aroused hosts of people in Chicago—insurance men, the city firemen, and the army of office workers. The discovery of defective stand pipes in the Stock Exchange when the firemen were trying to fight the fire has led to pretty thorough inspection of all the chief office buildings down town.

The fire was caused by crossed electric wires in the conduit containing all the wires of the Postal Telegraph company, which has operating rooms on the thirteenth floor, and before the firemen arrived the fire had ascended clear to the rooms where the operators were at work. It was with greatest difficulty and danger the workers made their escape; the courage of the operator of the one elevator that was running, the uncertain ladders of the fire escape, and the assistance of the firemen, enabling all to get out. But just in time, for inadequate means of battling with the fire allowed the quick spread of the flames. The two companies of firemen that had been sent to the top floor found that they could make no connection with the stand pipes along the fire escapes; and after a dangerous delay leaks of hose were carried up through the elevator shaft. Finally the fire was put out by chemicals and the hose lines carried up by the firemen.

As soon as the fire was under control the fire chief and inspector began investigation of the faulty stand pipes. On each floor they found that connection between the main pipe and the elbows extending into the building had not been made. When the chief started to test the stability of the elbows, in several cases a vigorous jerk dislodged the elbow from the wall. In the words of the fire attorney: "Imagine the result of trying to fight a fire that way if the building had been full of people. Even the lives of the firemen on the top floor were in jeopardy to-night, so you can imagine what the conditions would have been at a midday fire in one of these buildings."

At Hull House.

IN CONTRAST to the above criminal neglect, lack of common precautions, it is refreshing to turn to quite a different aspect of city life; to altruism and a proper civic spirit. This is found in its essence at that center Chicagoans point to with juste pride.

Hull House grows at an astonishing pace and presently may fill that ward. Its latest contribution of excellent things is a club house. Yesterday saw the formal opening of the Hull House Woman's [illegible] one of the most [illegible] assemblies [illegible] very handsomely to the Hull House [illegible]

The house was [illegible] cost $[illegible] gift of Mrs. [illegible] a woman that gives generously of time and money towards bettering conditions among the poor.

From without Hull House buildings look more or less disparited by the dirt and crowded conditions about them, but within everywhere one is impressed by artistic arrangement and coloring by the fact that a love for the beautiful as well as a love for humanity reigns here. The new building expresses this in high degree; the hall where a meeting of ten people can be held, is very [illegible] with its yellow [illegible] in the [illegible] reading [illegible] a [illegible] member [illegible] tation [illegible] memory of a former [illegible] Hull House Woman's [illegible]

Henry James in Chicago.

[illegible] Mr. James during his short stay here, most humbly sit at his feet and try to learn. And we cannot help wondering what he thought of it all, this neat, elderly bachelor that prefers the quiet of an English home to the unquiet and change of life on "this side."

Fair dames in purple and ermine, men of prominence in commercial and professional circles, traveled Chicagoans and stay-at-home Chicagoans, club women and their husbands, assembled to do Mr. James honor—and incidentally to see what manner of man he was. To catch every word that fell from his lips; to but touch his hand; to study his personality, they came from far and near.

The American joke and joker were not wanting on the occasion of Mr. James' appearance as lecturer. The gentleman that introduced the author to the Twentieth Century club got in a word about that early creation of Mr. James, the widely known Daisy Miller, and mischievously announced to the large assembly of ladies that the prototype of Daisy was then and there in the audience. Mr. James groaned, but, doubtless remembering the joke is a sacred matter in America, took his medicine courageously, laughed indulgently, heroically endeavored to answer the excited questions put to him by the bevy of fair questioners that surrounded him at the close of his lecture, "The Lesson of Balzac."

A newspaper wit declares that Mr. James is to write a book about America, that in it there will be a place for Chicago, a good chapter at least, and that Mr. James has promised to be very kind and not mention the stock yards.

The Waitress.

O TURN from Henry James to restaurant waitresses is a dizzy jump. The question came up of who is the more pleasing server, waiter or waitress. The majority voted in favor of the latter.

In this city, especially, the respectful skilful man attendant at a hotel is conspicuous by his absence. We have studied him at the most prominent hotel in the town, at the small exclusive restaurant, in private homes, and found him wanting as well as waiting.

Over in England and on the Continent he is to the manor born; here he has no manners whatever as a general thing. Occasionally one finds a piece of perfection among the mulattoes who receive their training in the hands of first-class caterers; but the ordinary white man and the ordinary colored man do not equal the trim waitress to be met with in a number of places in Chicago.

Of course there are numerous exceptions among the girls, almost enough to merit sweeping condemnation, but we have in mind waitresses at the tea rooms in the three best department stores here, and pronounce them well trained in their work, well mannered, well intentioned.

In the restaurants and hotels where meals are served at all hours of the day the wonder is that any of them are able to keep up an appearance of good humor, a show of willingness to perform their tasks. In the tea rooms the hours are comparatively short, no breakfasts being served; but in the other places it means getting up at five for many a girl, being ready for work at seven. The intermissions are short; the serving must be continued to a late hour of the evening. When does the waitress get any time for quiet, for diversion? It is easy for theorizers to assert working people, if they would but divide their hours properly, be systematic, could get a good deal out of life. The waitress would have to draw on her sleeping time pretty heavily, it seems to us.

Whip the Boys?

[illegible] gress or modern weakness. That says no! Doctors disagree. But [illegible] that has gone forth that no more lads are to be rapped in the John Worthy school, the school where reform of Chicago's juvenile offenders are given opportunity to prove an effective [illegible] child under care of the [illegible] is to be whipped or otherwise bodily punished. This is a sweeping order and [illegible]

The principal under whose [illegible] one of the boys in the John Worthy school received corporal punishment, appeared before Judge Mack and gave as explanation for the order that the boy under consideration one like [illegible] had indulged in surrounding days of outrageous conduct prior to the whipping, and that the punishment was carried as a last resort. He swore a [illegible] here. He swore not a [illegible] sons. In three years at the school he had had [illegible] half a [illegible] punishment a [illegible] proportion [illegible] Mack [illegible] have been [illegible] from the school [illegible] a warning to [illegible] must [illegible]

PASSING OF A BOSS.

ADDICKS NO LONGER A POLITICAL POWER IN DELAWARE.

All Hope of Winning His Long Struggle for Senatorship Gone—His Once Large Fortune Is Practically Gone.

Dover, Del.—J. Edward Addicks, the Delaware gas magnate, who was for 14 years struggling in vain for a seat in the senate, no longer is a potent factor in Delaware politics. An old man, financially distressed, and with his once powerful political influence wasted to nothing, the curtain is all but rung down upon the drama in which for years he has been the central figure.

No United States senator was elected at the legislative session just closed to succeed Dr. L. Heisler Ball, whose term expired the 4th of March. Dr. Caleb R. Layton and Senator J. Frank Allee, the Addicks leaders, decided to continue the deadlock to the end.

Addicks is now out of the game through the defection of a powerful contingent of his supporters to the ranks of his rivals, Col. Henry A. Dupont and his nephew, T. Coleman Dupont, the multimillionaire powder trust magnates of Wilmington, and the Duponts are the only men in the state now able to supply the "sinews of war" to the republicans.

Addicks mortgaged his home Carrcroft, at Claymont, for $33,000 to settle a judgment for that amount against him in the Bay State Gas company troubles. Later an additional judgment for $13,000 was entered against him in the same manner. This judgment has not been paid.

The money for the $33,000 mortgage was advanced by Mrs. Ida Shaw, of Wilmington, widow of John G. Shaw, a Philadelphia attorney, who left a large fortune. Recently Mrs. Shaw sought to force the payment of the mortgage. Senator Allee had given his bond as collateral security for the payment of the debt secured by the mortgage and in some unexplained complication that ensued Allee surrendered the $33,000 of indebtedness and confessed judgment for the sum. This judgment is about to be executed and people are wondering where the money is to come from. Senator Allee recently placed a $5,000 mortgage on his home here.

J. EDWARD ADDICKS

Addicks was sued at Newport a few weeks ago by a tradesman for a bill for table supplies.

Where in former campaigns Addicks poured thousands into the republican campaign treasury, he was not able to assist much in the recent campaign.

Addicks made his first appearance in Dover during the legislative session of 1889. No one knew him. He introduced himself about and said laughingly that if no one else wanted to go to the senate he would go. It was proved that his design on the senate was not serious, and that what he really wanted was a charter for the now notorious Bay State Gas company. It was not until 1894 that Addicks became openly active in politics. Corralled votes, paid the delinquent poll [illegible] non-payment and handed the money to the republicans at the election as he has done at all succeeding elections until the last, when his barrel was empty and he was a broken man. For 11 years he has fought to control the senate of this state. [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

JAPS WANT INDEMNITY.

Indications That Russian Proposals Will Be Rejected.

Early Opening of Navigation—Morgan Smith and Wife Caught—Explosion in Leiter Mine—Emperor William at Tangier—Sports Prohibited on Memorial Day—President's Southern Trip.

M. Takahashi (Japanese special financial commissioner at London), in an interview said:

"The war cost between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 the first year and it is estimated that it will cost $350,000,000 during the present year. It would be unprecedented in the history of great wars that no indemnity and no territory be given up by the vanquished. While it is beyond my province to discuss terms of peace, I can express my personal opinion. As the war was forced upon Japan it is not likely that she will waive the right to an indemnity and cession of territory when concluding peace. What indemnity will be demanded I cannot say, but it is my private opinion that it will at least cover the expense of the war.

"If Russia assumes that a continuance of the war will deplete our finances before hers it will be another mistake of judgment on her part. We can maintain a sufficient army in Manchuria to keep out the Russians indefinitely, but this will necessitate Japan remaining in Manchuria and administering the province on a war footing, which we do not desire.

"Manchuria is fertile and productive and an army can be maintained there more economically than in the case of the opposing force in Siberia. If Russia is prepared for the test of a war of finances we are willing. The longer the war lasts the more certain it will be that it will not be resumed."

Bold Japanese Move.

Gunshu Pass, 108 miles north of Tie Pass, April 3.—The situation here is unchanged. General Mistchenko has moved forward into close touch with the Japanese and keeps up constant skirmishing. Elsewhere everything is quiet.

Native reports, which may be taken for what they are worth, state that the Japanese are leaving before the Russian front only a screen capable with the help of the Mukden and Tie pass fortifications, and garrisons of holding in check General Linevitch, and are transferring the bulk of their five armies to Vladivostok and by means of a wide movement through Mongolia to Tsitsihar.

Considering the great distances involved, the plan appears too bold and almost impracticable; but Japanese intoxication from continued success, bold initiative and determined perseverance must be regarded. The situation affords an opportunity for Russian cavalry, which thus far has played an insignificant role, to distinguish itself by penetrating the Japanese intentions.

Opposing Armies Again Approach.

Another duel between the two opposing armies in Manchuria may be on the program this week. The Russians according to a Harbin correspondent, are now strongly fortifying their positions at Sipinghai, against which the Japanese are reported to be gathering in force.

Equally important news is that a column of Japanese is moving against Kirin, perhaps with the intention of turning the position eastward and striking at the Vladivostok line of communication with the double purpose of isolating the fortress and separating General Linevitch's army from a valuable base of supplies, the Usuri district.

Serious Conflict in Warsaw.

A serious conflict occurred Sunday night in Dzika street, Warsaw, where a Jewish Socialist society known as the Bund had organized a demonstration. The troops which came to disperse the gathering fired into the crowd, killing four persons and wounding 40 others.

Morgan Smith and Wife Caught.

Accused of conspiracy to commit murder, J. Morgan Smith and wife of New York, were arrested in Cincinnati on telegraphic request from District Attorney Jerome of New York city. Nan Patterson, the actress, who has been twice put on trial for the murder of Caesar Young in New York May 4, 1904, is charged in the same connection, new indictments to this effect having been found in New York Thursday.

Several weeks ago a New York detective met Smith in Montreal, Canada, and from that time until the arrests in Cincinnati this officer has awaited a favorable time for making the arrest.

He followed the couple, part of the time as travelling companion, over half of the continent, having made friends with Smith, who knew him to be a detective but believed that the officer was after some other person.

Although the prudential committee of the board of commissioners for foreign missions has practically decided to accept the gift of $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller, a committee representing the Congregational clergymen of Boston and vicinity who are opposed to the acceptance of the gift have decided to continue the protest.

A committee was appointed to submit the facts and documents in the matter to the Congregational ministers of the country. The prudential committee will not take final action on the acceptance of Mr. Rockefeller's gift for two weeks.

Two Revenue Bills Passed.

The New York state senate has passed by a party vote, ayes 33, noes 14, the two administration revenue measures adopted by the Republican party caucuses in both houses. One is the so-called stock transfer tax bill, prescribing a stamp tax of 2 cents per $100 or $2 per 100 shares on the sale or transfer of stock securities; the other provides an annual five mill state tax in lieu of all other taxes on all mortgages recorded after July 1 next, one-half of the proceeds to go to the state, one half to the locality.

Administrator in San Domingo.

President Roosevelt has agreed to proposition of the Dominican government, made through Minister Dawson, for the control of the finances of that republic with a view to setting aside a portion of the revenues of the republic for the payment of its debts. The officers who will collect the money and hold it will be appointed by the Dominican government, but the names of the men selected will be referred to this government for approval.

Receipts will be held pending action by the United States senate.

Emperor William at Tangier.

Emperor William of Germany paid a flying visit to Tangier, Morocco, last Friday, remaining barely two hours on shore. The elaborate program for his reception and entertainment was much changed, the emperor confining himself to a visit to the German legation, where he received deputations of Germans in Morocco.

Before his departure for Gibraltar, Emperor William bestowed decorations on Mulai Abd-El-Malek, the sultan's uncle, and the deputation sent by the sultan to welcome him.

President of Equitable Life.

The New York Tribune Saturday said: "The presidency of the Equitable Life Assurance society has been provisionally offered to John D. Crimmins, it is said on good authority, by representatives of the Hyde party. According to the story, James H. Hyde will offer to retire as vice president if James W. Alexander will agree to relinquish the presidency in favor of Mr. Crimmins." Mr. Crimmins is the chairman of the committee of policy holders who have been advocating a plan of mutualization.

Explosion at Leiter Mine.

Some 50 miners were entombed in Joseph Leiter's mine at Zeigler by a terrific explosion of gas, and it is probable that 30 or more of the buried men are dead. Thus far 15 bodies have been found and more than 30 are said to be dead.

The explosion, it is said, was due to the fact that the Leiter mines are not worked on Sundays, thus allowing gas to accumulate in the lower workings.

No Agreement on Coal Scale.

The operators and miners of the central bituminous coal district of Pennsylvania, after having been in conference at Altoona almost continuously since March 16, endeavoring to agree upon a wage scale to go into effect April 1, adjourned finally without coming to an agreement.

The failure to agree means a suspension of work by the 45,000 organized miners of the district.

Sports Prohibited on Memorial Day.

Both houses of the legislature of Nebraska have passed a bill prohibiting sports on Memorial day and the governor will sign it. Horse racing, baseball games and other sports not permitted on Sunday in that state must not be engaged in on Memorial day after the bill becomes a law. Penalties for violating the terms of the measure include fines and imprisonment.

President on a Hunting Trip.

President Roosevelt left Washington Monday morning over the Pennsylvania railroad on a long trip to the West and Southwest. He will be absent from the capital nearly two months.

One of his chief objects is the reunion of his Rough Riders regiment of the Spanish-American war, which is to take place at San Antonio, Tex., next Friday and for which an elaborate programme has been arranged.

Opening of Simplon Tunnel.

The Simplon tunnel, in the Alps, the longest in the world, was put into operation Sunday when from the Swiss and Italian sides the first trains passed through, meeting at the center, where there was the iron door which originally prevented the overflow of a torrent of hot water, and which was on Sunday opened for the first time.

Newspaper Burned Out.

Fire damaged the Weed building at Williamsport, Pa., to the extent of $30,000. The flames communicated to the Gazette and Bulletin building, which suffered a loss of $20,000. The paper will be printed temporarily from the Sun office.

Hudson River Open.

Free at last from ice, after one of the severest winters on record, the Hudson river was reopened Monday to freight and passenger traffic as far as Troy, when the Troy line put into commission its steamers Saratoga and City of Troy.

The Duke of Orleans has issued a manifesto calling for a restoration of the monarchy.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Of Public Utilities Carried the Day In Chicago.

John Maynard Harlan Defeated For Mayor by 25,000 Plurality—Estimates of Socialist Vote Fell Short—Many Prohibitionists and Colored Citizens Voted For Judge Dunne.

Chicago, April 5.—The Republican party yesterday met defeat in an effort to capture the mayoralty of Chicago. As a direct result, the city officially is committed to the policy of the quickest possible cessation of private franchises for public utilities. Municipal ownership especially in threatening street car lines, valued high up in the millions.

After successively winning four biennial fights of independents against the regular Republican party organization here John Maynard Harlan, son of Associate Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court, was a loser as Republican candidate for mayor. The defeat is attributed to several causes, starting with political revenge and in a wide sweep embracing socialism as a factor. The victor is Judge Edward F. Dunne, Democrat.

The Republican candidate suffered heavily from campaign attacks charging that he was a political assassin. Leaders of his own party who had been thrust from once and power largely through Harlan's acts in previous campaigns, were absent from his support.

Fear of Corporate Control.

The result was evident before the balloting had been in progress an hour. Appeals to fear of domination by corporate wealth appeared to sway many voters and perhaps more than any other influence was incorrectly gauged by the Republicans.

Harlan had been harrassed during the campaign as the reputed representative of Wall street interests intent on fastening burdens of franchise grants upon the city. The Republicans, however, had figured that the voters susceptible to appeals of this kind would support the Socialist candidate, Collins, and that losses, if any, to the Republicans would be more than made up by Harlan's old time admirers among independent voters.

Estimates, however, of 50,000 votes as the total for Collins, Socialist, fell short. The chief error in this respect apparently was in regard to the amount of the loss from the Democrats to the Socialists. The advocacy of immediate ownership radically voiced by Judge Dunne anticipated any move by Collins.

Calculations upon colored voters were another source of error in Republican expectations and an unmistakable defection was manifested in districts where Afro-Americans are numerous.

The smallness of the Prohibition vote is regarded by many persons as evidence that temperance voters voted for Dunne in apprehension that Harlan might win if too many votes were given the Prohibition nominee. Harlan's first act in public life as an alderman had been in the interests of alcohol and to secure, it was charged, the passage of an ordinance breaking the boundaries of a small local prohibition district in a residence neighborhood bordering Lincoln park.

One of the amusing features that is recalled as tending to center good natured feeling in Judge Dunne's behalf is the fact that he is the happy father of 13 children.

Anson's Candidacy Helped Dunne.

It is declared that the canvass of Adrian C. Anson, the old time hero of the baseball field and who was the Democratic candidate for city clerk, was a potent help to the Democrats.

As the returns from the election came from Dr. Harlan's home ward, adjacent to the aristocratic Lake Shore Drive, the figures favored the Republican candidate, notwithstanding that the ward is the residence of Mayor Carter H. Harrison, Democrat, who carried the ward in the last municipal campaign. Soon, however, when the factory districts and other unpretentious but populous sections began to be heard from, Dunne was quickly in the lead and never afterward was overtaken.

The plurality for Dunne, Democrat, was estimated at between 22,000 and 25,000 votes over Harlan. In the city election two years ago Harrison, Democrat, defeated Stewart, Republican, by 7,660 plurality. The city, however, was carried by the Republicans in the presidential election last fall by a heavy plurality.

Mr. Harlan listened to the returns at the Republican headquarters. As early as 7.30 o'clock he acknowledged defeat and left for his home. When asked for his opinion as to the cause of his defeat, Mr. Harlan said:

"The people of Chicago became infatuated with the idea of the immediate municipal ownership and the majority of them cast their votes that way today. I believed and still believe that our plans for the settlement of the traction question are the best, but the people thought differently and voted in accordance with their convictions. There is nothing much that can be said about my defeat; the figures tell the whole story."

King Alfonso's Betrothal Denied.

London, April 5.—The report of the betrothal of King Alfonso of Spain to Princess Patricia of Connaught is officially declared to be unfounded.

$150,000 IN UNSIGNED BILLS.

Supposed to Have Been Destroyed In a Mail Car Fire, They Are Discovered to Be In Existence.

Pittsburg, April 4.—Secret service men are after Baltimore and Ohio railroad employes supposed to have $150,000 in United States bank notes. These are not signed, and it was supposed they had been burned in a Baltimore and Ohio wreck, about a month ago, in a mail car fire.

The bank notes have been traced through Connellsville, Hyndman and Meyersdale, Pa., and crisp, new unsigned bills have been passed in Cumberland, Md. Those who have accepted the money have mostly been boarding house keepers.

The bills are identified by being slightly burned on the ends. Those who have accepted the bills have not suspected they were not good on account of missing signatures, and it is doubtful if the man who is passing the money knows the notes are valueless.

Those who have received the bills allege that the man has the appearance of a "railroader" and carries a big bundle of greenbacks.

AUTO STRUCK STREET CAR.

Serious Accident In Philadelphia Four Prominent Men Hurt.

Philadelphia, April 4.—In an automobile accident here yesterday three prominent residents of Pittsburg were severely cut and bruised and a well known manufacturer of this city was dangerously hurt.

They are Charles S. Frishmuth of this city, Archibald N. McCrea of Pittsburg and son of James McCrea, vice president of the Pennsylvania company; William H. Schoen and L. G. Wood of Pittsburg.

The four men are in St. Agnes hospital. Mr. Frishmuth was injured internally and sustained a serious concussion of the brain.

The heavy automobile collided with the rear end of a trolley car, and the men were thrown out on the pavement.

Rob Lieutenant Governor.

New Castle, Pa., April 3.—Robbers early Friday morning entered four dwellings and attempted to enter more. Silverware and money were taken at the residence of Lieutenant Governor William M. Brown, who, with his family, is absent at Harrisburg; at the home of Mrs. James Ward Reis and that of L. M. Raney. The burglars also entered the house of William Stritmater, a wealthy merchant, but accidentally overturned a potted palm, awakening Mrs. Elizabeth Boyce, who frightened the burglars away.

Switchlights For Targets.

Connellsville, Pa., April 3.—Repeated attempts have been made to cause a wreck on the Southwest branch of the Pennsylvania railroad Friday night a large crosstie was removed from the track a few minutes before a passenger train was due. Almost every night switchlights have been destroyed. At Moyer the block light was shot full of holes. Game Warden C. H. Craig of Greensburg was here looking for illegal hunters, who, it is said, are making targets of the switchlights.

Church Aids a Murderer.

Uniontown, Pa., April 3.—The young people of the church at Percy held a social and raised $44.65 for James W. Ezell, convicted of first degree murder. More than half of the amount needed to prepare the appeal to the supreme court has been raised. Ezell was convicted of killing Yardmaster W. G. Porter at Newell last September.

Stuck to Post and Was Unhurt.

Youngstown, O., April 4.—Engineer Ulrich on a Pennsylvania freight train stuck to his seat when his train struck the rear end of a train in front of his Saturday morning and plunged through the two cabooses. He was not only uninjured, but was in his seat when the engine left the tracks. His fireman jumped and was uninjured.

Miners and Operators In Harmony.

Beaver, Pa., April 4.—Saturday the members of the United Mine Workers of the Beaver valley district ceased work pending the signing of the scale for the ensuing year. The officials are expected this week. Harmony prevails between the miners and the operators and no trouble is anticipated.

Mine Owners Grant Demands.

Philadelphia, April 3.—By the action of the soft coal operators of Central Pennsylvania a strike of bituminous miners has been averted. The owners decided to grant the demands of the men by renewing the wage scale in effect last year, the basis of which is 62 cents a ton for pick mining.

Negro Assailant Identified.

Ebensburg, Pa., April 3.—Frank Manuel, the negro who was arrested in Bedford county on suspicion of having assaulted Mrs. Barbara Rose at her home in Eton Wednesday afternoon, was placed in jail Saturday. Mrs. Rose identified him.

Scared Husband Sees Wife Burn.

York, Pa., April 3.—Engaged in burning brush, the clothing of Mrs. William Kline of Round Top ignited, and she was burned to death in sight of her husband, who was so frightened that he was powerless to help her.

THE GRAFTERS

By FRANCIS LYNDE

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

Recalling it afterward he wondered if the occult prompting which had dragged him out of his chair on the Brentwood porch saw to it that he walked upon the strip of matting in the tile-paved corridor and so made his approach noiseless. Also, if the same silent monitor bade him stop short of the governor's office at the door, namely, of the public anteroom, which stood ajar?

A low murmur of voices came from beyond, and for a moment he paused listening. Then he boldly went within, crossing the anteroom and standing fairly in the broad beam of light pouring through the open door of communication with the private office.

Four men sat in low-toned conference around the governor's writing-table, and if any one of them had looked up the silent witness must have been discovered. Kent marked them down one by one: the governor; Hendricks, the secretary of state; Rumford, the oil man; and Senator Duvall. For five pregnant minutes he stood looking on, almost within arm's reach of the four; hearing distinctly what was said; seeing the papers which changed hands across the table. Then he turned and went away, noiselessly as he had come, the thick-piled carpet of the anteroom muffling his footfalls.

It was midnight when he reached his quarters in the Clarendon, and flung himself full length upon the bed, sodden with weariness. For two hours he had tramped the deserted streets, striving in sharp travail of soul to fit the invincible chance-given weapon to his hand. When he came in the thing was done, and he slept the sleep of an outworn laborer.

CHAPTER XVIII.

DOWN, BRUNO!

For six days after the night of revelations Kent dived deep, personally and by paid proxy, in a sea of secrecy which, for the five pregnant minutes in the doorway of the governor's office, might easily have proved fathomless.

On the seventh day the conflagration broke out. The editor of the Belmount Refiner was the first to smell the smoke and to raise the cry of "Fire!" but by midnight the wires were humming with the news and the entire state was ablaze.

The story as it appeared under the scare headlines the next morning was crisply told. An oil company had been formed with Senator Duvall at its head. After its incorporation it was ascertained that it not only held options on all the most valuable wells in the Belmount region, but that its charter gave it immunity from the laws requiring all corporations to have their organizations, officers, and operating headquarters in the state. By the time the new company was three days old it had quietly taken up its options and was the single big fish in the pool by virtue of its having swallowed all the little ones.

Then came the finishing stroke which had set the wires to humming. On the sixth day it was noised about that Senator Duvall had transferred his controlling interest to Rumford—otherwise to the Universal Oil company; that he had served only as a figurehead in the transaction, using his standing, social and political, to secure the charter which had been denied Rumford and his associates.

It had been managed very skillfully; the capping of the wells by the Universal's agent, the practical sealing up of the entire district being the first public intimation of the result of Duvall's treachery and the complete triumph of a foreign monopoly.

The storm that swept the state when the facts came out were cyclonic, and it was reported, as it needed to be, that Senator Duvall had disappeared. Never in the history of the state had public feeling risen so high; and there were not lacking those who said that if Duvall showed himself his life would not be safe in the streets of the capital.

It was after the Argus had gone to press on the night of explosions that Editor Hildreth sought and found David Kent in his rooms at the Clarendon, and poured out the vials of his wrath.

"Say, I'd like to know, if you don't mind, what you mean by giving me a fair show!" he demanded, flinging into Kent's sitting room and dropping into a chair. "Did I, or did I not understand that I was to have the age on this oil business when there was anything fit to print?"

Kent gave the night editor a cigar and was otherwise exasperatingly perturbable.

"Keep your clothes on, and don't accuse a man of disloyalty until you have all the documents in the case," he said. "I didn't know, until I saw your bulletin a few hours ago, that the thing had been pulled off. In fact, I've been too busy with other things to pay much attention to the Belmount end of it."

"The ded-devil you have!" sputtered Hildreth, chewing savagely on the gift cigar. "I'd like to know what business you had to mix up in other things to the detriment of my news column. You were the one man who knew all about it; or at least you did a week or two ago."

"Yes; but other and more important things have intervened. I have been desperately busy, as I say."

"Well, you've lost your chance to get your grip on the capitol gang, anyway; that is one comfort," growled the editor, getting what consolation he could out of Kent's apparent failure. "They played it too fuffine for you."

"Did they?" said Kent.

"It looks pretty much that way, doesn't it? Duvall is the scapegoat, and the only one. About day after to-morrow Bucks' organ, the Tribune, will come out with an 'inspired' editorial whitewashing the entire capitol outfit. It will show how Rumford's application for the charter was refused, and how a truly good and benefficent state government has been hoodwinked and betrayed by one of its most trusted supporters."

Kent threw off his street coat and went to get his dressing-gown from the wardrobe in the bedroom. When he came back he said: "Hildreth, you have taken me at my word thus far, and you haven't had occasion to call me either a knave or a fool. Do it a little longer and I'll put you in the way of setting off a set-piece of pyrotechnics that will double discount this mild little snap-cracker of the Belmount business."

"Can't you do it now?"

"No; the time isn't ripe yet. We must let the Tribune's coat of whitewash dry first."

Hildreth wriggled in his chair.

"Kent, if I thought it would do any good, I'd cue-curse you out; I would for a fact. You are too blamed close-mouthed for any newspaper use."

But Kent only laughed at him.

In spite of weariness, Kent was up betimes the next morning. He had a wire appointment with Blashfield Hunnicott and two others in Gaston, and he took an early train to keep it. The ex-local attorney met him at the station with a two-seated rig; and on the way to the western suburbs they picked up Frazee, the county assessor, and Orton, the appraiser of the Apache Building and Loan association.

"Hunnicott has told you what I am after," said Kent, when the survey party was made up. "We all know the property well enough, but to have it all fair and above board, we'll drive out and look it over so that our knowledge may be said to be fully up to date."

Twenty minutes afterwards the quartet was locating the corner of a square in Gaston's remotest suburb; an

"FOUR MEN SAT IN LOW-TONED CONFIDENCE AROUND THE GOVERNOR'S TABLE."

"addition" whose only improvements were the weathered and rotting street and lot stakings on the bare, brown plain.

"Lots 1 to 56 in block 10, Guilford & Hawk's addition," said Kent, reading from a memorandum in his note-book. "It lies beautifully, doesn't it?"

"Yes; for a chicken farm," chuckled the assessor.

"Well, give me your candid opinion, you two: what is the property worth?"

The Building and Loan man scratched his chin.

"Say $50 for the plot—if you'll fence it."

"No, put it up. You are having a little boom here now; give it the top boom price, if you like."

The two referees drew apart and laid their heads together.

"As property is going here just now, $50 for the inside lots, and $100 apiece for the corners; say three thousand for the plot. And that is just about three times what anybody but a land-crazy idiot would give for it." It was Frazee who announced the decision.

"Thank you both until you are better paid. Now we'll go back to town and you can write me a joint letter stating the fact. If you think it will get you disliked here at home, make the figure higher; make it high enough so that all Gaston will be dead sure to approve."

"You are going to print it?" asked the Building and Loan appraiser.

"I may want to. You may shape it to that end."

"I'll stand by my figures," said Frazee. "It will give me my little chance to get back at the governor. I had it assessed as unimproved suburban property at so much the lot, but he made a kick to the board of equalization and got it put in as unimproved farm land at $50 an acre." Then, looking at his watch: "We'd better be getting back, if you want to catch the accomodation. Won't you stay over and visit with us?"

"I can't, this time; much obliged," said Kent; and they drove to the Building and Loan office where the joint letter of appraisal was written and signed.

Kent caught his train with something to spare, and was back at the capital in good time to keep a dinner engagement at Miss Van Brock's. He had understood that Ormsby would be the only other guest. But Portia had a little surprise in store for him. Loring had dropped in, unannounced, from the east; and Portia, having first ascertained that Mrs. Brentwood's asthma was prohibitive of late dinings-out, had instructed Ormsby to bring Elinor and Penelope.

Kent had been saving the results of his deep-sea divings in the oil-field investigation to spread them out before Miss Van Brock and Ormsby "in committee," but he put a padlock on his lips when he saw the others.

Portia gave him Elinor to take out, and he would have rejoiced brazenly if the table talk, from the bouillon to the ices, had not been persistently general, turning most naturally upon the Universal Oil company's successful coup in the Belmount field. Kent kept out of it as much as he could, striving manfully to monopolize Elinor for his own especial behoof; but finally Portia laid her commands upon him.

"You are not to be allowed to maroon yourself with Miss Brentwood any longer," she said dictatorially. "You know more about the unpublished part of this Belmount conspiracy than anyone excepting the conspirators themselves, and you are to tell us all about it."

Kent looked up rather helplessly.

"Really, I—I'm not sure that I know anything worth repeating at your dinner-table," he protested.

But Miss Van Brock made a mock of his caution.

"You needn't be afraid. I pledged everybody to secrecy before you came. It is understood that we are in 'executive session.' And if you don't know much, you may tell us what you know now more than you knew before you knew so little as you know now."

"Hold on," said Kent; "will you please say that over again and say it slowly?"

"Never mind," laughed Ormsby. "Miss Portia has a copyright on that. But before you begin, I'd like to know if the newspapers have it straight as far as they have gone into it?"

"They have, all but one small detail. They are saying that Senator Duvall has left the city and the state."

"Hasn't he?" Loring asked.

"He hadn't yesterday."

"My-oh!" said Portia. "They will mob him if he shows himself."

Kent nodded assent.

"He knows it; he is hiding out. But I found him."

"Where?" from the three women in chorus.

"In his own house, out in Pentland place. The family has been away since April, and the place has been shut up. I took him the first meal he'd had in 36 hours."

Portia clapped her hands. The butler came in with the coffee and she dismissed him and bade him shut the doors.

"Now begin at the very tip end of the beginning," she commanded.

Kent had a sharp little tussle with his inborn reticience, thrust it to the wall and told a plain tale.

"It begins in a piece of reckless folly. Shortly after I left Miss Brentwood's last Thursday evening I had a curious experience. The shortest way down-town is diagonally through the capitol grounds, but some undefinable impulse led me to go around on the Capitol avenue side. As I was passing the right wing of the building I saw lights in the governor's room, and in a sudden fit of desperation resolved to go up and have it out with Bucks. It was abnormally foolish, I'll confess, I had nothing definite to go on; but I—well, I was keyed up to just about the right pitch, and I thought I might bluff him."

"Mercy me! You do need a guardian angel worse than anybody I know!" Portia cut in. "Do go on."

Kent nodded.

"I had one that night; angel or demon, which ever you please. I was fairly dragged into doing what I did. When I reached the upper corridor the door of the public anteroom was ajar, and I heard voices. The outer room was not lighted, but the door between it and the governor's private office was open. I went in and stood in that open doorway for as much as five minutes, I think, and none of the four men sitting around the governor's writing-table saw me."

He had his small audience well in hand by this time, and Ormsby's question was almost mechanical.

"Who were the four?"

"After the newspaper rapid-fire of this morning you might guess them all. They were his excellency, Grafton Hendricks, Rumford, and Senator Duvall. They were in the act of closing the deal as I became an onlooker. Rumford had withdrawn his application for a charter, and another straw company had been formed with Duvall at its head. I saw at once what a fancy Duvall never suspected; that he was going to be made the scapegoat for the ring. They all promised to stand by him—and you see how that promise has been kept."

"Good heavens!" ejaculated Loring. "What a despicable lot of scoundrels! But the bribe—did you learn anything about that?"

"I saw it," said Kent, impassively. "It was a slip of paper passed across the table by Rumford to Bucks, face down. Bucks glanced at it before he thrust it into his pocket, and I had my glimpse, too. It was a draft on a Chicago bank, but I could not read the figures, and I doubt if either of the other conspirators knew the amount. Then the governor tossed a folded paper over to the oil man, saying, 'There is your deed to the choicest piece of property in all Gaston, and you've got it dirt cheap.' I came away at that."

Elinor's sigh was almost a sob but Miss Van Brock's eyes were dancing.

"Go on, go on," she exclaimed. "That is only the beginning."

Kent's smile was of reminiscent weariness.

"I found it so, I assure you. So far as any usable evidence was concerned, I was no better off than before. It was merely my assertion against their denial—one man against four. But I have had a full week, and it has not been wasted. I needn't bore you with the mechanical details. One of my men followed Bucks' messenger to Chicago—he wouldn't trust the banks here or the mails—and we know now, know it in black on white, with the proper affidavits, that the draft was for $200,000, payable to the order of Jasper G. Bucks. The ostensible consideration was the transfer from Bucks to Rumford of a piece of property in the outskirts of Gaston. I had this piece of land appraised for me to-day by two disinterested citizens of Gaston, and they valued it at a possible, but highly improbable $3,000."

"Oh, how clumsy!" said Portia, in fine scorn. "Does his excellency imagine for a moment that any one would be deceived by such a primitive bit of dust-throwing?" and Ormsby also had something to say about the fatal mistakes of the shrewdest criminals.

"It was not so—" said Kent. "If it should ever be charged that he took money from Rumford, here is a plain business transaction to account for it. The deed, as recorded, has nothing to say of the enormous price paid. The phrasing is the common form used when the parties to the transfer do not wish to make the price public: 'For $1 to me in hand paid, and other valuable considerations.' Luckily, we are able to establish conclusively what the 'other valuable considerations' were."

"It seems to me that these documents arm and equip you for anything you want to do," said Loring, polishing his eye-glasses after his ingrained habit.

Kent shook his head.

Brutalizing Influence of the Whipping Post

By MRS. ANNIE G. MURRAY,

Secretary of Board of Trustees of Children's Institutions Department, Boston.

For that strange type of human degradation known as the wife-beater there can be no word of sympathy or condonation. It is a perfectly natural impulse in any generous nature to express the utmost loathing for the crime of wife-beating, and even to suggest extravagant penalties for this most contemptible offense.

It seems to me, however, that to adopt the whipping-post as an instrument of punishment for even so low a type of criminal, would be to surrender in some degree to the influence of brutality which the wife-beater himself represents.

Men actuated by the most generous impulses may often do that which is only an imitation of the wickedness that aroused their rage, and how much fury has been perpetuated in the human heart by the attempt to redress the balances of human conduct? Undoubtedly the men who hanged witches were thinking primarily of dealing a blow at the power of Satan, and of freeing human souls from diabolical control. We need not to be reminded that these men were grievously mistaken.

I think that all progress has been away from the kind of penalty for wrong-doing that the whipping-post represents, and it seems to me that if wife-beating is brutal and degrading, the whipping-post would be hardly less so in its general influence in any community. Both are to be abominated, and many persons might argue that a community such as ours, with its high level of earnest moral purpose, and all its heritage of good sense and calm reflection, which adopted so brutal a form of punishment as this relic of an era that we have left so far behind us would be worthier of condemnation than the poor, ignorant, nearly always drunken wife-beater.

The whipping-post is essentially a barbarous instrument of punishment. It could not fail to have a barbarous influence. Wife-beating, certainly, is barbarous also; but wife-beating happily is confined to isolated individual cases of moral degeneracy.

NEW POSTMASTER GENERAL

George B. Cortelyou Reenters President's Cabinet After a Short Absence.

Washington.—The only change made by President Roosevelt in his cabinet after his inauguration was in the postal department, where George B. Cortelyou has succeeded Robert J. Wynne as postmaster-general. Mr. Wynne has been appointed consul-general at London.

Cortelyou's rapid rise from a stenographer in the executive offices to a seat in the president's cabinet has been entirely through his own efforts. He was born in the city of New York July 26, 1862. He was given a common school education, and afterward graduated by the Hempstead, L. I., institute and the State Normal school, Westfield, Mass. Still later he was graduated from the law schools of Columbian and Georgetown universities, Washington. He entered the public service in 1899, and has been private secretary to various officials. In November, 1896, he was appointed stenographer to President Cleveland and from that date his rapid rise began. He became successively executive clerk, assistant secretary to Presiden: McKinley, and finally secretary to the president serving in that capacity until the death of the last president, when he was reappointed to the place by President Roosevelt, serving him until his selection as the first secretary of the department of commerce and labor. He left that office to become chairman of the republican national committee, and managed the campaign with great ability, bringing it to a close with the largest plurality ever given a presidential candidate.

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU.

(Who Succeeds Robert J. Wynne as Postmaster-General.)

"I am well now and enjoying better health than ever before in my whole life."

That is the statement of a woman who had never been well until she was made well by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There are a great many other women in like case. They have always been sufferers from disease. They have never known the joy of perfect health.

For all such women Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription holds out the prospect of perfect and permanent health by the cure of the womanly diseases which weaken women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"It gives me pleasure to let you know of the great benefit received from Dr. Pierce's medicines and the advice which you so kindly sent," writes Mrs. Bertie Parker, of Bonham, Fannin Co., Texas. "I took your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and followed your advice regarding the 'Lotion Tablets,' and am cured. I had been treated by different doctors and spent one hundred dollars for treatment and medicine, but received very little relief. I have only spent seventeen dollars and fifty cents for your medicine and it has cured me in three or four months of ulceration and falling of uterus. I suffered severe misery in my back, also irregular periods. Had bearing-down in lower portion of body and great pain all through my body. Pain in uterus was very severe. Had smothering spells, breath was very short all the time, had pain in stomach, pain in my thighs, pain in breast like bruises in my shoulders. Bowels constipated. I am well now and enjoying better health than ever before in my whole life. Am happy to tell you that I was cured by your good advice and good medicines, the 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' 'Pleasant Pellets' and 'Lotion Tablets.' These medicines cured me and will cure others also."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the bowels.

RAGE FOR EMBROIDERY.

The Old-Style Eyelet Sort Is Now Known as "Anglaise" and Sells for a Very Pretty Penny.

The new spring dresses, waists and hats are so fascinating that one can hardly await the time when they will be in order.

The charming and useful shirt waist suit will be so much in evidence all day and everywhere, and in so many materials, that hats suitable for these, and also for the severer woollex and other tailor suits, are among the first important offerings.

These hats show new features; as the costumes are more ornate, the hats have acquired more elaboration in shape and treatment; still, they are simple, retaining the character which has made them popular.

Among the many novelties is a new "lingerie" or "tub" hat, which is intended to wear with "tub" suits to match. This is of English eyelet embroidered linen, chambray or batiste, a brim cut to shape, with scalloped edge, the crown covered with a fitted piece and the underbrim of narrow ruffles of valenciennes lace run on a fitted piece of muslin, or washing net or chiffon run on cords, which hold the piece in shape.

Such hats are easily taken apart, laundered and put together again. Of course, they can be worn with different suits, the all white specially, as different sets of trimmings can be used for different suits.

It will be a great ribbon season—that is sure—not only for hat trimmings, but for stocks and girdles to match, shirred, tucked and draped over natty feather-boned foundations.

A very pretty "mushroom" shape is most attractive. It is shown in "lingerie" make-up, with crown of embroidered lawn or linen and brim of lace ruffles, with detachable ribbon trimmings.

These "mushroom" hats are also seen in the lovely new straws and wood silk braids, with fluffy underbrims that show up charmingly by reason of the uplifting bandeau.

Large transparent hats of Neapolitan, in white, black and colors, are bent into the most wonderful arrangements—colonial, Napoleon, Corday, cavalier and Victoria bonnets are seen, and many another charming shape, without reference to any particular period, only that it shall enhance the loveliness of the wearer.

Small hats are for the moment more popular, therefore the large shapes are bent and twisted until their size is quaintly reduced. But large shapes will never quite lose favor. Nothing is so picturesque so suitable, with an elegant rolled or a large fluffy feather trimmed hat.

The spring models are mostly in soft, light colors, the materials are soft silk and ribbons in shadings of one color, shaded and pompadour gauzes and nets and flowers.

GENERAL SUGGESTIONS.

Mildewed linen should be soaked for several hours in buttermilk and then washed in the usual way.

Never wear new stockings till you have had them washed, for the washing somewhat shrinks and toughens the fiber of the wool and they will not be so liable to go into holes as if worn directly they were bought.

Ordinary washing with soap and water will not generally remove the stains on egg spoons. Take a piece of flannel, damp it and dip it in table salt. Then rub the stains with this and they will rapidly disappear.

If you want to shut off any view you can do it very cheaply with an imitation of ground glass. Dissolve as much Epsom salts as the water will absorb in a little hot water and paint it over the inside of the window. When dry you will have a very fair imitation of ground glass.

Egg in a Nest.

Break an egg and separate the yolk from the white. Add a few grains of salt to the white and beat until stiff. Heap this on a round of toasted bread, which has first been dipped in boiling salted water. Drop the yolk in the center and bake in a moderate oven until delicately browned.

Clean Telephone Receiver.

Put a drop or two of carbolic acid on the cloth that is used to clean the telephone and all danger of germ infection will be avoided.

Silent Signals

A slight chill; a little hoarseness; a feeling of constriction about the lungs; a feverish flush of the face—these are Silent Signals. They mean you have taken cold, and here

THE DANGER BEGINS.

Be warned by these signs. They are the forerunners of Consumption. If you are wise you will see the necessity for the immediate use of

Hale's Honey OF Horehound and Tar

This is not a preparation of doubtful virtue. It has been endorsed by the experience of ears and its value as a remedial agent for lung troubles, and a cure for coughs, colds and bronchial affections, is well-known.

THE FIRST CAT

The Ark on the dark multitudinous waters
Was tossing the rain in a cataract poured
But Noah and his family their sons and their sons' daughters
And all the wild live stock were safely aboard

They weren't much seasick in spite of the weather
And rather cramped quarters they did food to suffice,
And all things were lovely while speaking together
There rushed from the crew a rabble of mice

They multiplied—yes like a warren of rabbits
They pundered the pantry devoured the grain
And such were their simply unspeakable habits
That poor Mrs Noah was well nigh insane

She said so in language untrammeled and forceful
And what might have happened the Lord only knows
When Noah the kindly and ever resourceful
Went up to the Lion and tickled his nose

Then thrice sneezed the lion—and with from the feature
His majesty sneezed with there leaped in a trice
A silky haired dagger clawed bristle creature—
And woe to the ravaging mice thereafter

In twenties in thirties in fifties sixes sevens
Before Mrs Noah had time to say "Scat"
"Ahh" laughed the Skipper who watched her pursue them
"I don't know its name don't care I call it—A Cat"

So born of a sneeze in the Ruin of Ages
That dredged the mountain the valley and plain
The Cat on our hearthstone to this day presages
By sneezing herself that it's going to rain

A SPIRITED HOAX

THE old colonel was sitting with his legs spread out in front of the fire and with carpet slippers on his feet was the picture of solid comfort

'Howdy son' he said I was just thinking of the time in the latter 60s when I was a member of a club that had been organized here shortly before and known as The Knockers No matter what came up we always knocked it Every man had a little hammer

'We had a great deal of fun out of our club and had many peculiar experiences

An old fellow named Brown worked here at a saddler's shop then and he believed that spirits could be prevailed on to come back to earth, and cited experiences of his in Cincinnati New York St Louis and other cities to show that their was something in it He came to some of us one day and with an air of great secrecy asked if we believed in spiritualism We immediately assured him that we did Then, one by one, he drew off and proposed that we form a small circle as he called it and there converse with the inhabitants of the spirit world that he claimed to be able to conjure up We entered into the spirit of the thing with a whole heap of zest and assured the old gentleman that we were ready to begin at once

We rented a room at the hotel and that night we held our first meeting The old fellow called us to order and had us sing a little and then ranged us around the table with the little fingers of each hand barely touching Then the room was darkened and the fun was ready to begin For a long half hour we sat there and nothing PLEASANT YOU was doing Then KIND SPIRIT one of the boys lifted up his voice and asked Mr Brown by what sign would the spirit manifest itself it by chance one did happen to come in to get a look at us The old man answered that the spirit would give a loud rap on the table to signify that it was with us Then if we desired to ask questions it would answer yes or no by means of raps One rap signified no and two raps said yes Well it was not too long till a rap was heard Mr Brown said Thank you, kind spirit and every fellow followed suit Then an interesting conversation took place Old man Brown asked many questions as to who the spirit was and these were immediately answered by raps Every time we heard a rap every fellow said, 'Thank you kind spirit.'

We kept this up for some time and when at last we got ready to stop we were admonished by Brown to say nothing of the occurrences, which we all solemnly agreed to You see it is very easy to make the raps on the table if you fix your fingers in the right position

'We continued these meetings for several nights and each time we would have surprising results Spirits came to us galore and we had the time of our lives Finally Kennedy one of the fellows said he was going to have a picture of that ghost or bust We attempted to dissuade him but old Brown just laughed and said to let him go on

One of the boys had a gutta percha skeleton that he had secured somewhere and one day he took the skeleton up to the circle room tied it in an upright position and took a photo of it. That night when the circle met Kennedy toted his camera up to the room and when the raps began coming in he leveled his picture machine at the darkness under the table and let er go Next day Kennedy developed a really good likeness of the old skeleton The whole gang of us then went running down to see Mr Brown and show him the picture. The old fellow was overcome and told us he recognized the skeleton as that of a very dear friend of his who had mysteriously disappeared some years before Then somebody suggested that we hold an other circle immediately to see if the spirit would tell us something of himself That night we met But we previously bored a hole through the wall and put a piece of garden hose through At each end of the hose we placed a funnel and at the end of it in another room we stationed one of our men We had a little grudge against the newspaper correspondent of the town and we told him that we were having an interesting time at our spiritualistic meetings and invited him to join that night He grabbed at the chance and was badly excited when we got to the room That day one of the boys had borrowed a skeleton from a doctor and carried it to an old straw stack about a mile from town and buried it in an old pine box

We held the circle and soon got the spirit on the line All of us asked questions in a rather loud voice and which were easily overheard by our man in the next room He immediately answered through the garden hose telephone and his voice sounded so unearthly that it made little chills run up and down our backs The spirit told us he had been murdered years before and his body buried in the old straw stack It said it recognized old man Brown as a former very dear friend but knew none of the others Well sir old Brown was just hopping He wanted to hike out right away for the old straw stack and the newspaper correspondent was just as bad We got a lot of lanterns and started We took the worst road we could find and by the time we got there all were pretty muddy Then we found that we had left town without a spade to dig with The correspondent walked that long muddy mile back to town for the spade and he certainly made record times When he at last reappeared we voted to let him do the digging He dug over the whole territory before he at last located the skeleton Dragging it out he looked at the innocent old thing and says Boys I've got a beat Don't say a word We shouldered that old skeleton and waded back to town It was placed in the window of an undertaker's shop and people came from all over the country to see the remains of the victim of a horrible murder The papers from one end of the country to the other were full of it

We let it run along about a week and then fer up I was sending out a little stuff to newspapers once in awhile myself and I wrote up the hoax And all the papers printed that None of the papers reached here then except what I received and I kept them hidden so old man Brown would not see them We were wondering how to put him on when one of the boys saw him coming up the street Grasping that little gutta percha skeleton he walked down the street swinging it between his fingers The old man saw it and turned white He came up to where we were and I handed him a paper with the whole thing in it He read the article through and then turned around and looked at each of us individually and collectively He walked away and never spoke to one of us again

Where is he now? Down in the Pentagon as hot where he ought to have been a long time before —Kansas City Star

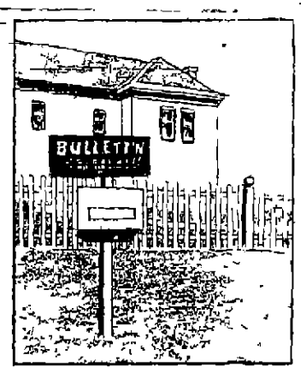
Device in Connection with Rural Mail Delivery — Other Labor Saving Conveniences in Use in That Section

Indianapolis Ind —The southern Indiana farmer who too often is unfavorably contrasted with the northern Indiana farmer has the latter distanced in many practical and simple conveniences

The southern Hoosier has been particularly active in applying his inventive genius to the rural mail service and has put into practical use many little labor saving devices that his northern brother farmer could copy with profit He has reasoned it out that the post supplying his rural mail box can serve for other purposes and has grafted on to it a bulletin board These bulletin boards are small black boards with a weather strip across the top and along the sides On this board the farmer or his wife is able to give orders in information to the rural mail carrier or receive information from him

In some places the farmers and their rural mail carriers have adopted a sort of shorthand weather signal service The carrier sets the morning bulletin before he starts out and with a piece of chalk he indicates fair, stormy, changeable, colder or warmer weather by a set of hieroglyphics that are understood by the farmer These boards standing out prominently before the houses are also used in posting notices to all passers-by on the road or are used much as a doctor's office slate is used in leaving notice that the family is away and will be back in a certain time People who have come also can leave their cards by using the chalk that is kept stowed away under the top of the weather strip This useful contrivance costs very little and adds



BULLETIN BOARD DEVICE
(Used by Farmers in Southern Indiana)

rather than detracts from the rural mail box

Another contrivance of the farmers of the hills is a hill-climbing rural mail box The ordinary rural mail box post is placed at the roadside and a wire cable is then stretched from it up the hill to the farm house and is drawn taut The rural box is equipped with an overhead trolley wheel fitting snugly over the wire By use of another wire the box is drawn up whenever the mail man comes It is then permitted to run down the wire again to the post where it is secured by springs The farmers of the steep land whose farms are some distance from the rural mail box also have adopted such contrivances and to get grade for their cable they stretch it from an upstairs window These contrivances especially are convenient during rainy weather and in winter and have proved to be entirely satisfactory

Another interesting device has been developed by the southern Indiana rural telephone patrons They have bought extra receivers and insulated wire connections These extra phones are attached to the binding posts or screws on top of the telephone box The farmers have found that these screws always give an open circuit and that with their own telephone closed they are able to sit and hear all that is being said over the party line. An Indianapolis News man recently was talking over one of these lines and thought he was having a confidential conversation as there was no interference all phones being closed When the conversation was nearing an end a third voice came in on the wire and said that the person speaking desired some information This brought in another voice and soon a half dozen were talking It revealed the fact that all along the line people were spending the Sunday afternoon listening to what was going over the telephone wire and hearing something in which they were interested they wanted more information Consequently they took down the regular receiver thus opening their telephones so that they could talk At first this scheme was a great convenience but some telephone users now find that they cannot have confidential talks over the phone without a lot of wire tappers listening in

BISHOP WAS A FREEMASON

How the Pope Trapped a French Priest Who Belonged to the Order in Rome.

France has produced a freemason bishop Such a thing had never been seen before and it remained for that country to produce such a phenomenon The bishop of Digne unquestionably affiliated with the famous society It is not known by what means Bishop le Nordez membership in this fraternity came to be known but what I have learned from the lips of one of the most prominent cardinals in Rome is the manner in which the pope got the bishop to confess When the bishop was summoned before the pope he began by protesting against what he termed the calumnies which were directed against him Calumnies" Are you quite sure" said Pope Pius X and quietly opening a drawer he produced the very act of membership signed by the bishop's hand Tableau' The prelate finding himself caught admitted that the document had indeed been signed by him However as the vatican was willing in order to avoid scandal to keep him in the fold and as a bishop's appointments are not to be disdained M le Nordez promptly sent in his resignation to his lodge

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes

The kidneys are your blood purifiers they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order they fail to do their work

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble because the heart is over-working in pumping thick kidney poisoned blood through veins and arteries

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty cent and one-dollar sizes You may have a sample bottle by mail free also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Earth Lighter Than Formerly

A British scientist in a recent address points out that a many million tons of coal have been taken out of the earth and burned in the last few years the earth thereby lighter by that amount He warns now if the supply will not interfere with the welfare of the solar system but another scientific authority says that it is a calamity to the east coast of England and Holland on the west This is taken to indicate that England will go farther west and ultimately reach the American continent It is suggested that no more coal be mined in order to keep the island compact

Embalm Corpses in Glass

In order to preserve the features of those who have died it is proposed by a Russian to embalm corpses by casting around them a solid mass of glass This would be perfect preservation as no air could get in the features would be preserved indefinitely Of course it is not possible to pour molten glass directly on the body so it is first coated with a thin covering of so called liquid glass or sodium silicate This is allowed to harden and forms a protective coating The body is then put in a mold and melted glass poured around it

Has New Pleasure Boat

Capt J Larsen a sailor on the great lakes has just received patents on a new form of pleasure boat The boat is supplied with a glass bottom and under the bottom is an electric light which will illuminate the water and the bed of the stream for some distance around A hooded reflector makes it possible to sit comfortably in the boat and witness the curious things in the water below with great ease and pictures may be taken also by means of a mirror

NEW ROYAL DEBUTANTE.

Princess Ena of Battenburg Soon to Be in the Market for a Husband

London — Among the interesting debutantes of the season who will make their formal entry into society at the first court at Buckingham palace is Princess Victoria Eugenie Julia Ena of Battenberg usually styled Princess Ena Born on October 24 1887 she is now 17 years old and as her photograph shows is quite a pretty girl having inherited her mother's good looks

[illegible] is that at Hatfield [illegible] Battenberg family the Battenbergs have not the money the house of Hanover has [illegible] passed with them Princess Henry of Battenberg at Osborne village [illegible] of Wight Here the children have taken to paint [illegible] very fondness and [illegible] good [illegible] from the artistic [illegible] out of doors she has developed into a wholesome type of healthy womanhood of high spirited pluck and energy free from affectation Her favorite pastime is [illegible] which she shares with her mother [illegible] a rifle or trimming [illegible] the Irish sailor lad [illegible] is a pity that [illegible] of her royal blood she will be subjected to such severe restrictions in the choice of a husband The chances are that some petty German duchy will eventually provide her with a mate though an alliance with one of the native houses of nobility would be much more popular here

Princess Ena's mother is the youngest daughter of the late Queen Victoria which makes King Edward her uncle It was in 1885 that Princess Beatrice married Prince Henry of Battenberg who died in 1896 Ena is the only girl in the family and has three brothers—Prince Alexander who is barely a year older than herself and Prince Leopold and Prince Maurice who are much younger Queen Victoria as is well known was extremely partial to the Battenbergs and brought about a match between her favorite granddaughter and a younger brother of Prince Henry, Prince Louis who is soon to visit America in command of a fighting squadron

Arithmetical Puzzle

A reader sends the Buffalo Commercial this a thousand puzzle Take the number of your living brothers double this amount add to it three multiply the result by five add to the number of living sisters multiply the result by ten add the number of living brothers and sisters subtract 1 0 from the result The figures standing at the right will be the number of brothers and the middle figure will be the number of living sisters the left hand will now show number of living brothers Ans these figures never lie

Aptitude Compared

The mathematical aptitude of boys and girls of 8 to 15 years has been computed by Prof A Mercante of Buenos Ayres by tests of quickness in reading numbers and in arithmetical operations A curious discovery is that an abnormal activity of memory exists at about 11 followed by a period of intellectual depression and at 14 by a sudden leap in creative imagination and reasoning power

Pocket Electric Cigar Lighter

Pocket electric cigar lighters operated by a storage battery and electric hair curling irons operated by an incandescent lamp are now on the market The curling irons are intended primarily for traveling and are useful as long as the traveler is to be within the electric zone

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder disorders

Yet other men suffer every day from these same ills Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy diabetes, Bright's disease and death

Sincere honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic

A C Sprague stock dealer, of Normal, Ill, writes For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all"

FRANK CONEVERY, - - Editor and Proprietor

THE operations of the "get-rich quick" trust, whose center is Philadelphia, are said to have extended from Alaska to South America, with 15,000 dupes and losses of $7,000,000.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT left Washington on Monday for a six weeks' trip, which is to include attendance at the reunion of Rough Riders at San Antonio to-morrow and a hunting trip in Colorado of several weeks duration.

THE St. Louis Globe-Democrat remarks that "It seems a little bit extravagant to be offering $100,000 for a suitable man to superintend and direct the work on the Panama canal, when it is recalled that Columbus discovered America on a salary of $300 a year."

ACCORDING to the memorandum kept by the secretary of Andrew Carnegie, the iron king, his unfilled promises in the matter of endowments for colleges and libraries amounts to $17,000,000. At present Mr. Carnegie is giving at the rate of $20,000 a day for libraries, and is looking for another outlet for his benevolence.

Among the bills signed by Governor Pennypacker last week were the following: Extending for one year the period in which tax collectors may have to collect taxes for the payment of which they have become liable. Providing that townships having a population of 250 to the square mile shall be townships of the first class.

AN announcement from the War Office at St. Petersburg gives the exact number of men, guns, horses and tons of supplies which have been sent to the scene of war during the thirteen months since hostilities were begun as follows: Men, 761,477; officers, 13,087; horses, 146,408; guns, 1521; munitions and supplies, 316,321 tons. Taking the officers and men at the round aggregate of 775,000, this means that it would have been necessary for the Trans-Siberian railroad to have landed nearly 2000 men in Manchuria every day of the period under consideration.

HOW LONG, O LORD, HOW LONG.

(From the Philadelphia Press.)

This country is at peace with all the world, but its war expenditures are so heavy that it is now proposed to put a tax on tea and coffee in order to find adequate revenue for gunpowder purposes.

The State of Pennsylvania collects from the people year after year excessive revenues, but in order to keep a large balance on deposit in favored banks and to afford greater opportunity for graft it is proposed to put a tax on coal and oil, putting the producers of coal and oil at a disadvantage in competition with coal and oil producers in other States.

Drunk with power, in State and nation, the Republican party bends itself to the will of a domineering and profligate leadership. How long will the taxpayers, who pay the score and suffer the consequences of governmental corruption and extravagance, slavishly submit themselves to be fleeced?

WOMAN COMMITS SUCIDE.

"I May Be Next to Go," She Said at Funeral the Day Previous.

Mrs. J. E. White, wife of a farmer living at North Fork, Potter county, near Westfield, committed suicide last week Monday. For a week she had been in a melancholy mood and had talked so strangely that it is now believed she was demented. On Sunday she attended the funeral of a friend at Rexville and while returning said that she only wished she could exchange places with the one in the casket and then added that perhaps she would be the next one to go.

Monday morning she arose and got breakfast the same as usual and after her husband had departed she told the children to go out doors and play and to take the youngest, a baby of a year old. They had been out a little while when they decided they wanted to go back in the house, but could not find their mother, but heard a noise in the bedroom which was locked.

One of the children then ran to tell the father who was working some distance away. He hurried to the house, burst open the door and found her past all help. She had taken carbolic acid. The deceased was about 29 years of age and was the mother of four young children.

Contract Let for Good Road.

The contract has been let for a stretch of good road over a mile long under the provisions of the Sproul-Roberts bill, in Charleston, beginning at the Wellsboro line on what is known as the State road. Booth & Flinn, of Pittsburg, have been awarded the contract for $11,499.

The people of this part of the State will soon have an opportunity to see what can be done with State aid to secure good roads. When this piece of road is completed it is expected that the demand for good roads from other sections will come with ever-increasing urgency till the appropriation for this county is exhausted. In a few years it is hoped we shall have good roads all over the county.

CHATHAM GRANGERS FEAST.

An Enjoyable Occasion at Little Marsh—Cute Trick of Smart Alecks.

LITTLE MARSH, April 5.—Excelsior Grange continues to prosper and increase in membership. Saturday evening several members took the fourth degree and one was reinstated. About 100 persons participated in the sumptuous feast which followed the ceremonies. County Commissioner H. H. Cooper generously donated the supply of oysters for the occasion. The Academy Corners or Valley Grange, Sabinsville and the Losey Creek Granges were represented, together with members from several of the nearby Granges.

The exercises consisted of brief addresses by Alexander Lattimer, Mrs. E. E. Carpenter and the ever ready George Dickinson; two recitations by Mrs. D. King, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music by Mrs. David Hornsby, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sprague and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Curtis. All who took part did themselves great credit and added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

A few evenings since a young man came here and took his girl to a lecture in the church, putting his horse and buggy in the church shed. When ready to return home he discovered that the wheels had been removed from his buggy and the burrs were also missing. Suspicion rests on a couple of smart alecks and "Peeping Toms." If they are caught in perpetrating some of these low-lived tricks we predict they will fare pretty bad.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Rice were the victims of a pleasant April fool trick, a little baby daughter being left at their home that day.

Mrs. T. E. Roberts is occupying the house of Satie Rice, recently vacated by Mr. Wamsly.

Ira Doane, our barber, has moved for the first time in ten years and now occupies a shop separate and apart from his house.

D. E. Cooper, our general merchant and postmaster, has connected his second floor by a stairway and will use it for a show room for a large stock of carpets and readymade clothing.

Mrs. Fred Lewis is visiting at the home of her parents at Galeton.

Mrs. Myra Davis is spending some time in Galeton with Mrs. Clara Hill, who recently fell and cut her hand severly on a broken bottle.

Charles Hawley, of Middlebury, who recently spent a few days here with relatives, expects soon to leave for Earle, Arkansas, where his uncle, H. C. Hawley, is located.

Charles V. Carpenter has moved to the Beach farm, which he has rented.

George Ransome is working the J. H. Ferris farm.

A few days ago a number of notes, leases, etc., belonging to the late L. O. Beach, were sold at auction. One note for $150 was bid off for $48 and presented to the maker of the note. Another for $50, against a well-to-do business man, was struck off for 50 cents by himself.

COAL STRIKE AVERTED.

Central Pennsylvania Operators Agree to Sign the Old Wage Scale.

The people of this section of the State are highly gratified to know that the threatened strike of the soft coal miners of the Central Pennsylvania region has been averted. Representatives of the principal coal mining companies of the district have reached an agreement which precludes the possibility of a strike. The old wage scale is to be maintained. This is based on the payment of 62 cents a ton for pick mining, and is entirely satisfactory to the men.

The representatives of the operators met in Philadelphia last Saturday and after a short session announced that they would sanction the renewal of the general scale for another year. Committees representing the operators and the miners met in Altoona some days ago, but adjourned without reaching an agreement.

If the mines had been closed 45,000 men would have been thrown out of employment and the users of bituminous coal would have been put to great inconvenience. In view of the threatened strike the New York Central last week held up several hundred cars of coal in the yard at Jersey Shore.

Cunning of Sheep Killing Dogs.

Tioga county paid $2,129.90 to owners of sheep for ravages done by dogs during 1904, which included auditors and justices' fees, and this county is not especially noted as a sheep raising section. The cunning that a dog, incited by a sheep killing disposition will show while engaged in his bloody work, is almost beyond belief. Oldtime sheep men declare that no dog, after his first experience in killing sheep, will return home with the least outward signs on his body in the way of wool or blood. That where a running stream is not available, the dog pack will take turns in licking clean the coats of their fellow canines of wool and blood, and where it is possible to find a pool of water or running stream of water, the dogs will plunge into this, and as carefully remove the evidences of their crime as a human being who had been engaged in murder.

Candy Eggs Adulterated.

Thousands of boys and girls throughout the State will be deprived of their customary candy Easter eggs if the crusade that has been started in different parts of Pennsylvania by the pure food agent are successful. Chocolate Easter eggs especially come under the ban. It is said that several samples of the coloring matter used in the manufacture of chocolate eggs had been tested and it is alleged that they were found to contain large quantities of paraffine wax and powdered marble. This is unfit to put in the stomach of a child, the inspectors say, and there will be wholesale prosecutions brought.

INJUNCTION ARGUMENT

Resume of the Evidence Given Before Judge Cameron Last Week.

DECISION OF THE COURT

Awaited With Great Interest by the Parties Directly Concerned and the Public Generally—Evidence as Shown by the Company is Very Weak.

Last Thursday morning argument was resumed on the motion to dissolve the temporary injunction issued by Judge Cameron against the striking miners at Morris Run. The Court reserved his decision on this point and asked that the parties proceed to the evidence.

There are twenty four defendants "and their associates" named in the plaintiff's bill and they are charged, substantially, with having "met, followed and surrounded, on public highways and elsewhere, certain employes and workmen of the plaintiff company, who desired to remain in its employment, and by threats of personal harm and injury, and angry words and violent and abusive conduct and gestures, and by assaults, attempted to prevent, intimidate and debar and have succeeded in intimidating and thereby preventing and deterring certain employes from remaining in the employment of the said plaintiff Company."

The defendants by their answer filed deny every material allegation contained in the plaintiff's bill.

The first witness sworn by the complainants was W. S. Nearing, Superintendent of the Morris Run Coal Company. Mr. Nearing could not swear, from personal knowledge, to having heard any threats directed against the strike breakers by the miners at Morris Run, neither could he testify to having personal knowledge of any assaults or intimidation directed against these men he had brought in. He said he had heard of intimidations, etc., but of course this could not be taken as evidence. He did testify, however, that on the 23d of March, on the public highway in Blossburg, he was surrounded by a number of the strikers, one of whom said to him, "You are against the union, d—— you, I'll kill you." He also testified that a few days after this as he was coming down the street in Morris Run some of the strikers called him a "scab." This was substantially all the Superintendent had to offer in the premises.

Malcom McDougal, the Assistant Superintendent for the Coal Company, was the next witness called for the plaintiff. He corroborated Mr. Nearing's testimony as to the trouble at Blossburg when one of the strikers threatened to kill the latter. He also testified to having gone to Bernice, Pa., and made contracts with sixty men there to come to Morris Run to take the place of the strikers. These sixty men, with their families in many instances, were the ones who arrived in Morris Run on the morning of the 17th of March. He testified to having seen the strikers stop some of the new men on the street, attempting to bribe them not to enter the employ of the Company and offering to pay their expenses back home. He could not testify, however, to having personal knowledge of any threats, intimidations or assaults directed against the strike breakers.

W. H. O'Donnell, bookkeeper for the Company, corroborated to a great extent the testimony of the last two witnesses, and testified further that he was at the station at Morris Run when the train bearing the crowd from Bernice came in, and that the strikers then made a demonstration, crying "scabs," surrounding the men and blocking their way to the street.

Ralph Taber, an employe of the Company, called by the plaintiff, testified to having been assaulted by strikers as he was on his way home from work on Saturday night in August last. He said there were about twenty-five strikers in the crowd and that six of them had drawn revolvers and by threats of personal violence made Taber and his companions promise not to go to work again for the Company. This evidence was corroborated by the companions mentioned, Chas. Hawthhorne and David Odgen.

Mrs. Ripjock, the wife of one of the men brought in from Bernice, said she was offered $100 if she and her husband would leave Morris Run, and that if they did not leave they would be killed. Mrs. Ripjock was corroborated in this by Sophia Blysick, who is also the wife of one of the strike-breakers.

Harry Vermilyea, Shodeus Spencer and Addison Spencer testified to having been assaulted by the strikers on the evening of the 14th of March, as they (Vermilyea and the Spencers) were returning to Covington after seeking employment at Morris Run.

Martin Wallace, one of the Bernice men, testified to having been approached by three of the strikers who offered him $75 if he would try and influence the strike breakers not to go to work, and threatened to kill him if he did not comply with their wishes.

John McDevitt, a strike-breaker from Philadelphia, and Abel Whittoken, night watchman at Morris Run, testified to having been threatened and assaulted by the strikers.

This was about all the evidence offered on the part of the complainant except that of several witnesses who swore that they were present at the arrival of the train on the morning of March 17th, and that there was some noise and confusion caused by the strikers.

On Friday morning at 11:30 the plaintiff rested.

The evidence offered by the witnesses for the defense was a direct denial of all the material allegations contained in the plaintiff's bill.

Rudolph Rudenski, the man who Mrs. Ripjock swore offered her $100 to induce her husband to leave Morris Run, and who she avers threatened to kill them if they did not leave, was the first witness called for direct examination by the counsel for the defendants. He testified that he was at Mrs. Ripjock's house but that he went there for the purpose of buying a cow which he had heard she wished to sell. He denied that he made any threat against the woman or her husband, and further stated that he did not offer her any money to leave Morris Run. The witness admitted that the cow was purchased with money supplied him by the union.

Harry Willock, one of the strikers, was the next witness called. He testified to being about the hall in the evening of the day the strike breakers came; there was a sort of union meeting held there that evening and many of the newcomers were present. He denied hearing or making any threats, nor did he know of any picketing or intimidating having taken place.

Thomas Smith was at the station the morning the non-union men came into Morris Run. He testified that there were probably 150 men gathered about the station and on the road leading to the hall. He denied hearing or making any threats and said that the crowd was quiet and orderly in every way; that there was no interference with the strike-breakers on their march to the hall, where they went first from the station, and during the entire period from the time the non-union men came there up to the present he had not known of a single instance where a threat or even vile language had been directed against these men.

David Estep, of Blossburg, president of sub-district No. 9, U. M. W. A., swore that he had warned the strikers not to intimidate or threaten in any way the men brought in there by the Company. He also appointed peace committees, whose business it was to keep watch of the strikers and see that there was no disturbance; to mingle with the men brought in by the company and protect them. This peace committee was also to go to the mines in the morning to see that there was no demonstration on the part of the union men.

Mr. Estep is the man whom Martin Wallace swore offered him $75 to use his influence to keep the men from going to work and threatened to kill him if he did not. Mr. Estep admitted offering Wallace money but denied making any threats.

James Purcell, district organizer U. M. W. A., corroborated Mr. Estep as to the orderliness of the strikers and denied ever hearing one of the non-union men threatened or intimidated in any way. He was at the head of a peace committee and was at the mines the morning the strike-breakers went to work. He testified that there were no vile names called; that the nature of the crowd was quiet and friendly.

Robert Lundie sworn, denied having uttered or heard any threats or intimidations directed against the new men during the entire period since the strike breakers came to Morris Run. This evidence was substantiated by about a dozen witnesses.

Sheriff Dorsett, sworn for the defense, testified that he did not know of a single instance of violence or threats being directed against the new men. He said he had mingled with the union men and had attended one of their meetings. He had no knowledge of any picketing or intimidating. The Sheriff went into Morris Run on the morning of March 17th with the strike breakers and was there for two days at that time. When the train bearing the new men stopped at the station the strikers gathered there, stood back and allowed the men to walk unmolested to the hall.

The Sheriff has been in Morris Run most of the time since the 14th of March, and he testified that he had never seen any disorder, never heard any threats of violence, no vile language, nor had he personal knowledge of any assaults being made. In several cases when the Company notified the Sheriff that the injunction had been violated he made an investigation but failed to find that there had been any violation of the provisions of the injunction.

The foregoing is, in substance, the testimony brought out by counsel for the defendants and is, it will be noted, largely corroborative in its nature and in direct opposition to the testimony offered by several of the witnesses for the plaintiff Company.

The taking of evidence was concluded Saturday morning, and all witnesses in the case were excused from further attendance.

Saturday afternoon F. S. Hughes, Esq., opened the argument for the Company. He was followed by Maj. Merrick, J. A. Gleason, Esq., and M. W. Fairman, Esq., counsel for the strikers.

H. F. Marsh, Esq., then presented the argument for the complainants, and at 5:30 o'clock court adjourned until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Court matters foreign to these proceedings occupied the attention of the Court all Monday afternoon, and for that reason the injunction issue was not taken up again until 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning, at which time Maj. Geo. W. Merrick presented the conclusions of law for the defense, being followed by his associate, Hon. R. K. Young.

In the afternoon, owing to the funeral of the late John N. Bache, Esq., court did not convene until 3 o'clock, when S. F. Channell, Esq., made the final argument for the plaintiff Company.

There were a large number of authorities cited on the several questions raised and, should the Court examine them all, it is probable that an opinion will not be handed down for several days.

Farm House and Barn Burned.

The farm house and barn of Lewis E. Thornton on the Marsh creek road, about two miles from Stokesdale Junction, were destroyed by fire together with most of their contents last Saturday afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock. The entire family was away from home at the time, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton being in Wellsboro.

The fire orignated from burning brush in a neighboring field. The fire communicated to the dry grass and the blaze crept to the Thornton farm unnoticed finally igniting the buildings. The flames had gained such headway before being discovered that it was impossible to save the property. The total loss is estimated at $1,500, with no insurance.

The family of Mr. Thornton has been provided with accommodations at the home of his brother, Silas Thornton.

Death of A. J. Corwin.

A. J. Corwin, a prominent and well-known resident of Millerton, died last Saturday of acute indigestion, aged 61 years. Mr. Corwin had resided in Millerton all of his life. He was an auctioneer and cattle buyer. "Jack" Corwin was a good natured, big hearted fellow and had a host of friends who sincerely regret his death. He was known in Wellsboro and other parts of the county, having filled the office of Constable in Jackson township for ten years.

Mr. Corwin was taken ill at a vendue at which he was acting as auctioneer last Friday afternoon and was taken home, where he died the next day. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. D. H. Everts, of Big Flats, N. Y., and Misses Harriet and Marguerite Corwin, living at home. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Engineer Asleep at His Post.

A light engine north bound ran into the caboose of a freight train which was standing on the main track at Blackwells at 6 o'clock on Monday morning. The pedestal was knocked off the caboose and two freight cars damaged.

The accident occurred in broad daylight when the track was visible for many feet ahead. The engineer of the north bound locomotive is said to have admitted that he was asleep at his post.

THE greatest factor in the development of a business is competition with itself—the constant exertion of all its power and strength to raise its standard. With what we have done we are content, ever, but satisfied, never. If we were, our new series of Spring Suits and Top Coats at fifteen, twenty and twenty-five dollars would fail in its purpose, which is to establish the standard so high that if any of our contemporaries dare accept it, his prices must, perforce, be materially higher. We are ready with quite a comprehensive and most diversified series of models, distinctive in character and style.

SACK SUITS—Single and double breasted models, of worsteds, cheviots, twills, cassimeres, serges and tibets in both rough and smooth surface weaves, in all the new shades of gray and brown mixtures, self overplaids and broken checks. $15, $20 and $25.

TOP COATS—In the new 32, 34, 41 and extreme box models, and tourist coats of covert, whipcords, twills and cheviot in the very shades and designs with which the exclusive tailor-men pride themselves. $15, $20 and $25.

MCCLURE'S for April tempts extravagant praise. Articles of world-wide scope, sound, pertinent, going deeply into great affairs fairly teem in its pages, crowding close with a goodly list of bright, diverting fiction. They go into many fields of human activities, and there is equal diversity among the stories. It is a number that carries breathless interest.

"A ROYAL SLAVE."—Gordon & Bennett's sumptuous production, "A Royal Slave," paid its second annual visit to Corning Opera House, Saturday afternoon and evening, and pleased two good sized audiences. The cast is fully up to the high standard set by the management last year and the show was cordially received. Phil Jean Barnard as Humboldt Agassiz Jones easily carried off the honors by his fine comedy and won fresh praise by doing an exceptionally clever vaudeville turn.—Corning Leader, March 20, 1905.

He is one of the principal stockholders in the company which conducts the Hotel Windermere. The many friends of Mr. Moore were pleased to see him and also glad to know that he is prosperous and happy. He was accompanied here by his brother, Enos D. Moore, who is now employed as floorwalker in the store of S. F. Lizard Co., of Elmira.

Important Banking Change.

At a meeting of the directors of the Tioga County Savings & Trust Co., held last Friday, the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. was declared. The resignation of Geo. M. Spalding from the directorate of the Company was received and accepted. Mr. Spalding desired to give more time and attention to his personal affairs, and also wished to take an active part in the management of the Tioga Lumber Company, of which he is Secretary and which has extensive lumber interests in Michigan.

George W. Williams, of this borough, was elected a Director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Spalding and was also elected a Vice-President of the Company. By his election the Trust Company has obtained a very valuable aid in the upbuilding of its business, as Mr. Williams possesses a wide acquaintance with the business men and business interests throughout the entire county.

Cost $16 For Shooting a Robin.

Last Saturday an Italian named Stirpa was brought here from Ansonia by Constable John Fisher, of Shippen, charged with shooting a robin. He was given a hearing before Justice O. H. Davis, who fined him $10 and costs, about $6.

Stirpa is one of the gang of laborers employed on the railroad near Ansonia, and it is said that there have been at least 500 robins killed by the Italians for food this spring. It is proposed by the authorities to put a stop to the wholesale slaughter of the birds and stringent measures will be adopted if necessary to make the foreigners comply with the law, which provides a fine of $10 for each bird killed. The man arrested was caught with the dead bird in his possession.

DEATH OF JOHN BACHE

Wellsboro's Oldest Resident and Nestor of the Tioga County Bar.

SKETCH OF HIS ACTIVE LIFE

Oldest Native White Born Citizen of Wellsboro—Successful Business Career—Large Owner of Timber Lands and Real Estate—Simple Obsequies.

Wellsboro has lost its oldest native born citizen, a man who was remarkable for his length of years, business acumen and the active possession of all of his faculties up to almost the time of his death.

When John N. Bache, Esq., passed away at his home on Charles street last Saturday evening at 7:25 he had passed his 85th milestone. He was a lifelong resident of Wellsboro and his was a life of unusual length, characterized by that success which invariably attends thrift, economy and integrity in all affairs. He had not been really sick; it was only a breaking down of his rugged constitution and he died as peacefully as he lived. While the announcement of his death was not unexpected it caused genuine sorrow and regret to many of his old friends and acquaintances.

John N. Bache was born in Wellsboro, March 8, 1820, and celebrated his 85th birthday last month by a dinner to a number of his old friends, which was greatly enjoyed. After completing his education in the public schools of this place he commenced the study of law with his brother-in-law, Robert G. White, in 1841, and completed the usual legal course at Yale Law School, in New Haven, Connecticut. In the fall of 1843 he was admitted to the bar of Tioga county and at the time of his death was the oldest member. He personally knew and had a very clear recollection of many of the old-time lawyers who practiced at this bar.

Mr. Bache devoted his attention chiefly to land titles and collections, as jury trials were generally distasteful to him. He served as Deputy Attorney General for about one year. In 1848 he was elected Register and Recorder, served one term, and was afterward chosen as a Justice of the Peace, but he soon resigned the office.

Many years ago Mr. Bache, in connection with his brother William, turned his attention to timber and coal lands and geological explorations. They first called the attention of the Fall Brook Coal Company to the lands now known as the Antrim field, the development of which has added so much wealth and prosperity to the county. He was best known as one of the largest individual land owners in the county.

Mr. Bache was married at Seneca Falls, N. Y., September 1, 1847, to Sarah Stowell, a daughter of Hezekiah Stowell, one of the pioneer lumbermen of Tioga county. She was born in Bainbridge, N. Y., June 30, 1823, and came with her parents to Wellsboro in childhood. Six children were born of this marriage, three of whom grew to maturity, viz: Anna S., wife of A. A. Truman; Louisa M., wife of the late L. F. Truman, and Nellie, wife of F. W. Graves, all of whom are residents of Wellsboro. Mrs. Bache died at her home in this borough December 31, 1896, after a residence here of nearly half a century.

In politics Mr. Bache was originally a Whig, but had been a Republican since the organization of that party.

The personal history of the deceased would prove most interesting, as his reminiscences cover incidents in this locality which seem far removed from this generation. During his lifelong residence here his business ventures proved financially successfully. All he accomplished was through his own resources, but it was the practical energy of a never give up spirit that made him one of this town's wealthiest residents. He was honest in all his dealings and without hypocrisy or sham in morals, business, politics or friendship.

Funeral services were held at the house on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. William Heakes officiating.

A Pleasant Reception.

The reception held at the home of Dr. L. Bailey on Pearl street last Friday evening for Revs. N. L. and F. W. Reynolds, the retiring and the new pastor of the First Baptist church, was very largely attended and was a very enjoyable affair. About 200 persons took advantage of the occasion to express their good wishes to the new pastor and God-speed to the retiring pastor.

The reception committee were Mrs. L. L. Bailey, Mrs. W. D. Furman, Mrs. G. C. Brooks, Mrs. William MacNutty, Mrs. J. A. Beach, Mrs. Ames and Mrs. L. A. Lyon. The receiving party consisted of Rev. N. L. Reynolds, Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Reynolds, Dr. Myra Reynolds and Miss E. Langley.

Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was neatly decorated with red and white carnations and smilax. The service was under the direction of the following ladies, who were attired in white: Mrs. N. B. Leslie, Mrs. F. E. Emberger, Mrs. E. A. Wilcox, Misses Clara Hitchold and Mary Karr. During the evening a purse of $36 was presented to Rev. N. L. Reynolds.

Purchased Coal Company Stock.

Louis P. Miller, a large coal dealer of Elmira and one of the officers of the Morris Run Coal Company, has purchased a large portion of the stock of that company. The Advertiser says: "Mr. Miller has been prominently connected with several coal companies and his connection with the Morris Run Company will probably be the means of regulating the distorted conditions of the regulations between the men and the management."

APRIL FLITTINGS.

Partial List of Those Who Changed Their Place of Residence in Wellsboro.

The past week has been moving week and a very busy one, there being the usual number of spring flitters. Among them were the following:

Charles March, from the Mathers house on East avenue to the Bache house on Grant street.

Horace Reed, from Delmar to the Benjamin house on Conway street.

Thomas Turber, from the Potter house on Charles street to the Nickerson house on East avenue.

Samuel Gee, from Fischler street into a portion of the Copp house on East avenue.

Leon Bacon, from Conway street to the Hoagland house on Walnut street.

E. A. Nichols, from his farm in Charleston to the Davis house on Queen street.

Fred Beach, from the Nacle house on Queen street to the Hammond house on Purple street.

L. P. Smart, from the Rogers house on Bache street to Matson's new house on Cone street.

Mrs. J. H. Buckley, from her farm in Delmar to her new home, corner of Pearl and Crafton streets.

Jasper Slingerland, from rooms in Harden block to Carey house, corner of Crafton and Walnut streets.

Joseph Gmeiner, from the Copp house on East avenue to the Kress house on Cone street.

N. B. Leslie, from the Kress house on Cone street to the Robinson house on the same street.

Young Burglars at Arnot.

Last Saturday afternoon Gust Anderson and Peter Friske, two young men of Arnot, were brought here by Constable Thomas Mason and Deputy Constable T. J. Johnson and lodged in jail. They are charged with burglary, being caught in the act by Mr Johnson, who is the company night watchman at that place.

Last Friday night the young burglars entered the general store of H. H. Roberts at Arnot by breaking a window and took goods valued at about $250. The plunder consisted of several watches, a quantity of jewelry, some dry goods, tobacco and pipes. When arrested they admitted their guilt and showed the officers where they had secreted the booty.

More About Calf Buying

An interesting article from E. W. Davis, of Middlebury Center, concerning the calf buying business, together with several letters from our correspondents, are unavoidably crowed out of this issue. The communication from Mr. Davis, in reply to an article which recently appeared in the Lawrenceville Herald and republished in the GAZETTE, will be printed next week.

MINERS IN UGLY MOOD

Company Officials and Their Men Given a Warm Reception at Blossburg.

ASSAULTED BY STRIKERS

Stones, Brickbats and Other Missiles Hurled at the Non-Union Men, Two Being Severely Injured—A Cowardly and Unprovoked Attack.

A Blossburg dispatch says that last Saturday evening, on their arrival from Wellsboro, the union miners who had been before Judge Cameron to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be issued against them, were welcomed at the station by 3000 persons, men, women and children, accompanied by a band. W. S. Nearing, Superintendent of the Morris Run Coal Mining Company, and his assistant, were on the train, as well as the other non-union witnesses. No demonstration was made against these men."

District Attorney Frank S. Hughes, of Blossburg, who has been attending court this week, gives an entirely different version of the above affair, which was termed by one of the city papers as a "Royal Welcome." Mr. Hughes was a passenger on the train and was also an eyewitness of the "reception" which followed, and which he declares threatened at one time to result in a very serious riot.

The crowd assembled was one of the largest in the history of the town and was composed of the strikers and their wives, many with infants in their arms, all of whom were in an ugly mood owing to the recent wholesale evictions from their homes at Morris Run.

As soon as the company officials and the non-union men stepped from the train they were greeted with derisive shouts and yells. They hurried to the conveyances awaiting them and the angry crowd surged about the rigs hooting and crying, "Kill the dam scabs," and calling other vile names and epithets. As the drivers whipped up their horses the occupants were showered with stones, bricks and other missiles.

Mr. Nearing and Mr. McDougal were both struck by large stones and one of the rocks made a good-sized hole in the wagon box. The miners in the other wagons were also hit by the flying stones and brickbats, while their horses were being driven up Main street at breakneck speed.

Two of the non-union miners who were left behind fared badly, and if District Attorney Hughes and others had not interceded in their behalf they would probably have been seriously if not fatally injured by the mob of enraged strikers.

One of the men, named Louie Katleski, received an ugly gash on the head from a stone and the other was knocked about and kicked in a promiscuous manner, sustaining severe injuries. One of the injured men was obliged to take refuge in the office of the District Attorney and the other in a store, where they were compelled to remain several hours before it was deemed safe to let them go out.

During the disturbance District Attorney Hughes directed the band to cease its music and endeavored in every possible manner to preserve order, but his efforts proved of no avail.

Taken as a whole the cowardly attack was an outrage and cannot help but reflect on the heretofore peaceful and orderly conduct and bearing which the miners had maintained throughout the prolonged strike and which had gained them the sympathy of the people in general in this section of the State.

APPOMATTOX DAY.

Union Veteran Legion Will Celebrate 40th Anniversary of Lee's Surrender.

Next Sunday, April 9th, has great meaning to our old soldiers, for this day is the anniversary of General Robert E. Lee's surrender to Grant at Appomattox forty years ago, which practically ended the war. Many of our brave veterans were with Grant in that never-to-be-forgotten campaign.

Encampment No. 105, Union Veteran Legion, will fittingly observe the occasion next Monday. A reunion will be held in Post rooms in the afternoon; at 8 p. m. the campfire will be lighted at the court house, where the following programme will be observed:

LITTLE MILL WORKERS

TRUE TALES TOLD BY CHILD SLAVES UNDER OATH TO THE ANTHRACITE STRIKE COMMISSION.

These Little Girls Stood All Night in the Midst of Dangerous, Whirling Machinery For a Mere Pittance, and All This Under a Law That Experience Has Proved Inefficient.

Conditions surrounding child labor in Pennsylvania have been such that the State has become a gathering place for factories that rely upon cheap labor, no matter how obtained, for great profits.

Particularly true is this of the silk and woolen factories that have drained the schools of the anthracite and bituminous coal regions of thousands of children. For these little ones, the bill which has been framed and modified under the supervision of the Pennsylvania Child Labor Committee will be a means of rescue and a permanent safeguard against future imposition.

The character of work that has been required from these children of the mining regions is best told in the official notes of testimony given before the Anthracite Strike Commission in Scranton, Dec. 15, 1902. Following are excerpts from that evidence:

Theresa McDermott called to the stand:

How old are you? Eleven past.

Are you working anywhere? Yes, sir, in the silk mill.

Here in Scranton? No, sir, up in Dunmore.

How long have you worked there? About four months.

Days or nights? Days.

What time do you go to work? We start at seven o'clock in the morning.

What time do you stop at night? Six o'clock.

What do you do there? I learned reeling.

Stand up or sit down? Stand up.

What do you get a week? About $2.

Have you been to school? Yes, sir.

How far did you get in the readers? Third reader.

Annie Denko called:

How old are you? Thirteen.

Where do you work? In the silk mill.

Do you work days or nights? Nights.

What time do you go to work? I start to work at half-past six.

How long do you work? Twelve hours.

You are about thirteen hours altogether going and coming to the mill and working? Yes, sir.

You go home at half-past six in the morning? Yes, sir.

Winter and summer? Winter and summer.

How long have you worked there? I am working here over a year.

Do you stand up or sit down? Stand up all night.

What do you do? I twist.

Do you stop in the middle of the night to eat? We have half an hour.

How much do you get? I get five cents and a half an hour.

For twelve hours or ten? We work twelve hours.

The Chairman (Judge Gray)—What is the law in this state about working in textile factories, do you know, Mr. Torrey? Mr. Torrey—No, I do not.

The Chairman—Any law about working at night?

Mr. McCarthy—No, no law about working at night.

By the Chairman:

Would you rather go to school? We can't; I have to go to work.

Would you rather work in the mill than to live out at service? I would rather live out at service than go to the mill.

Commissioner Parker—Would you rather go to school than go to the mill? Yes, sir.

The Chairman—I think the father ought to be seen, Mr. Torrey, and the employers, too. There is no use in disguising the fact that it may be a necessity, but there must be many cases in which the fathers allow this and give their own consent to coin the flesh and blood of their children into money to help their income when there is no absolute necessity for it. It is an outrage.

Helen Sissak called:

How old are you? Eleven years past.

Where do you work? I work in Dunmore in the Gambrle Silk Mills.

How long have you worked there? One year.

Do you work days or nights? Nights.

How many hours? What time do you go there and what time do you get back? I go at half-past six and leave the mill at half-past six in the morning.

How far do you live from the mill? About a mile from the mill; takes half an hour to get to the mill.

What do you do in the mill? Carry bobbins.

Carry them from one place to another? No; one bobbin gets empty and I take the empty bobbin off the frame and clean the bobbin and put it on a board.

Do you stand up all night or sit down? I have to walk around to get the bobbins and sit down and clean them.

How long have you worked nights? One year.

Always worked nights? Yes.

How much do you get? Three cents an hour.

Have you a certificate of your age as required by law, or don't they require certificates? Yes, they won't permit us in the mills unless you have a certificate.

What does the certificate show? That I was 13.

How do they get thirteen on the certificate when you are not twelve? Father swore I was thirteen, of course.

Mr. Darrow—Mr. Burns, would you just as soon tell the commission how many silk mills there are and how many other mills employ girls?

Mr. Burns—They are scattered all around.

Mr. D.—All these mills employ such girls.

Mr. B.—Certainly.

Mr D.—Nothing but girls?

Mr. B.—No.

Mr. D.—Are there any mills besides silk mills?

Mr. B.—Yes, button factories and various other things.

The Chairman—Is there any law in this state, gentlemen, about night labor for children?

No answer.

CHILDREN FED TO MOLOCH

Dr. Felix Adler Thus Characterizes the Labor of Children.

Humanitarians as well as materialists have raised their voices in protest against the laws that permit the traffic in children's strength at the expense, not merely of the child, but of the community.

Collier's Weekly voices this protest and makes incidental comment upon conditions in Pennsylvania in the following editorial:

Child labor in England began when modern machinery brought a demand for cheap operatives. Then, as Dr. Felix Adler has said, somebody had the idea of shoveling all the unowned and unloved children into factories. "Children were fed to machines as literally as in ancient idolatry they were fed to Moloch! They worked for fourteen hours a day and rolled by the thousand. A parliamentary inquiry showed the case of a seven-year-old boy whose father used to wake him before daybreak, carry him to the mill and leave him there to tend a machine for sixteen hours a day. Women crawled through two-foot galleries on their hands and knees, dragging by a long chain attached to a leather belt a cart holding three hundred or four hundred pounds of coal. "How, is it," asked the strong Jewish thinker, "that human beings are capable of such brutality?" Why is it that in England, an Anglo-Saxon country, where woman is supposed to be a kind of goddess, the womanhood was crushed out of little girls and grown women groveled and dragged carts?" Two years ago there were 20,000 children under twelve years of age at work in our southern states. Pennsylvania has 35,000 under sixteen, the greater number of them under twelve. Elizabeth Barrett Browning once asked of England, "How long, oh cruel nation, will you trample on a child's heart?" "This," says Dr. Adler, "is not Russia. What do you think of our own czars of industry?"

It has been said that the Child Labor question is altogether a sentimental issue. While sentiment has its influence, the sentiment of overwhelming pity, there is also a materialistic view; that of the value in body and mind, in mature, skilled work and intelligence, in property and money that the state of Pennsylvania is losing through the heartless laws that now affect child labor. Every costly jail and reformatory, every insane asylum, every slum and dive is an argument that cries out against neglect of rights of children.

The horse breeder will work a colt until bone, muscle and brain sufficient to the task shall have matured. He knows that a worthless horse would be the result of premature work. Parents, employers, legislators, citizens of Pennsylvania generally are less regardful of the mental and physical welfare of the children of this state.

Hereditary Consumption Baffled.

Because there is an inherited tendency to consumption it does not follow that the heir to this sad legacy must die of the disease. The early symptoms of danger are marked—a cough being the first and most prominent. Meet the first indication of peril with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar, and in three days it will have vanished, and with it all cause of apprehension. No matter how delicate the lungs may be, or how strong the predisposition to consumption, a speedy cure is absolutely certain.

Pike's Toothache Drops—cure in one minute.

Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Liquid Cream Balm is becoming quite as popular in many localities as Ely's Cream Balm solid. It is prepared for use in atomizers, and is highly prized by those who have been accustomed to call upon physicians for such a treatment. Many physicians are using and prescribing it. All the medicinal properties of the celebrated Cream Balm are contained in the Liquid form, which is 75 cts. including a spraying tube. All druggists, or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

Ask any physician who is acquainted with its properties, whether Glenn's Sulphur soap is a reliable remedy for local skin diseases, and you will receive an answer in the affirmative.

Ordinary household accidents have no terrors when there's a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the medicine chest. Heals burns, cuts, bruises, sprains. Instant relief.

It's little colds that grow into big colds; the big colds that end in consumption and death. Watch the little colds. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Eczema, scald head, hives, itchiness of the skin of any sort, instantly relieved, permanently cured. Doan's Ointment. At any drug store.

A lazy liver makes a lazy man. Burdock Blood Bitters is the natural, never failing remedy for a lazy liver.

Ayer's

Your doctor will tell you that thin, pale, weak, nervous children become strong and well by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Small doses, for a few days.

Sarsaparilla

The change is very prompt and very marked. Ask your doctor why it is. He has our formula and will explain.

"When 13 years old, for many months no one thought I could live because of thin blood. But, in a few weeks, Ayer's Sarsaparilla completely restored me to health."

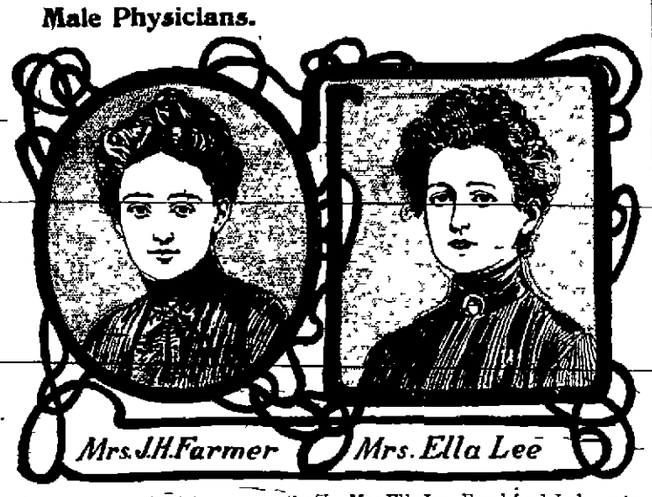
WOMEN NOT TRUTHFUL

This Statement Has Been Unjustly Made, Because Modest Women Evade Questions Asked By Male Physicians.



An eminent physician says that "Women are not truthful, they will lie to their physician" This statement should be qualified, women do tell the truth, but not the whole truth, to a male physician, but this is only in regard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked, even by her family physician This is especially the case with unmarried women.

Is it any wonder, then, that women continue to suffer and that doctors fail to cure female diseases when they cannot get the proper information to work on?

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs Pinkham. To her they can and do give every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients through her correspondence with them than the physician who personally questions them.

If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs Pinkham, Lynn Mass, and she will advise you free of charge.

The fact that this great boon which is extended freely to women by Mrs Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters received by her prove Many such grateful letters as the following are constantly pouring in

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands A Woman's Ills.

Mrs Ella Lee, Frankford, Ind, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham —

"I want to thank you for what your medicine has done for me

"Three years ago I had inflammation of the ovaries and ulcers on my womb I was under the doctor's care for about three months, and the only time I was not in pain was when under the influence of morphine. The doctor finally said I never would be better, and would be an invalid the rest of my life I had given up in despair, but one evening I came across one of your advertisements and decided to write you for advice I did so and commenced to take Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve at once, and to-day I am a well woman, and I know it is all due to your advice and medicine

Mrs J H Farmer of 2809 Elliott Avenue, St Louis, Mo., writes.

Dear Mrs Pinkham —

"I cannot thank you enough for what your advice and medicines have done for me. They have done me more good than all the doctors I ever had

"For the last eight years I have suffered with female troubles was very weak had nervous prostration, and could not do my work, but I am happy to say Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made a different woman of me I am in perfect health and have gained in weight from 98 pounds to 122 pounds"

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement No other medicine has such a record for actual cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice She has guided thousands to health Address, Lynn, Mass —

SEEDING IN PROGRESS IN WESTERN CANADA:

Mild Weather Is Bringing Thousands of Settlers.

The splendid yields of wheat, oats and barley produced by the farmers of Western Canada and the excellent prices received for the same, have been the means of giving an increased interest throughout the United States As a result the inquiries made of the Agents of the Canadian Government have nearly doubled over those of the same period last year. Railroad companies are putting on increased carrying capacity to meet the demand made upon them for carrying passengers and freight. Everything points to a most prosperous year. There is room for hundreds of thousands additional settlers, much new land having been opened up for settlement this year

It is quite interesting to look through the letters received from the Americans who have settled in Western Canada during the past few years, and considering the large number it is surprising how few there are who have not succeeded An extract from a letter written by Mr Geo M Griswold, of Red Deer, Alta, formerly of Grever, Montana, written on the 2d of January is as follows

"I am located one and one half miles from a beautiful lake ten miles long where there is church school, three stores, creamery and two post offices The fine stock, both cattle (cows and steers), horses hogs and sheep are rolling fat, grazing in pasture to-day, just a little snow, hardly enough for good sleighing as we just had a Chinook which has melted the roads and laid bare the fields and pasture There are fine wheat oats, barley and flax raised here also winter wheat and timothy hay for export to British Columbia. This is a mixed farming and dairy country This is the right time to get a foothold in the Canadian West, as it was some years ago in the United States We are free from wind gumbo and alkali here and have fine clear soft well and spring water at a depth of from 5 to 25 feet, and lots of open ever flowing springs."

Telegraphic advices from Medicine Hat say that seeding has commenced at Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and other points At the former place the temperature moderated gradually, until on the 19th the maximum was 45 and the minimum 26. Thermometer readings since then have been as follows: 20th, 47 and 38 21st 54 and 34, 22d, 56 and 39 23d 48 and 40 24th, 48 and 26.

During the last few days in February considerable plowing was done near Lethbridge. P A Pulley, a recent arrival from Montana plowed and harrowed 15 acres and E Lallborty about the same amount Rev Coulter White has also been harrowing his farm All report the ground frost free and in excellent condition Bricklaying has also begun in town At Hartney, further east on the 25th of February the sun was warm and bright, wheeled carriages were in use and the plowed fields look as if they are ready for the press drills There is every appearance that spring has arrived, but farmers do not wish to be deceived by appearances and consequently have not commenced to use their bluestone and seed wheat

New Erie Locomotives

The Erie Railroad has ordered 137 very heavy freight locomotives and 5600 freight cars The company is also having built three of the new and fast type of passenger engines known as "balanced compounds" These locomotives will pull more passenger cars at a higher rate of speed than any other kind. The company is also having built three heavy Pacific type of passenger engines.

SCIATIC TORTURE

PAIN SUFFERED BY MR. MARSTON AS GREAT AS MORTAL CAN STAND.

For Six Months He Could Not Turn in Bed—He Tells of a Remedy Which Has Given Perfect Relief.

The case of Mr Marston shows that sciatica can be cured, and no one afflicted by it should allow himself to be disheartened He was first stricken about a year ago, and for six months he suffered pain which he thinks the most intense that any man could possibly stand.

Asked about the details of his remarkable recovery, Mr. Marston gave the following account. "I was attacked by a numbness or dull feeling just back of my right hip I didn't know what the matter was, but thought it would wear away in a short time It didn't, however, and soon the pain became so very bad that every step was torture for me When I finally succeeded in getting home, it was just as much as I could do to reach my room and get to bed

"The doctor was sent for, and when he had examined me he said I had sciatica. He prescribed for me, and advised me not to try to leave my bed The advice was unnecessary for I couldn't get out of bed if I wanted to It was impossible for me to turn from one side to the other. The moment I attempted to move any part of my body, the pain became so excruciating that I would have to be perfectly motionless

"I suffered this torture for six months without getting any relief Then I discharged the doctor, and on the advice of a friend I bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began to take them, three at a dose, three times a day I was determined to give them a thorough trial

"Two months after I began to use them I was able to leave my bed and walk about the house, and a month later I was entirely cured and able to go about my work as usual I think Dr Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine I ever used, and I heartily recommend them to anyone who suffers from sciatica"

Mr Marston is a prosperous farmer and may be reached by mail addressed to Charles P Marston, Hampton P O, New Hampshire Dr Williams' Pink Pills have cured other painful nervous disorders, such as neuralgia, partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. They are sold by all druggists.

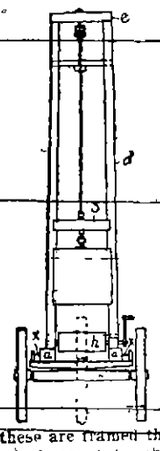
HOME-MADE POST DRIVER.

Machine Which Will Prove a Boon to the Farmer When Building Fences

A special post driver is very useful where one has a large number of posts to drive. The figure gives a machine of this kind which may be made by the ordinary farm carpenter says Farm and Home It is designed to be placed upon the running gears of any common farm wagon The frame consists of two sills 4 x 6 inches by 12 feet long, which are framed together by cross-pieces a b and c, so that they are two feet apart At the back end of these are framed the upright guides d, which are 4x4 inches by 12 feet long These are framed together at the top by the cross piece e 20 inches apart. The guides are held upright by braces f



A pulley is attached to the cross bar at the top of uprights through which passes the rope that is then passed over a hand crank windless g on the sills The maul is a solid block of tough oak 2 feet wide by 1½ feet thick and 2

feet long It has a groove on each side 2 inches deep and 4 inches wide which works over the guides At the top is spiked an iron ring into which works the trip i which hooks into the ring and releases when the arm j comes in contact with the block k The follower l supports the trip and is attached firmly to the end of hauling rope

The whole machine must be securely fastened to the bolsters of the wagon by placing piece x at the sides of the sills The forward end must be secured to the axle by a chain around the sills The operation of this apparatus is quite easy—for two men Drive over the place where the post is to be set until the maul is directly over the spot Place the sharpened post in position raise the maul with the windlass and repeat until the post is firmly driven

HANDY BUSHEL BOXES.

Crates Should Be Prepared for Use in the Orchard and Garden Next Summer and Fall

The handiest thing on the farm for handling vegetables and apples is bushel-slated boxes like those shown in the cut. Made with oak posts and elm slats well nailed they will last for many years If kept under cover when not in use save the Farm and Home The boxes are 16 inches long 18 1-2 inches wide and 12 inches deep inside measure When made up one box can be nested inside of two others so that they can be handled in bunches of three Half-inch stuff is heavy enough for slats except top and bottom, which should be 7/8 inch

Novel Smoke House

My neighbor has a smokehouse that I must tell you about writes a correspondent of the Farm Journal He has an old stove standing in an outhouse Over the stovepipe hole he turned a barrel which had hooks screwed in the top of it on which to hank the hams and bacon Then he simply put in a few shovelsful of hot coals and his smoking material cobs and that is about all there is to it. The fire is easily attended to from the front of the stove and the meat is smoked with the least possible amount of trouble

Feeding the Horse

There is a certain amount which may vary under different circumstances which a horse can eat and which will sustain him and keep him in a good, healthy condition Anything more than this is just as injurious as anything less This amount can only be ascertained by experiment as no two horses require exactly the same quantity of food.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS with Pusheck's Kuro is that it does what no other medicine can do It affects the grand trio—the Stomach, the Blood and the Nerves—that controls and regulates the whole body—it invigorates the digestion and assimilation of food keeps both body and mind active, it purifies and strengthens the nerves. This explains why one medicine permanently cures so many apparently different diseases.—Other remedies act on one organ only, and cannot effect a complete cure. PUSHECK'S KURO regenerates the entire system.

COUNTY AFFAIRS.

Summary of Local Events and Happenings of the Week.

—The graduating class of the Westfield High School numbers eleven.

—A few days ago a large white swan was seen on Pine creek near Jersey Shore.

—The Farmers' Mutual Telephone line is to be extended from Mitchell Creek to Tioga

—The curfew whistle at Blossburg is connected with the electric light plant at that place.

—Richard Carson, of Delmar, has moved to Jersey Shore, where he has leased a farm.

—Thomas Owlett, of Mansfield, has moved to Addison, N. Y., where he will engage in farming.

—Rev. J. J. Resh, pastor of the Methodist church at Hoytville, has accepted a call from Mill Hall, Clinton county.

—The weather during the last few days of March were unprecedented as far as their high temperature is concerned.

—The Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad has installed eight new freight trains to be run between Galeton and DuBois.

—Harry French has returned from the Philippines to his home at Tioga, having completed three years service with the U. S. troops.

—James Purcell, of Arnot, District Organizer of the United Mine Workers, has bought of Edward McEntee a farm of 80 acres in Charleston.

—An effort is being made to start a brick and tile factory at Galeton. Some valuable clay mines are located on the top of one of the hills in that place.

—Hon. A. G. Olmsted, of Coudersport, has let the contract for a new hose house to be erected for the firemen of that place at an expense of at least $1,500.

—Prof. Welfling, of Harrison Valley, and his brother will erect a three-story hotel on the Nine Mile in Potter county for the accommodation of fishermen and campers.

—Mrs. J. S. Bush, Tioga's oldest resident, died at her home in that place last Saturday morning, in the 81st year of her age. She was the widow of the late John S. Bush, who died two years ago.

—The potato crop of the United States was 26,300,000 bushels greater in 1904 than in 1903. It is said that there are nearly three times as many bushels for sale this spring as a year ago at this time.

—Rev. L. L. Grover, pastor of the Baptist church at Stony Fork for the past three years, has gone to Harrison Valley. Rev. W. A. Grover, of Elmira, has accepted a call to become pastor of the church.

—The Smethport Democrat says that the recent Republican primaries in that vicinity "were marked by a carnival of drunkenness that ought to bring a blush of shame to the cheek of every decent Republican who was an eye witness to the scene."

—Landlord John F. Keefe, who has conducted the Eagle Hotel at Blossburg for many years, has leased the Seymour House at that place. M. S. Murray, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee, is the present landlord of the Seymour House.

—In his plea before a jury at a recent term of court in Coudersport, L. B. Seibert became somewhat original and is reported as having said: "God Almighty can damage man all he has a mind to, but any man who will assist him in doing it can be prosecuted."

—A correspondent says that one of the rooms in the primary grade in the Arnot school, taught by Miss Nora Coleman, has been closed on account of the lack of funds, and the children distributed among the other rooms, some of the teachers having upwards of 80 pupils.

—The year 1905 will have 53 Sundays; one more than ordinary. A 53 Sunday year will not come again for 100 years. The extra Sunday is caused by the year beginning on Sunday and ending on Sunday. There are no less than five months in which five Sundays occur in 1905.

—One day last week Charles Turner, aged 30, from Potter county, and a convict in the penitentiary at Pittsburg, was murdered at that institution by Paul Kruger, a fellow convict. The men got into a dispute while at work. Kruger stabbed Turner with a knife, death ensuing in twenty minutes.

—The other day while some Westfield boys were playing burglar a ten-year-old lad lighted some powder "to blow open a safe" but he was not quick enough to get away and he received a part of the effects of the explosion in his face. His left eye was badly burned and his face somewhat injured.

—Fire early last Sunday morning damaged the Weed building at Williamsport to the extent of $30,000. The flames communicated to the Gazette and Bulletin building, which suffered a loss of $10,000. The press room was completely gutted and the paper has since been printed from the Sun office.

—Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in his annual report urges that the public schools devote a day to the study of the history of our beloved Commonwealth. The day is very fittingly called "Pennsylvania Day." This will be observed in many schools throughout the State.

—The Erie railroad, with 2,200 miles of trackage, states that the cost stolen from them amounts to a good many thousand dollars and recently commenced a systematic prosecution against the thieves, and as a result over 200 persons have been arrested inside of a couple of weeks. The company hopes to break up the practice.

—The creamery of the Liberty Valley Creamery Company begins operations for the season next Monday. At the recent election of officers the following were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Louis Krise; Secretary and Manager, R. A. DeCoursey; Treasurer, D. O Hartsook; Directors, Daniel Boger, John H. Mase, D C Hartsock, Ellis Messner.

—Somerset township, Washington county, has a unique road law, passed more than fifty years ago, under which the roads are divided into half mile sections and auctioned off to the lowest bidder who will keep a section in repair for three years. There are 100 miles of road in the township and the 200 sections are again about to be auctioned off for a three-year term.

—A contemporary publishes the following good advice: Don't think the country newspaper publishers are simply trying to get rid of a surplus stock of postage stamps when you get a back subscription statement. If you want to meet your friends in the other world and enjoy yourself, pay up. Remember the country editor will be up in the reserved seats on the other side of the dark river.

—About 10,000,000 feet of gas is sent to market daily by the Potter Gas Co. through their lines without any artificial propelling power. A pumping station will be provided for the purpose of propelling the gas through the line, which it is expected will increase the capacity of the line to 15,000,000 feet per day. It is the intention of the company to extend the line from Elmira to Waverly and Sayre.

—Fred Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herrington, who live on the Matson farm in Delmar, died last Saturday, aged 19 years. He had been in poor health the past two months as a result of hemorrages from the nose, but had been able to be about the house most of the time. He was a very quiet and retired young man and had many friends. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Reynolds officiating.

—The annual story that "many trout have been killed during the past winter" is going the rounds. The theory of expert fisherman is that the cold weather coming when the water in the streams was very low caused it to freeze almost to the bottom, and it is said a recent examination of some of the brooks substantiates this theory. Of course the the real extent of the damage will not be knowp until after the opening of the fish season.

—Julius C. Wetmore, an old and well-known resident of Charleston, died at his home at Dartt Settlement last Friday, aged 72 years. Mr. Wetmore conducted a grocery and was postmaster at Charleston for many years, retiring from that office about a year ago. He spent a good portion of his life in farming but had been in feeble health the past two or three years. The deceased is survived by his second wife and one son, Charles Wetmore. The funeral was held Sunday morning from the Dartt Settlement church.

Balky Horse Delayed Wedding.

A wedding was nearly frustrated at Millerton a few days ago by a balky horse. The Advocate of that place says: Fay Beers, formerly of Elmira, and Miss May Belle Wright, formerly of Mansfield, decided to get married last Thursday evening, March 23d, so the prospective groom engaged a horse at Mosherville and got his intended bride and "hit out" for Pine City. But lo! when beautiful "Black Bess," the noted steed, got to her home at Mosherville, she refused to go farther until after about every other inducment refused to move her, the genial "Walt" Wilson, an attache of the Mosherville house, took her in hand and got the anxious couple to Pine City in short order, where the Rev. Mr. Brainard, at the Baptist parsonage, "tied the knot that binds." The happy bride is a Mansfield graduate and is engaged in teaching at the Wells graded schools.

COMMISSIONER GARFIELD'S WORK

Preliminary Inquiry Into Production and Marketing of Oil.

Washington, April 5.—Commissioner James R. Garfield of the bureau of corporations returned from a fishing trip on the Gulf of Mexico. In his absence the preliminary work of the inquiry into the production and marketing of oil which he instituted before he left Washington has progressed to such a stage that he now is enabled to begin his personal work on it.

He will leave today for Kansas, going directly to Topeka. He will begin his inquiry into the methods of the oil trust in that field.

Commissioner Garfield said that it was not possible for him to say, even approximately, how much time the investigation would consume. He proposes to make it as thorough and comprehensive as possible.

Commissioner Garfield has not completed yet his report on the beef inquiry although the work of the investigation is well in hand. At least four chapters of the report, dealing respectively with transportation problems, retail prices, evidences of combination and the cattle ranges, remain yet to be completed. They will contain some of the most important information developed by the inquiry.

These chapters of the report will not be made public until after the federal grand jury now sitting in Chicago shall have concluded its inquiry into the operations and methods of the big packing concerns.

It is an open secret that much of the information gathered by Commissioner Garfield has been placed in the hands of officials of the department of justice, and is being used in the inquiry now making by the Chicago grand jury. No intimation is given by either Commissioner Garfield or other officials cognizant with the facts of the nature of the information they possess, but at least it is deemed wise not at this time to submit it for publication.

Old Mining Scale Signed.

Altoona, Pa., April 5.—After a lengthy conference of the wage-scale committee representing the operators and miners of the Central Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields the former signed last year's scale under protest. The scale is based upon 62 cents a ton for pick mining. The operators claim that conditions in the competitive coal fields do not justify the payment of the old scale. The miners, however, refused to recede from their demands for last year's scale and the operators state that rather than assume the responsibility of bringing on a strike they submitted to the miners' demands. Work which was suspended on March 31 was resumed in the mines today.

A Longer Bayonet Recommended.

Washington, April 5.—Secretary Taft approved a recommendation by General Chaffee based on the report of an army board which made a special inquiry into the subject of the army bayonet in all its phases as a weapon and as an equipment of the soldier, providing for a new bayonet. This inquiry was made at the suggestion of President Roosevelt as a result of the experiences of the armies in Manchuria. General Chaffee recommends a bayonet of the style at present issued to the army for use with the Krag rifle differing only in that its length is increased by six inches.

Engineer Dead at Throttle.

St. Johns, Que., April 5.—A freight train on the Quebec Southern railway ran off an open switch at Iberville. The engine upset, burying the engineer beneath it. The fireman believes the engineer was dead before the accident occurred. Just before reaching the open switch the fireman called out to the engineer that the signal was against them. The engineer sat motionless with his hand on the throttle, a deathlike look on his face. Before the fireman could step to his side the engine careened down the embankment and the fireman jumped just in time to save his life. The engineer had complained of feeling ill.

Plot to Kill Trepoff.

St. Petersburg, April 5.—The police arrested yesterday in the Nevsky Prospect a man disguised as a carriage driver, presumably belonging to the same organization as the 12 persons who were arrested last week for supposed connection with terrorist schemes. There is little doubt that there was a plot directed against the life of Governor General Trepoff and the latest arrest indicates that the terrorists are acting on a concerted plan as auxiliaries and lookouts to aid the actual perpetrator of the assassination.

THE TEA WE DRINK.

Tea is rapidly taking its place as a national beverage and we are becoming keenly alive to the benefits of drinking good tea. Good tea used to be hard to get, but thanks to the survey of such firms as O. R. Maltby Co. of Corning N. Y., it can now be obtained at very moderate prices. Their famous "Blend" tea is an instance of this. It is imported, packed and sealed by them in one pound and one half pound packages. Price 50 cents and 25 cents respectively at all grocers.

DANIEL WEBSTER AND THE ERIE

The Great Statesman Early Appreciated the Scenery of the "Picturesque Erie."

WHEN Daniel Webster, in company with President Fillmore, first rode over the "Picturesque Erie," in 1851, it is recorded that the great statesman insisted on riding on an open platform car, seated in a large, easy rocking chair, in order that he might better view the magnificent scenery.

SEEN to-day through plate-glass windows of cars that afford every conceivable luxury, these same glorious glimpses lose none of their effectiveness.

Buggy Offer 1,000 NO MORE

Built to Your Order in Our Own Factory

Our Special Proposition

$50.00 Buggy for $36.50

We are going to build one thousand Made-to-Order Buggies If you want one you must do business at once. Send 50 cents and tell us how you want it built. Be very plain, as we cannot make changes after your order is placed with the factory. We will get the material ready, the gears built, the wheels painted, the body finished and polished, except the last coat of varnish, the top and curtains fitted—everything, in fact, except the trimming and the final finishing coat. Ten days before you want it shipped, which must be before April 1, 1905, send $36.00 more and we will finish and ship you the nicest buggy for the money that you ever looked at. One thousand orders only.

The Reason for this Liberal Offer Most factories either close or run with only a few men during the winter. We want to keep our large force busy all the time, so make this exceptional offer. Remember, we can only build the 1,000, as our factory must then take on our heavy spring work. We build and sell more high-class vehicles than any other factory in America selling direct to the users.

How do you want it built?

Body Piano box or Corning style? 28x54 in. or 24x54 in.? State which. It will be the same graded body we use on our $46.00 buggy.

Gear Full elliptic or Brewster? State which—if you do not, we will send elliptic. Gear will have a 15-16 in. high-grade axle and highest grade oil-tempered springs made. Arch or dropped axle?

Wheels Do you want 28 and 30-in. or 40 and 44-in.? Three will be Sarven patent, selected hickory, ¾-in. tread and ⅞-in. tire, regular stock.

Top 3 or 4 bow—which do you want? It will have leather quarters, and well made in every way, with heavy rubber side and back curtains.

Painting Be very careful to state what you want. We will paint gear either a nice, dark green or New York red. Body, a plain ebony black, or black with striping, or mottled green. Our painting and decorating is all done by hand—no dipping, which insures a uniformly even, fine finish.

Trimming An extra quality of dark green Union body cloth or whipcord or Kersali leather. State which you want. The work is done by the highest class of mechanics we can secure. Spring seat and back—the best.

Furnishings Leather dash; book, with springs; rubber storm apron, carpet; trimmed all hickory shafts; wrench and anti-rattlers. Everything complete. Nicely packed with dust-bag, and guaranteed to arrive safely. You could not duplicate elsewhere for less than $50.00.

Our Guarantee

FAR MORE liberal than any "Free Trial" or "Ship for Inspection" offer ever made. It is very plain, and made to protect you. The substance is a Guarantee of Satisfaction.

We Know What's Under the Paint It was for this reason that we made an investment of over $100,000.00 in a plant of our own. We availed ourselves of every facility known to the business for making good work and making it just as economically as we can. We buy the materials ourselves. We had the factory located near us so we could be intimately connected with the building of our work and know exactly what we are giving our customers in every the world. You would be surprised if you knew what is in some of the buggies offered by "loud-talking" houses. Paint can cover a multitude of defects and does do it where work is built for profit only.

STATEMENT BY MR. SHAW

We did not go into the manufacture of vehicles to help out the general catalogue business. We started out to build not an average buggy, but to make ideal work, and to furnish it to our customers at as low a price as it is possible to sell good work.

I have not been in the buggy business long enough to know a good buggy from a poor one.

I attend to the buying of materials in our factory. I know what the labor costs; and when any concern offers you the same kind of a vehicle that we illustrate and describe at a less price than ours, there is something wrong with it; I will stake my reputation upon the truthfulness of that assertion.

I have visited nearly every factory in the Central West. I have examined the materials that they use. I have bought and torn apart their finished work, and I want to say to you that this firm is giving their trade better wheels, stronger gears, better bodies, and a more elegant and lasting finish for the money than any other factory in this country.

The dealer's price on any of the buggies in our catalogue would be from one-fourth to one-third more than ours.

All of our work is well-proportioned, and there is a style about it that you find on the work that is ordinarily sold for twice the amount we ask.

I am ready to prove any of these statements by shipping any one of our jobs to any customer, and if it is not what I say it is, you may return it at my expense and I will pay freight both ways.

—F. L. SHAW, Manager Vehicle Factory—

Free Vehicle Catalogue If you DO NOT have a copy, send for ONE at once. We have 200 different styles and kinds of vehicles, with prices from $10.95 for a cart, to $150.00 for a surrey. If you want a job that will only last a few months, we cannot sell you—we absolutely refuse to have such material in our factory. We are offering good work, vehicles that will give you good long, satisfactory service.

Do It Now Send your order in at once. The 50c first remittance is merely an evidence of good faith. Be careful to say just what you want. We will secure the best freight rate possible for you. It will, however, be a small matter when compared to the excellent bargain you get in this job. If this job does not suit you, do not buy until you receive Vehicle Book, which shows our complete line of high-grade vehicles. Job must be shipped before April 1, 1905.

What Others Say "I know I have saved $40.00 by buying from you." "My buggy far exceeds my expectations." "Our dealer wanted $70.00 for exactly the same as your $42.00 job." "I have just sold the buggy I bought of you three years ago for $35.00; only paid $31.50 now." No. 2

COLDS THAT HANG ON

So frequently settle on the lungs and result in Pneumonia or Consumption. Do not take chances on a cold wearing away or take something that only half cures it, leaving the seeds of serious throat and lung trouble.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

Stops the Cough and heals the lungs and prevents

Pneumonia and Consumption

Consumption Threatened

C. Unger, 211 Maple St., Champaign, Ill., writes: "I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption. I tried a great many remedies and I was under the care of physicians for several months. I used one bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. It cured me, and I have not been troubled since."

Cured Hemorrhages of the Lungs

A. M. Ake, Wood, Ind., writes: "Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages. I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR, and my lungs are now as sound as a bullet. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble."

Three Sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50-cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much. REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.
